

Green

By Greg Zborowski

Greg Zborowski is a junior at Bentworth High School. He participates in Academic League, Bentworth FBLA, and the school musical. He plans to attend college, possibly majoring in physics.

Down in the ravine,
 Yes, down by the water,
 Is a sight gray and bleak.
 Yes down in that creek bed
 The land is tormented.
 Nature has been beaten down.
 The trees no longer grow.
 The rabbits no longer play
 for humanity's shortsightedness
 Has finally taken its toll.
 The ground has grown weary.
 The water runs dark
 For the poison we spread is too much to bear.
 Where is the life that once filled
 this place?
 Where have all the creatures gone?
 From this place they have all taken flight.

But, hark, in the ground there by the water.
 What can it be?
 Yes, a sprout so small and soft,
 A tiny green tendril reaching up from the ground,
 Toward the light of the bright light
 of noon.
 Through all of the destruction
 This little one has survived
 To carry on the legacy of the land.
 It rises from the dead ground
 Like a phoenix from the ash,
 To bring hope for new life to the barren
 earth.
 For life never ends only stumbles and falls
 And returns to its feet and walks on just the same.

Keep the Change

By Matt Anderson

The author of the poem "Keep the Change," Matt Anderson, is currently an 18 year-old at Bentworth High School. He lives in Bentleyville with his parents and two brothers. Matt enjoys spending time with his friends, playing video games, and he also likes sports. Matt is an honor student at Bentworth. Currently, he is involved in both the Senior Council and Student Council. After he graduates, Matt plans to attend Penn State University to major in Business Administration and Marketing.

When a tiny lil' worm goes into cocoon,
 When our great star, flips over to moon,
 When a miniscule seed turns into a flower,
 When raindrops convert from drizzle to shower.

Some people cringe when they hear the term change,
 But really it's normal, it's not at all strange.
 It doesn't always happen when the timing is right.
 Though, you need to accept it, don't put up a fight.

Things tend to change throughout the time.
 Not something to fear, but something sublime.
 Change can bring happiness, or it can bring tears,
 But it's bound to happen for many more years.

Don't run and hide from things that are no longer,
 Use them as a crutch, for you to be stronger.
 So don't be afraid and let things pass by,
 Embrace the change, and with open wings fly.

Beauty is Like Oxygen

By Tara Trew

Beauty is a vital aspect of every person's life.
 For without the appreciation of beauty,
 one will feel nothing but strife.

Truly appreciating beauty
 should never be considered shallow or vain.
 For beauty is what keeps life
 from being dry and mundane.

Beauty can be a way
 to determine the most attractive,
 But without this comparative consideration,
 to nothing special would our emotions be reactive.

Is it not beauty that makes one smile,
 that brings a little joy?
 Is it not beauty that makes one remember when he was just a little boy.

Without beauty the world would be exceedingly dull and boring.
 However, when beauty is added to the picture,
 the result is more alluring.

So stop thinking it is superficial to consider an outward veneer.
 Because finding joy in something one sees should not be ridiculed, but to oneself held dear.

All around us,
 beauty exists to be admired.
 The way it warms the heart,
 one will never grow tired.

How can a person say
 that beauty is not essential?
 When on our emotions it can be extremely influential.

Tara Trew is a senior at Bentworth High School. She enjoys playing fast-pitch softball, shopping and talking on the phone. Her variety of musical taste includes: the Beatles, Jimi Hendrix, Nirvana and Jewel. Tara is a Green Bay Packers fan, but will never forget that she lives in Pittsburgh. An active member of student government, Tara is president of her senior class and a member of Student Council. She is a two year member of the National Honor Society and has competed with the Academic League for four years. After graduation, Tara plans to attain a degree in International Business and Spanish from Pennsylvania State University.

