

Current time & temperature

| | |
|-------------|------------|
| Home | News |
| Sports | Business |
| Food | Close-up |
| Life | Opinion |
| IntelHealth | Weather |
| Classified | Obituaries |
| Search | Contact Us |
| Local Info | Services |

Links

Job Finder
Local jobs and resumes

2001 The Sun Journal,
a Freedom
Communications
Company

SUN Journal

on the web

New Bern, North Carolina

Monday, May 28, 2001

'Time heals all wounds'

By Ken ReCorr
Sun Journal Staff

On the night of January 21, 1991, an American military convoy halted its progress in the endless darkness of the Kuwaiti desert. PFC Bobby M. Ware, who had just turned 21-years-old the month before, climbed out of the passenger side of a Hummvee to switch places with his friend and platoon-mate, the vehicle's driver. Perhaps wiping his brow to cool himself in the dusty, breezy night, Ware may have looked to a sky filled with different stars wondering when he would next be home.

Full Story

Poor schools targeted for state's help

By Barry Smith
Freedom Raleigh Bureau

Eastern Carolina events, photos, chats and You Report it

Now serving Jacksonville, Kinston and New Bern areas.

Designed the 1998 - 2001 version of the web site.