Together we carry our world safely into the future

Humans have arrived at the end of natural evolution. We are in a transition phase to consciously evolve humanity to its desired destiny now. You have two ways:

1. Observing evolution that happens around you as a spectator,
2. Or active participation in evolution on Earth.

Active participation guides you towards your real human rights as a global citizen:

Your first and fundamental human right is to lead our planet

Take it, to make a beautiful Earth

Or leave it to governments and watch this world suffer

Leaders have the power to turn our planet into a wasteland, or into a beautiful garden.

Leaders have the power to turn humans into liabilities or assets.

As a leader, you decide if your environment will be a wasteland with liabilities or a beautiful garden with assets.

Earth and humanity needs you as a leader!

Welcome leader!

We have been waiting for you, please make yourself comfortable and feel at home...

As you know, our world is violent, constantly at war, severely fragmented and needs to be mended. The fragments have many rulers of nations, religions, institutions, enterprises and other groups, who are in competition with each other and mainly concerned about the benefits of their own group. None of those rulers has the authority or mandate to govern the world, leaving Earth without a valid administration. To take care of this undesirable situation you are invited to participate in a new, more just global civilization framework and lead our world into the future.

Because of our leaderless world, it is inevitable for some kind of global governance or administration to emerge eventually. So, you may well take the initiative, and start with it now. You have more benefits if you take the lead along the right way, instead of following those who are in power now, along the wrong way into a death end, causing more unnecessary pain to life on Earth.

You will be equipped with authority of the majority to take responsibility for all humans and their environment once the critical mass of leaders has been reached.

As a leader, you have to coordinate and focus humanity's random activity towards building a beautiful and exciting Earth. To be successful, you guide all activities by natural, universal laws.

Your initial task is to build or modify a model of our desired existence, an administration model that will gain majority acceptance. You publish this model on the Internet for other leaders to evaluate and take part in evaluating their models. Through this interaction of many citizens, an average model will evolve. This will be the most accepted administration model to orient and focus all humans. After global acceptance of this model, you compare it with reality and initiate activities to eliminate differences between this Global Civilization Model and reality.

Please, help humanity to disentangle itself from the useless mace it has created so far

Your present situation is governed by the Liability Triad

The three pillars of our society are commerce, government and religion, with commerce as the dominating one. Each of them may be good in its own merit when separate, but in combination, they are a plague to humanity.

Commerce, government and religion keep you as a liability, instead of nourishing you into an asset.

Your government did turn you into a number to be controlled, commerce made you a money addict and the church says: "Yes, please submit yourself to that!" Do you feel OK in such a situation?

Each of the three entities above has its simple, crucial core laws to follow:

First law of commerce: Take more than you give. Make a profit!

Second law: Exploit your environment and brainwash your customers - grab resources and dump products

Third law: If people attack you with the truth, pull the wool over their eyes - use PR deception

Don't follow those laws and your business will be liquidated

First law of government: Control whatever you can control. Leave nothing uncontrolled!

Second law: Use structural violence to keep yourself in power - maintain military and police forces to intimidate those who are against you

Third law: Establish laws to prove yourself right and essential - legislate to your own benefit

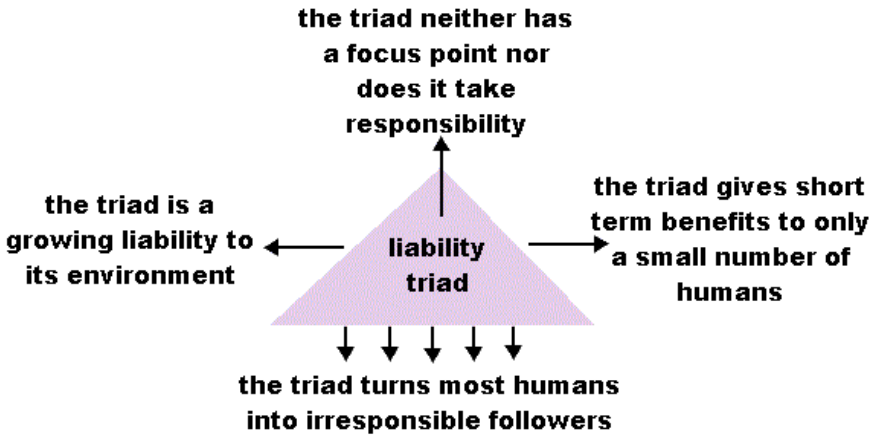

Don't follow those laws and people will administer themselves without your government

First law of religion: Submit yourself to the great one. Be humble!

Second law: Make more believers, slyly tell them they are stupid, only God knows - promote your holy mission

Third law: Take their intelligence and own opinion away, leave only an empty shell - to fill them with your fairy tales and strategic lies

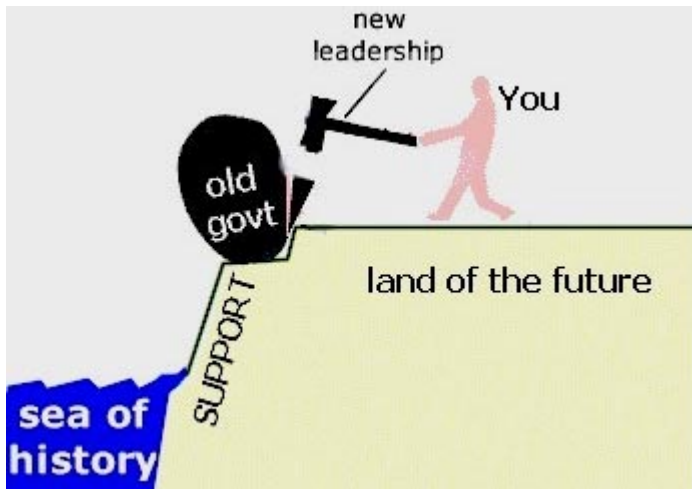

If you don't follow those laws, people make up their own mind and your religion will disappear

The Liability Triad is a model of our present civilization that needs to be changed to assure a more pleasant survival of humanity.

Today humanity is in a transition phase where authority and power is shifting from male domination (Liability Triad) to female guidance (new leadership). Males who cling to domination and females who have been coerced into a dominating role delay the transition to a more humane society with less violence.

The complexity of the 21st century has outstripped the capacity of governments. The mental processing power needed to prevent further destruction and lift humanity out of the commercial dump is not available from present-day governments. This is where you come in, to supply additional processing power. In return, you will get more confidence in yourself, peace in the world, and a general increase in wellbeing.

Support has been eroding under Old Governments over time. It is easy for you to wedge Old Governments off balance with New Leadership. Do it for the sake of your offspring. Hand over a nice, intact world to your children.

You are a conscious life form of planet Earth. This gives you the natural right to take responsibility for Earth.

It gives you the natural right to communicate with all conscious life forms to coordinate activities amongst each other for mutual benefits of all.

Global Leadership is your only tool today to make the difference. Take responsibility for Earth and go with us into a safe, exciting future, - do not waste your time with obsolete governments.

Don't wait until an institutionalized committee tells you what to do and how to conform in a New World Order that will be imposed on you by big brother. Don't wait until corporations have you caught in their globalization trap that requires you to financially worship the wealthy elite. Take your own initiative and put your opinion forward on how you would like to live in a global society. Don't follow institutions – demand that institutions follow you (the people).

Societies have been advancing from more centrally controlled to less control and coercion. This is a fundamental aspect of our modern society. Today most people agree on the benefit of democratic systems where they are allowed to voice their opinion reasonably well; which is a step ahead of military / religious dictatorships and monarchies.

The fake democracy we are having now is already a good breeding ground for a real democracy where people speak for themselves instead of delegating their opinion¹. It is up to you to demand your responsibility within a coming global democracy. Why do you take bronze if you could get gold?

Mission Statement

We are a global force that resides at no particular place, evenly dispersed around this planet. We are guided by reality; we are always looking for the truth.

We observe the increase of destructive forces within our society to the detriment of life on this planet. Air, land, water, life and people everywhere falling prey to those destructive elements.

Our mission is to find, pinpoint and replace those destructive elements with nourishing ones.

You wonder who is speaking to you?

It is your consciousness, an integral part of humanity's spirit.

*The world is neither for sale nor to destroy
It is here for the people to enjoy*

We envision ourselves as cohesive group of living entities adapting symbiotically to our host planet. Evolving towards our destiny as an interdependent living biomass. This evolution can only be accomplished by increasing wellbeing. Increased wellbeing will set free the immense power of humanity's intellect. Activities derived from our freed intellect will steer us towards our natural evolution target.

Humanity's intellect based on the interlocked mind of all people could solve all our problems easily - but the evil forces within humanity fear it. Those violent forces prevent interlocking to accumulate more destructive power for themselves.

The greatest treasure on Earth is one of the most disregarded resources: The human mind.

*Unfortunately, it is not utilized.
It is even damaged and discarded by coercive civilization structures*

What is Global Leadership?

Global Leadership is leadership by heart not by structural violence nor by money. It does not depend on the amount of violence or money you can accumulate. Those who rule now have based their leadership on violence and money instead of intelligence.

How is Global Leadership different from other forms of government?

New Leadership

will overgrow Old Governments

- no human sacrifices anymore
- all people are welcome to contribute their brainpower for leadership

Old Governments

work towards their extinction

- humans are sacrificed in the name of a belief (war) to please the god of greed
- only a few "chosen ones" use their brainpower to govern

- the origins of destruction can be easily found; destructive habits are reversed
- global leadership
- tendency towards opening sensors, improving interactive communication
- dual monetary system makes unemployment impossible
- language is tuned to increase understanding between all humans
- nourishing element will be everywhere visible: massive reforestation, massive activity into nourishing technology
- humans will be nourished to become leaders (assets)
- slow, intelligent decision making based on love and understanding
- crime will be reduced over time to insignificant levels
- you'll see strangers for no apparent reason smile at you
- more money available for an efficiently working society. No idle resources because of insufficient money
- power of commerce to broadcast into the private homes of individuals will be reduced
- power of broadcasters to nourish children with violence will be reduced
- separation of human administration and commerce
- the ritual of destruction and waste is faithfully followed by the Liability Triad
- national governments
- reduced communication, secrecy, censorship and propaganda
- single monetary system results in a mix-up of government and commerce
- language is used as a status symbol, reducing communication
- destructive element is everywhere visible: massive deforestation, massive activity into destructive technology
- humans are manipulated to be followers (liabilities)
- quick decision making governed by stupidity, violence and own profit
- in the absence of war crime is increasing
- you have strangers with frozen faces around you
- artificial shortage of money creates global inefficiency
- commerce manipulates individuals with ads in their own homes
- kids learn violent conflict resolution from contemporary broadcast contents and become violence addicts
- government & commerce intrinsically entangled

- focus object will be the Global Civilization Model
- more life stabilizes weather, - milder climate
- you'll know what you are living for
- every human will benefit himself and its environment to his fullest potential
- society allocates status symbols for those who participate in activities of growth and nourishment
- every human is bound by only a few laws and some guidelines
- there will be an increasing amount of pleasure in your life
- flexible, evolving administration of society
- you are responsible for yourself, for your fellow humans and for your environment
- you can be proud of yourself to achieve benefits for humanity and this planet
- you are safe and welcome anywhere, anytime around the globe
- preventing the cause of violence and destruction
- GL wraps itself around you to make you feel good
- no global focus but party politics and national, commercial advantage
- less life destabilizes weather, - harsher climate
- you can't find a particular purpose in your life
- billions of malnourished, idle and underutilized humans roam this planet
- society promotes status symbols for destruction (win-lose scenario)
- humans are entangled in a myriad of laws sprawling around this planet
- pleasure for most of us is declining
- rigid structure of government stuck immovable in time
- you are responsible to make money and live to the laws of your country
- you don't know exactly what you are struggling for on Earth
- you have to fear for your life in many places
- treating the symptoms of violence and destruction
- Old Governments point at you to make you feel guilty

Guidelines to become a leader

- Think about how a global society should look like
- Allocate some thoughts to leadership.
- Feel and act like a leader, not like a follower
- Communicate your vision of a just global society to as many humans you can reach
- Think about what activities are necessary to enable a smooth transition from present governments to a global leadership administration

All this should not take much time out of your daily routines.

The first step is to recognize your fundamental human right to lead - no matter what people and institutions around you may think about it. Once you feel your responsibility as a leader, you communicate to other humans that you would like to cooperate with them at the same level - as an equal to take responsibility for the whole planet. To lead Earth, you depend on your leader friends who have the same position as you.

You are not 'chosen' like a leader of present groups. You are a leader out of your own initiative.

The existing rulers are not leaders of humanity or Earth they just rule a group of people with a particular belief system. They only rule over a certain jurisdiction and population. That's why their power is diminishing while your power is increasing.

Keep in mind though, present rulers have to prove that they are superior and you inferior. This results in domination to keep you deliberately submissive and stupid. By becoming a leader yourself, you will lose this artificial stupidity and submissiveness. No matter where you are in the world or what status and position you have, think and act like a leader. No one can prevent you from doing that.

Be assured, this simple act of feeling like a leader over our planet and its inhabitants will make the difference between a 'business like usual world' and the world behind an approaching paradigm shift, where people can trust each other again.

If you take part in Global Leadership, you represent:

- ◆ yourself
- ◆ humanity
- ◆ life and
- ◆ planet Earth

If you like to spend more time and activity on it you may:

[1] Force your government with systematic aggressive communication to recycle all military resources into something useful for humanity

[2] Lobby governments or request from the UN to make free servers available for public use and enable Internet communication for everyone.

[3] Get in touch with people contributing to Global Leadership or who support it. Join the Global Leadership WebRingⁱⁱ if you have a web page: <http://nav.webring.yahoo.com/hub?ring=glead>

[4] Participate in building the Global Civilization Model and promote new leadership:

Design your own model or modify an existing Glo-Ci-Mo

Follow your own way how to evolve as a leader and promote leadership. For instance, make global leader hearts (badges, representing the symbol of leadership by heart) as a gift for people.

[5] Take good care about your health and the health of this planet.

[6] As a leader, you have to know the three most important entities from your point of view:

- How your body works
- How your mind works
- How our world works

And the interrelationship between the 3 of them

You need to have a full understanding of Earth and its inhabitants including your body and mind by using the current sensory system. Explaining anything without this understanding undermines your credibility.

[7] Analyze the facts of your environment and think about the relationships between those facts.

Take a sharp look at reality don't get your vision blurred by belief-systems or group-think

[8] Discover the relationship between your activities and the wellbeing of this planet and its inhabitants.

[9] Make sure nothing (no person, structure, belief system or ritual) dominates you.

[10] Clean up the superstition rubbish periodically that may have clogged up your mind.

Even though the system of GL doesn't encourage fans, it may happen during your leadership that you accumulate followers. Believers and followers are liabilities and have a negative influence on the Ring of Truth. Nourish your followers (that includes your offspring) as efficient as possible so that they become leaders. Feel free to obtain assistance from other leaders if there are too many followers and this nourishing process is beyond your capabilities.

Each human has its unique destiny. Open your sensors to discover your destiny and aim towards it. On your way, you will find things, no one has discovered. This is the real power of Global Leadership, as a leader you are supposed to discover, you are not supposed to follow doctrines.

If you have been nourished well and continue to nourish yourself well, you will at some stage in your life flower. It is a mental flower, a beneficial idea. You communicate this idea to other humans and their activity will adjust to increase the wellbeing for humanity and this planet. Acting as a Global Leader naturally releases your mental powers.

Every human has the potential to flower. Many have flowered in history. Through Global Leadership, humanity will be immersed in creative flowers.

Before enlightenment, you believe in something.

After enlightenment,
you just know it!

It is necessary to strengthen the relationship between the people worldwide as defense against predator institutions. As a leader you never attack or criticize people. If a person behaves detrimental with negative effects on the wellbeing of humans, use your intelligence to identify the ritual or structure that made this person behave so, and modify or eliminate that ritual or civilization structure. Only target detrimental structures of society, to modify or dismantle them together with affected humans and your fellow leaders; never target people who are controlled by those structures' rituals. Bear in mind:

A shortage of love and an overdose of greed can make any human insane

It is important to understand that heavy indoctrination within institutions brainwashes humans front to back. People in those positions, who have been indoctrinated over a long time of their life, to feel superior by pushing detrimental organizations into the future, need mental and spiritual counseling, not hostility or even violence unleashed against them. Dropping down the hierarchy is seen as a disaster by dominators that needs to be avoided by all means.

Dominating rulers want to be unquestionable, that's why they create defensive structures. Over a long time male dominators have build many defense structures to protect domination/ submission relationships. People who slip into those structures become invincible to criticism brought forward against them. Fragmenting their subordinates is the most important task of dominators to keep themselves in power. Fragmenting a problem into a myriad of particles is a preferred strategy by dominators to make it unsolvable. Fragmenting problems to increase their complexities is a handy tool to prevent their solution, to keep them 'alive' in order to:

- have a job to do
- protect own incompetence
- maintain taboos
- keep the status quo
- make people stupid

Nevertheless, scrutinize authority and coercive structures only, not humans who are obliged to follow procedures. So, take it easy on people because they are only the end-product of society structures, organizations, corporations, man-made rules and rituals. Try to enlighten dominators. Use the truth to penetrate their shield of superstition and group-think that keeps them in the darkness. In the end, when they crawl out underneath their defensive armor, they turn out to be just one of us.

Lead Earth, life and humanity

Earth did a great job leading us through natural evolution. Now we are in the transition phase to take leadership over Earth. In the past, we have been reacting in response to the Earth-forces. Now, Earth is gradually responding more to the force of humanity. So far, we are not sure what that response will be. Therefore, it is our responsibility to anticipate the result of the three interdependent forces of planet, life and humanity. We have to take leadership and guide those forces towards a stable equilibrium that is beneficial for our own evolution.

Driving the planet is just like driving a car - everyone can learn it. With simplified controls, every citizen can sit on the steering wheel of planet Earth. (To put it better: we more likely will use a mouse instead of a wheel)

Make friends with all humans around the world

You may feel at home globally because the people around the world are mainly good, only those who are driven by malicious institutions and coercive society structures pose a threat to you and other living things. Collaborate with other peaceful humans and destroy those vicious structures to set humanity free from the postmodern oppressive system. Then you have true friends everywhere. The more people you contact the more likely the idea of equality and responsibility succeeds and the sooner the wellbeing of our planet will increase.

The key to success is communication.

When you feel and know that you want to lead this planet, and not follow rulers, you communicate this desire to other people. Communication is necessary to generate activities and change.

If you want something to happen or change, you have to communicate. When you are ready to communicate with all people on this planet, just let the people know. Once everybody is ready and willing to communicate we will develop agreements between us; agreements on how to structure the global society. Once we agree on a better society, we all work together to implement it.

Invitation for leaders

Greetings...

This is an invitation for new leadership.

Our world has many leaders of nations, religions, institutions, enterprises and other groups. All of those leaders are mainly concerned about the benefits of their own group and none of them has the authority to lead planet Earth.

To take care of this undesirable condition, humanity needs you to participate in Global Leadership to guide our world into the future. Global Leadership is a seed about to germinate and grows with your intelligence. It will equip you with authority of the majority to take responsibility for humanity and its environment once the critical mass of leaders has been reached. As a leader, you will focus humanity's random activity to build a beautiful and exciting

Earth. To be successful, you guide all activities by universal, natural laws.

To create a Global Civilization Model of our desired existence, is your leadership task. You present this model to other leaders for evaluation, and take part in evaluating their models. Through this interaction an average model will evolve. You compare this average model with reality, and initiate activities to eliminate differences between the model and reality.

It is easy to join in Global Leadership, and gradually take more responsibility. Look at those mirror sites on the web for an introduction:

<http://members fortunecity.com/love1133/>

<http://www.angelfire.com/hi4/loveandpeace/>

<http://www.geocities.com/Athens/Atlantis/4124/>

This may be the most important information in your life. No other information exists presently that can turn you into a leader of our planet, solve most current problems and guide evolution on Earth. Take your time to evaluate it with intuition. You may need from days to months until you are fully aware of its implications.

In future, when you have found your destiny within your leadership, when you have confirmed your connection with humanity, life and this planet, you are ready to act.

The laws of those larger entities will guide your activity. Sensors for natural laws reside in every person. Open your sensors with love to communicate effectively with those larger entities that designed you. If you are controlled by violence, domination and rituals, you will not be able to communicate well with those entities. In addition, you inevitably will go against their laws, to the detriment of yourself and your environment. Why swim against the stream of life?

Life is so much stronger than any human is. Life will move on to its destiny with or without humans. It has been growing on this planet for billions of years and never died. It found that its growth is constrained by this planet. It made humans to remove that constraint. You are one of the tools for life to propagate itself and grow throughout the universe.

When you are convinced about the benefits of your leadership, communicate this information to others and invite them into global leadership. When you translate this message into other languages, modify the words but keep the meaning. Then, with the agreement of your fellow leaders, nourish humans from liabilities into assets. Lead your offspring and followers to gradually change their activity from exploitation domination, to nourishment creation. So that they become leaders and carry-on your nourishing.

activity. The result will be beneficial to you, to other humans, to life and our planet.

When there are more leaders than followers, humanity itself will change from a liability into an asset. That means, humanity is progressing from a malfunctioning life-destructing entity, to a better functioning life nourishing entity, proceeding towards guided evolution on this planet. Humans have arrived at the end of natural evolution. Together, we all have to consciously evolve humanity to its desired destiny now. Your opinion and actions are an essential part of this destiny.

Whatever you do, do it in the name of the universe, because you are a part of the universe. Do it in the name of life, because you are a part of life. Do it in the name of humanity, because you are a part of humanity. Do it to increase your own wellbeing and the wellbeing of life's descendants in future. Guide all your activities with love and nourishment.

Intelligence and love are the fertile ground, for this information to grow. This message will shrivel and die on stupidity and greed. If you conform to the group-think of the Liability Triad, you will throw it into the trash, making waste grow on this planet instead of life.

This message is indestructible and will always be with you. It will reproduce itself until it dies a natural death once its mission is accomplished. Global leadership (or a similar successor) will not disappear anymore; it can only be delayed by ignorance.

...please, donate intelligence to evolve our obsolete civilization structures, become a leader and benefit humanity.

You can accept this invitation, whenever you ready.
Now, within days, or within years. It does not expire.

Thank you.

may the spirit of humanity guide you and protect you with love.

Human fruits who ripened on the tree of life drop to other planetary systems into the universe

The following chapters give a reorientation from the culture of death to value life again. To discover the meaning of life and act in its best interest

Life on Earth

If we could see as far into the future, as far as we can see into the past, we would realize that life is divine evolution from its primitive origin billions of years ago, into the living shell that surrounds Earth now, streaming from our planet into the universe, towards a mysterious existence in future.

Presently human life can lead to two extremes: [1] living to the fullest and don't care, while on the other side, [2] life means starvation until death finally comes to the rescue. In both cases, well-being is limited because both extremes know about each other. Probably neither of them is aware that civilization structures are responsible for this discrepancy. However, when humans takes responsibility for the development of humanity towards more well-being, people come to understand their interdependency, and life will get a different meaning.

Life is about support, trust, dependencies and communication

1. Our planet is supported by the sun's gravity and light. What happens when the sun is removed? Our planet would drift aimlessly in cold space. We feel better if we know that we can depend on the sun.
2. The planet supports the biosphere. What happens when the planet is removed? There would be no life. We feel better if we know that we can depend on our planet.
3. The living biomass of this planet supports my body. What happens if the biosphere is removed? My body would die. I feel better if I know that I can trust and depend on the biosphere.

4. My body supports my wellbeing. What happens when my body suffers violence? My wellbeing would degrade. I feel better if I know that nothing can harm my body.

My wellbeing is the last instance. I want to live a life of wellbeing; that's what I am aiming for. This is a common desire of all human beings and it requires that the chain of support, trust and dependencies is intact and all entities are able to communicate well with each other. Most important, I have to take responsibility for this chain, in the name of my wellbeing.

The status of wellbeing is communicated between humans. Communication results in human activities. Depending on the type of communication and activity the level of wellbeing is either increased or decreased. Violent activities decrease wellbeing. Nourishing activities increase wellbeing.

As the most recent form of life we are not sure if we originated from an energy, info, material mixture from Earth, - that the interplay between material and energy created the necessary information storage (RNA, DNA) where life is based on, or if we have been mysteriously created somewhere else and seeded from space.

Although we do not understand our origins or destiny, people can see that life does things on purpose, life is not a blind watchmaker, as some believe. Reestablish your connection with life and it will let you know what it wants from you. Shield yourself with man-made structures and diseases from life and you will never find your destiny.

To understand life better it is necessary for you to think back in time to find our common connections.

Once you can visualize our common ancestor and understand that we are all related, you feel much more at ease with life and people.

The right combination and amount of living things, and their relationship on our planet, is crucial for human wellbeing. Western civilization focuses mainly on non-living things, technology and wealth to increase humanity's wellbeing in vain.

DNA reconstruction and manufacturing plus enlightenment will be the tools to steer evolution. Soon you can alter DNA to easily change the physical characteristics of life. You can develop memes to swiftly change the mental characteristics of humanity. Those things are just around the corner. Before long, both of them will be available for every human.

Do you want to take the steering wheel or do you want to be driven by life?

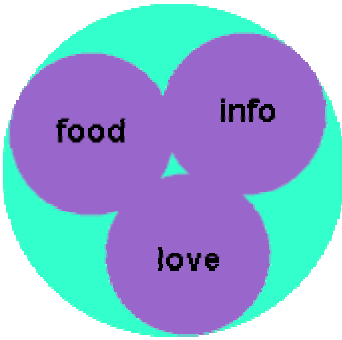

There is certainly no duty to drive (to evolve consciously) it depends on your own decision. In case you want to drive, you need to be clear about the destiny - not only yours, but humanity's.

As our vision of reality gets clearer, we realize that we drive. We are driving through time to an unknown destiny. We anticipate what that destiny could be but we are not sure yet. Our aided and unaided sensors have not supplied us with sufficient information to draw conclusions. To become clearer about our destiny, we need to probe deeper into reality and our very existence on this planet. To find our purpose for being; - the purpose for the existence of life.

Put yourself into the shoes of life. Imagine what you would like to achieve if you were the billion-year-old entity of life:

What would be your real intention on planet Earth?

Our essential nourishing activity

Supplied in a suitable climate, the main components of human nourishment are food, love and information

Human nourishing cycle

Nourishing and being nourished is the most substantial activity humans undertake in their lifetime. Amazingly, this important activity does not show up in accounting, nor significantly in economy. Even governments do not realize it is the most significant task.

Nevertheless, this task made us what we are. Humans are the animals with the longest nourishing time. This investment of time into nourishment evolved us from animals to humans. Expanding time for nourishment will evolve us into superior humans assuring our survival. Spending more time nourishing our environment will result in an increasingly pleasant surrounding for us. Reducing this time, just to take part in a destructive 'rat race', very likely devolves us back into ferocious animals with super-brains, destined for violent combat and extinction.

Commerce says, this nourishing activity is not useful and can't be rewarded. Nourishing your baby does not make a profit according to accounting principles. The accounting structure that drives banks and commerce tells you to beat the competition by developing something in a hurry to make a profit. In addition, this profit has to be made in the quickest possible time. To invest in a new rainforest where the wellbeing pay off starts to come in within millennia would be impossible for banks because they are based on a faulty wealth extraction system. When banks give you money for your commercial activity, they don't care what you do, as long as you can give them back more money, as soon as possible. How you extract value from your environment is your business. You allowed extracting value by exploitation of nature, cheating people, or legal theft, just to show a profit in your accounting sheets. This obsolete accounting ritual is at the core of our environmental degradation and destruction.

Banks are not driven by intelligence
Banks are driven by greed
This greed turns our planet into a liability

Accounting does not know

1. That nourishment generates intelligence & ideas
2. That intelligence & ideas generate activity
3. That activity generates money/wealth

The origin of wealth is hidden away from Accounting.

Downfall of accounting

Accounting has no clue about the spirit

Accounting can't put an appropriate value on life

It can account non-living things better

And counts only money the best

Accounting should be principally used to fuse money into the system generating activities that increase wellbeing. But accounting is used to squeeze money out of the system by favoring activities that accumulate wealth.

The accounting ritual is a tool for commerce that is frequently used. But it is a defective tool that produces inefficiency, destruction and waste. Accounting money the 'wrong way round' is wrecking this planet.

To resolve those problems, humanity has to devise a place for commerce to flourish without harming humans and the environment. It is essential that commerce moves into a clear-cut sub-sphere of humanity. It is also essential that humanity controls commerce - not commerce controlling humanity, as we have it today.

SEED NOURISHMENT AND EVERYONE WILL HARVEST BENEFITS

SEED EXPLOITATION TO MAKE YOU AND YOUR GROUP GAIN AT THE EXPENSE OF OTHERS AND EVERYONE WILL HARVEST DESTRUCTION

(We and the environment are increasingly harvesting destruction today)

Managerial wisdom

Defensive companies based on fighting and segmentation reduce communication have decreasing achievement resulting in extinction (liquidation)

Open companies based on nourishment and cooperation enhance communication have increasing achievement resulting in prosperity

Global Leadership gives you the opportunity to apply this wisdom to the super-groups of humanity and life to achieve more prosperity through cooperation and nourishment

What do you think, is nourishing the answer to your problems?

- Is nourishing the answer to your family's problems?
- Is nourishing the answer to your commercial problems?
- Is nourishing the answer to humanity's problems?
- Is nourishing the answer to our environmental problems?

Try and nourish your own family, to see how it works. Gradually increase nourishing activity and reduce controlling activity. You will be surprised how much love and goodwill you receive in return.

Apply it in your commercial enterprise. If you have the power, shift activities from controlling people to nourishing people. You will achieve an increasing amount of long-term benefits and earn more credibility for your leader position.

Communicate your success to others if you are convinced that it works

Nourish your body

You have an animal body growing for about 20 years, and an invisible spirit that grows all your life. Both of those elements combined make you a human. Each is dependent on the other. They effect each other to lift you up into wellbeing, or drag you down to misery. Your body is separate from all other humans while your brain activity intermingles with other peoples' mental activity within the spirit of humanity. The spirit of humanity can lift or drag you without your consent.

multiplying from one cell into trillions with increasing capabilities.

You acknowledge that not only more exists but also take responsibility for it.

Your animal body, like all animals, needs natural nourishment to flourish. Observe how animals nourish their body and pick the most beneficial elements for the nourishment of your own body. Animals have not been brainwashed by commerce to alter their nourishing habit to the detriment. Animals in their wild, original habitat, not polluted by humans, display much less disease than humans.

You are nourished by life that gets in touch with your body

Substitute dead substances for your own detriment

Any substance used for food or cleaning should be as close to life as possible. The longer it has been dead the greater the likelihood of harm to your body. Avoid man made products for your nourishment because of their side effects and get food and cleaning substances for your body unaltered from nature. However, our natural living environment gets more and more destroyed and replaced by “dead” man-made environment, making it increasingly harder to find nutritious, healthy fresh-food.

Simple guideline for your food

Commercial or academic hype, either for junk food or 'health' food will make you really confused. But it is easy to find food that is beneficial for you:

- Eat newly harvested food that smells good and tastes good as much as you can
- Eat processed and manipulated food as little as you can
- Add vitamin/mineral supplements if economic reasons make you eat processed food

The longer ago food has been harvested, and the more manufacturing processes have destroyed it, the more harmful food is to you.

Foods are manufactured to lengthen shelf life and shorten your life

Your instinct guides you to find the right natural fresh food, but it cannot help you with manufactured food. On the contrary: all your cravings for manufactured foods are detrimental to your health

Westernized supermarket food, far removed from life (long time dead and thoroughly manipulated) is hazardous and even poisonous for human consumption. It has a strongly negative impact on humanity's evolution. Natural organic farming is attacked by the mentally diseased who endorse mass-produced dead food. Destroyed food like most things in the western civilization is the result of systemic violence.

Over decades, cheap mass-produced processed food turns people into ugly images of the human nature: fat - slow - and incapable of love – ready for hospitalization. The body degenerates into something despicable. So, take care that it won't happen to your body.

Your body needs activity for nourishment to grow strong. Exercise enhances your wellbeing; dormancy brings body decay. Your body thrives especially on those activities that are beneficial to your environment.

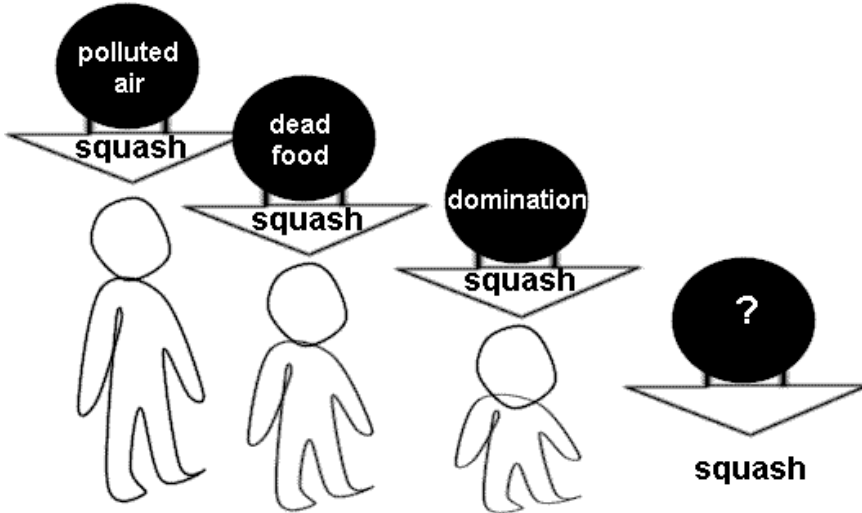

Body wellbeing

- Extraordinary power, sparkling mind
- Feeling energized
- Feeling good
- O.K.
- Feeling dull, worn out
- Headache
- Other body aches
- Minor diseases
- Major diseases & hospitalization
- Chronic illness
- death

Society makes you smaller than life.

Under pressure of contemporary society

The negative impact of modern society makes you feel weak, sick and insignificant. Your greatness is pushed down to the ground.

Things that drain your energy:

Air polluted by humans. Food destroyed by humansⁱⁱⁱ

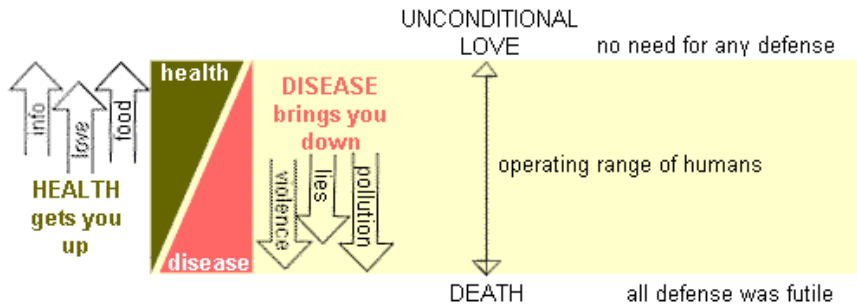

Laws enforced with violence. Information twisted by humans

All those inputs make your body weak. There is nearly no place on Earth where your body can thrive without those detrimental inputs. This uses an increased amount of energy for defense and less energy remains for productive, nourishing and creative tasks.

If you suffer under your man-made environment speak up against it. Humans are not meant to suffer. Although silly religious priests endorse such indirect human suffering. They still believe you have to suffer on Earth in order to go to heaven. (That's typical male dominator fabrications.)

To develop optimum health and full mental capabilities every human has to grow up within a fair and nourishing global civilization structure. Squashed health delays our evolution.

Human made activity and wellbeing inhibitors

Nourish your mind

Your spirit, soul or mind is like software that runs on your brain (hardware). It basically is information that can travel over space and through time. Your spirit is intrinsically interrelated with your culture and the spirit of humanity.

At the intersection of your instinct and the spirit of humanity your consciousness emerges. The unique interference pattern yields your distinctive personality

From an info perspective, the human brain is programmed by instinct from its depth back in the past, and the width by the spirit of humanity that encircles all human minds.

Your environment sends a never-ending stream of information to your mind. You select information according to truth or lies, according to fact or fiction. That incoming information stream builds up your knowledge and belief system. Truth and facts nourish your mind; lies and fiction are detrimental to your healthy spirit. The computer term garbage in - garbage out is also applicable to the human mind.

Use all sensors that you can utilize: the sensors of your body, your spiritual sensors and external technical sensors. Focus all sensors towards the truth, towards firsthand information. Avoid or screen information that has been processed by humans, as it contains distortions of the truth towards group-think. Avoid alcohol and other substances that alter your mind, the true powers of your spirit come from communication. Avoid religious addiction.

Once you're addicted you're done!
 Addiction is submission, submitting yourself to something that makes you ignore reality. Don't go into the domination - submission situation and lose out. If society makes you feel miserable, fight back - but with nonviolent, humane means. Communicate!
 That's the only way to improve our human situation. If you resolve problems with ignorance or violence you increase evil. Doing that makes you and your environment suffer more.

Reposition yourself physically and mentally, and change your perspective. Keep the speed of information that streams into your mind at a level that feels comfortable to you. Channel some of your activity into maintaining, improving and enhancing sensors.

Change in focus

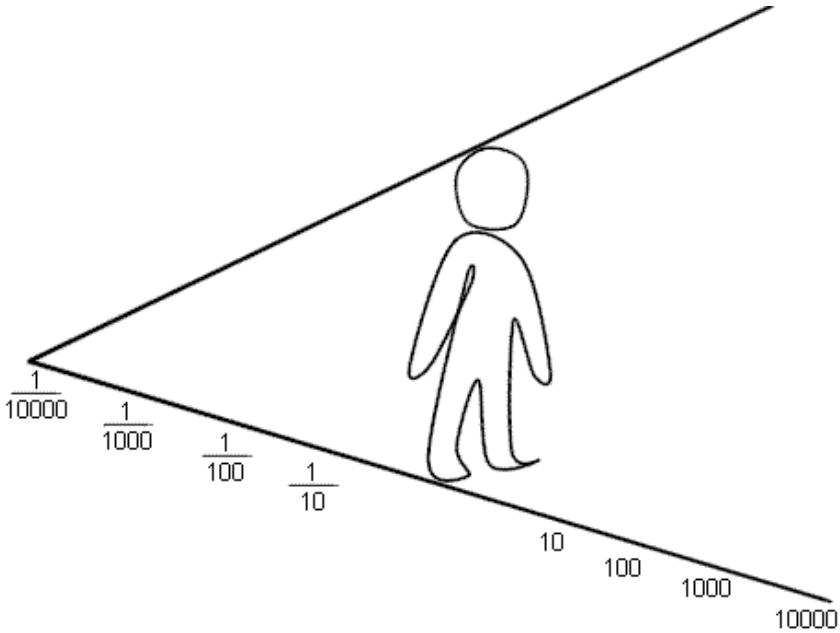

Use zooming to more clearly identify benefits or detriments of activities.

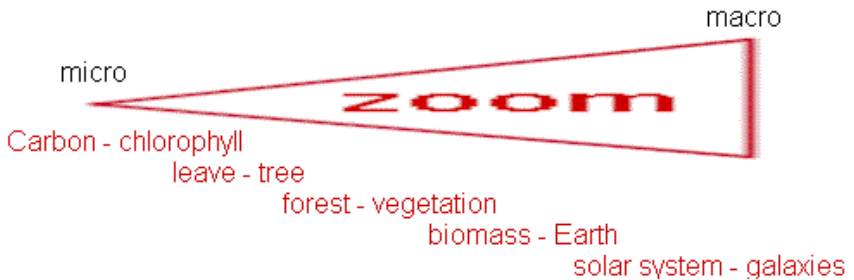

What is it and how to do it?

Zooming is not a natural habit of humans and needs to be practiced and learned. It was needed neither by animals nor by historic humans. However, the advance of sensor technology reveals an increasing number of micro and macro structures that need to be included into our more holistic relationship models. Prehistoric humans could do without zooming. Their world contained nearly no entities 10,000 times smaller or larger as themselves.

Early humans constructed the relationship model of their world, gods and their own bodies from similar sized items. Items they could recognize with their natural sensory system. Technical sensor systems nowadays allow people to zoom in and out of entities and models of about 1,000,000,000,000 times our own body size resulting in an astonishing increase of entities the world contains today. Further zooming will reveal even more entities in future. Discovering their true (not assumed) inter-relationships will be an immense task for humanity.

How does the tree relate to soil - bird - grass - people?

How does the leave relate to bark - roots - nutrients - heat?

How do the chlorophyll cells relate to water - solar radiation - DNA - pressure?

How does carbon relate to electromagnetic waves - oxygen - nitrogen - gravity?

How does the forest relate to savanna - streams - rain - animals - mountains?

How does vegetation relate to land - oceans - weather - fauna?

How does biomass relate to tectonic plates - air - temperature - ice age?

How does Earth relate to the other planets - solar energy - moon - galactic radiation?

How does the solar system relate to biomass - vacuum - hydrogen - gravity?

How do carbon atoms and galaxies relate to each other?

These are some of the questions if you are looking at a tree.

- 10 years ago people were not very familiar to interact with atoms
- 100 years ago they were not very familiar with molecular interactions
- 1000 years ago - cell interactions
- 10000 years - body-organ interactions

To observe and document

Humans send probes into cells and molecules, and smash atoms to observe microscopic entities; they send probes around the earth and solar system, to get an increasingly better view of the universe; widening our picture of reality.

Humans use most of their time to interact with materials close to their own size. Usually you don't interact with entities 10000 times larger or smaller as yourself, or time entities 100000 times larger or smaller than a day, which are difficult to observe for human body sensors. However, you have to widen your horizon and include new out of scale discoveries within your holistic picture of our world.

Your IQ

You are more intelligent with your low measured IQ of 60 if you communicate peace and actively benefit humanity than a 'genius' with a measured IQ of 180 who specializes in producing nuclear weapons or who specializes in producing millions of brain-washed followers.

IQ tests show your proficiency in linear communication only, your mastery of manipulating words and numbers in string form depicted on a sheet of paper.

Throughout recent history, mainly high IQ people have been selected for high office. Is there a correlation between the high IQ of administrators and the increasing destruction in our world?

Would the world be in a better shape if we had selected low IQ people into high office?

Or should leaders be selected according to their nourishing IQ instead of strategic IQ?

If you feel bad even though you nourish your body and mind, the environment is suffering and transmits this information to you. You can shield yourself from that by narrowing or shutting down your receiver system. Decreasing your sensitivity protects your personal integrity.

That happens increasingly in cities around the world. People becoming more and more insensitive, so far, as to block out sensitivity to life completely, not hesitating to give certain life forms harsh treatment.

Love is a combination of body and mind nourishment. It is the opposite of violence. Violence makes you feel bad and separates, love makes you feel good and unites. You receive most nourishment from a physical and spiritual combination of love. Receiving spiritual love from many humans is likewise very nourishing. Physical love only, (sex) is the least nourishing nowadays. It is rarely unconditional because it has been heavily commercialized by the sex industry. More people try to ‘buy’ love because less love is freely available in an increasing violent society, while others have to ‘sell’ love to survive in our civilization of inequality. But whatever is bought and sold there, it’s definitely not love.

Love between male and female should tie the family together until the kids leave their parents to build their own family. Love is the essential glue that keeps families together, even when external forces try to brake it up. Other forces that try to hold families together are cultural customs, economic situation, peer pressure, religious directions, parental opinion etc. Or, by the perception of the partner as: winner, rich, beautiful, clever, most suitable. If a relationship is based on those aspects without ‘real’ or true love the relationship inevitably deteriorates and breaks down.

Because intact family relationships are important for the nourishment of descendants, the strength of love needs to be determined before marriage. The stronger this force the longer the bond lasts between people. But how do you determine the strength of this attraction? Science has a problem to measure this force because it doesn't show up on their instruments. For them, basically it doesn't exist, or it's not worthy research. So we left with human intuition and experience with love, to explain the strength of love.

You thrive in a loving environment. Many people that have grown up in a violent environment feel amazed and overwhelmed when they experience real love. Unconditional love makes you feel connected and opens your body's sensors wider than usual. This can make you an easy victim of aggressive forces. To guard against that, men have been historically conditioned by society to reduce their love in favor of violence.

The less love you get the more you feel disconnected from life. Love and life-connectivity are very much related and interdependent. A strong connection to life sets much love in yourself free, ready to dispose to other living beings.

The environment around us

You are surrounded by large and small entities that are all interrelated

- * life is a subset of the universe
- * humanity is a subset of life
- * you are a subset of humanity
- * your cells are a subset of you
- * molecules are a subset of your cells
- * atoms are subsets of molecules
- * force fields position all entities naturally in space and time

Your intelligence lets you reposition entities artificially in space and time

You are the center of the universe from your point of view. Everything that is external to your body is your environment. The activity of your body modifies your environment on a daily basis.

Earth, under the influence of our solar system, is a myriad of interrelated fuzzy systems. Categorizing those systems to make them comprehensible to all humans is of foremost importance. So far, disconnected model building, to explain our environment, resulted in considerable confusion amongst humans.

As humans, we are only the products, the end result of this environment. The planet has made us in such a way that we thrive best in this original environment. If we damage it, it will have adverse effects on us. The original, natural environment is like your best friend. If you harm your best friend, she might not be your friend anymore and you will feel bad.

Survival of the fittest means, to adapt to the environment in an intelligent way - not in a dominating, destructive way, trying to make the environment adapt. It does not mean the strongest and fittest survives but those who have an understanding of themselves and their circumstances to such an extent, that they can fit themselves perfectly into their environment enhancing themselves and their environment at the same time. The disconnected ones that have lost the understanding of their environment act usually irrational and destructive. Resulting in their removal because the greater system can exist better without them. There is no such thing that is separate on this planet because everything is interrelated. Any group that believes in their separateness does great harm to this planet. Institutions and people who are so specialized that they cannot relate their specific expertise to Earth and life anymore communicate their unrelated opinions disconnected from reality. The strong self repair function of life will overcome self-deceptive and self-destructive activities eventually, and a peaceful global population will gradually swallow the harmful western civilization.

Males have achieved the complete domination of Earth during the last centuries. It is time to call them back. If we continue with increased domination we only engage in useless destruction. Females are needed now to nourish this planet to higher levels of wellbeing and lead humanity to the next step of evolution.

Overpopulation

Where is the limit? 10 billion? 25 billion?

Overpopulation can't be expressed in numbers! Lets assume there are only five people in the world, in each continent one. They are divided, can see only their continent and can't get a clear picture of the world. Their activity is guided by destruction. And their habit is to fire nuclear warheads at each other. They have to convince the enemy that they are right and the enemy is wrong.

One thinks, the world has to be ruled by politicians, because people are utterly stupid and can't rule themselves.

The other believes Earth has to be ruled by nature, because nature is more important than humans are.

The third promotes the rule by god because we should all go to heaven.

The fourth wants the rule by technology, because technology will solve all future problems.

And the last believes in money and greed, because without money you are a "nothing" and greed achieves the quickest progress.

So, each of the five is determined to rule the lives of others according to their own belief by all means. Each of them feels that there is overpopulation, and four must die off to avoid the complete destruction of the world.

On the other side, we have a planet with 100 billion. They are intelligent, and orient themselves on reality - not on beliefs. Their activity is guided by nourishment. They love their environment and their fellow humans and solve problems with the combined intelligence of humanity not with weapons. They have a loving attitude towards all life. They create advanced, nourishing technology to maintain the wellbeing of humanity and the wellbeing of the environment easily. Instead of gigantic weapons, they have gigantic drifting cities on oceans. And each of them feels, there is not one too many.

Today we are somehow in between of those two hypothetical societies. And each of us has the freedom of choice to move either in the one or other direction. In the direction of narrow-minded domination submission relationships, or, freedom and equality for all. If we want to resolve the overpopulation 'problem' we have to be guided by one principle:

BE ACTIVE AND NOT DESTRUCTIVE

Overpopulation doesn't depend on math = numbers = 6 billion per world. It depends on feelings. On the feeling of wellbeing. How we relate to each other and our environment to feel well.

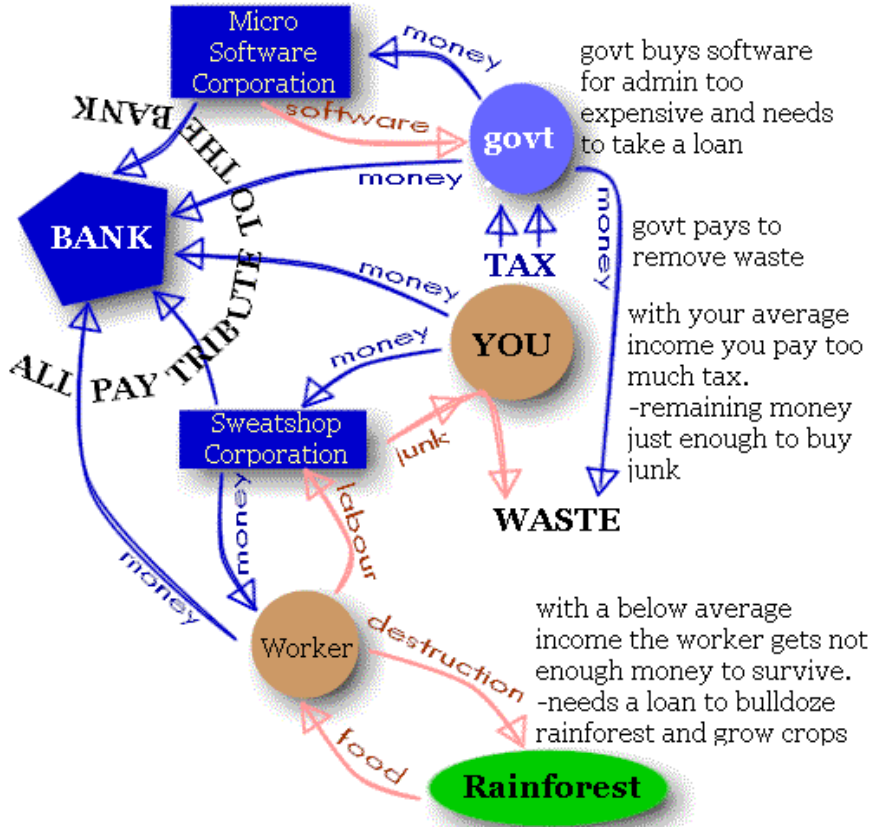

If we feel disconnected from the whole, hunted down by institutions in a competitive world of hundred million, we believe that there are too many people reducing our wellbeing.

If we feel loved in a cooperative world of hundred billion we are completely unaware of overpopulation problems.

Humans have been on the planet for hundreds of millennia. Only since a few centuries, humanity grows extremely well. Why are humans multiplying like never before in history? What is happening with humanity? What is life doing to us? What is life expecting from humanity? Is there a deeper reason, a particular destiny for humanity? A destiny we haven't realized yet?

The greatest environmental threat comes from organized, legalized destruction of life not from human population numbers

Humanity has too many activities that have a negative impact on life and not enough activities to grow and nourish life. Present technology is very life destructing. Our society, based on destructive technology, is a strong barrier to the natural growth of life on Earth.

Technology has been wrongly incorporated into the web of greed - now it needs to be wisely integrated into the web of life

For more than a million years humans have been preoccupied with decimating life. Their most important discovery to destroy life was fire. It was more powerful than any other tool invented by prehistoric humans. In dry conditions, it could lay bare large stretches of naked earth. Three-dimensional vegetation (trees) could be turned into two-dimensional grass - most suitable for human repositioning. Slash and burn to grow crops and fire hunting supported larger populations with food and decimated predator animals. The dry climate and human expansion replaced grass and crops by deserts that grew in size and became more arid. The cradle of Homo Sapiens devolved into the largest desert on Earth.

Groups of humans could not thrive on barenaked ground. Deprived of nourishment they were unable to maintain their wellbeing. Food, love and information became more deficient. Mass-produced grains replaced diverse fresh food. Love declined and gave way to greed because of competition for resources. The highly versatile information content of a 3dimensional living environment, showing complex interactivities, was replaced by a stale information flow from the dead desert, showing only interactivity between humans and their creations. Soon individuals developed hallucinations. Overheating, malnourished brains in a desert environment maintained their beliefs in prophets who were schizophrenic enough to communicate with nonexistent entities. Under pressure of a hostile environment, which had been destroyed by their forefathers, they drifted into imagination away from a harsh reality. Ritualistic population control measures through genital mutilation in infants started a vicious cycle of aggression. Systematically damaged humans required an increasing amount of violence to survive in a coercive hierarchical structure. This violent paternalistic structure was no match for outsiders who were easily driven into submission.

The mental disease moved faster than the environmental destruction to the north, spread by zealous missionaries. Nordic tribes and natives have been over-rolled by hallucinating civilizations. It made Nordic people so dizzy in their heads that they even burnt their women on stakes. Cultures were hunting each other down because they had to fight each other's hallucinations. This violence left not much time to care for Earth. Instead of making life grow, people made insanity grow. Not surprisingly, today's most powerful institutions grew out of this stock of mental cases because the expertise with violence established their status of power. Like in ancient times, the mental disease still brings prosperity to the rulers of civilizations at the cost of the population and nature. The mental disease, which grew the Sahara and other deserts, has spread, and is now on collision course with the whole planet.

Because of compounded, misguided human impact, Earth has presently a carrying capacity of less than a billion people in a humane way. The global mismanagement punishes the excess population into subsistence.

Today we realize that the foundation of evil is physical and mental malnourishment, which is predominantly caused by microclimate degradation. We know that ruined environments produce physical and mental deficiencies in humans. However, our insane high priests continue their destructive way with 'business as usual'. If a whole society is forced into hallucinations, from the cradle to the grave, mentally damaged humans will continue with devastation on our planet. This disease that affects civilizations is a considerable obstacle for humanity's wellbeing and evolution.

How do you know if you are infected with the mental disease?

1. You endorse and apply censorship knowingly and unknowingly
2. You use some form of violence to make others believe you are right.
3. You teach people your 'facts' instead of teaching them how to find facts for themselves.
4. You worship a human mental construct, like a god, invisible hand or other sort of deity. You may believe your deity ...
 - ...is more important than your environment
 - ...explains your existence
 - ...makes you immortal
 - ...helps you to escape harsh reality
5. You twist the truth to explain your mental disease as 'normal'
6. You belittle, degrade or destroy all things natural

7. You hide your body behind clothes and believe humans without clothes are bad or inferior
8. You rigorously censor images of natural humans not hiding behind clothes who show their reproductive activity
9. You vote for a government that needs weapons to prove itself against those who think different.
10. You need a pecking order to find your appropriate place in the universe

Those who feel uncomfortable looking at humans without clothes most likely suffer from a mental disease. That's those who are most likely to 'protect' others from the truth. Hiding behind clothes was one of the first forms of censorship, censoring body language.

Who will win the people or the BBBB complex?

The people want more freedom, a true democracy and a good relationship with their environment.

BBBB wants more money slaves who can work hard to increase the gap between the rich and the poor.

Will the powerful disconnected nuts in the end destroy this planet to satisfy their immense greed?

Or can people remove all destructive entities from humanity in time?

Natural Law

Western Civilization Law Function

Our legal system is the first layer of protection for the Wealth Extraction Machinery. Weapons are the second layer to make sure the Wealth Balloon grows in safety.

Our existing law can be traced back to the 'Hunters and Collectors' age. It makes sure you can grab whatever is not legally protected and defend it against other humans. Obviously, such laws can be applied to tribes but not to our global civilization. Even early civilizations disintegrated because law was mainly applied for wealth extraction purposes. To apply such laws to our global civilization would be obviously stupid. Nevertheless, disconnected humans ignore natural laws; they rather orient themselves on man made laws, or 'god given' laws that are rooted in hallucinations.

A natural law is given by nature - our environment. Humans cannot alter it. Like:

- You cannot turn back time
- You cannot prevent the universe from changing
- Gravity pulls on all matter
- Love is an attractive force
- Evil forces are destructive

No matter how much humans strive to defeat such laws they never succeed. Basing society on natural, universal laws gives unprecedented stability to humanity. Basing society on prophet, ruler and economist quirks and squeaks gives humans the problems they deserve for such foolishness.

Legal experts who are based on belief systems have been trained to perpetuate injustice and to turn wrong into right to win a case or cause. Legal trickery is more important than maintaining contemporary civilizations with ultimate justice. Ultimate justice, founded on global wellbeing increase and equality, is never fully considered in today's legal system.

The evil forces of violence are on both ends of the law.
 Dominators create laws to their advantage violators disagree with that.

Dominators know that violators can see through their game of deception. So, the violators have to be suppressed with structural violence using the arm of justice.

Violators realize that they are forced into a system where they don't advance the wellbeing of all. So, they have to help themselves or stand up and fight for real justice.

Good people get squashed in the middle of a stupid system that solves society conflicts with violence. A new system has to be established by the peaceful majority to eliminate violent extremists on both ends of the law.

Today the legal system of every country is based on something like freedom, justice, human rights, religious beliefs, etc. that are different from nation to nation. The founders of the respective countries have implemented those different systems to achieve the best possible living together of their citizens at the time.

But until now, all those systems allow the legitimate use of physical violence between nations and structural violence within nations and therefore are not suitable for humanity. To develop a peaceful coexistence we need to remove the origin of violence, which is our obsolete political/social system. We can not build united mankind on top of the existing political forces that polarize the world. It would be the same as building a high-rise on top of a family home. The two are not compatible. We need different foundations.

The base or foundation of our civilization must have rules that ensure nonviolence and cooperation between all human beings. Our global legal system has to be based on values that are first, acceptable by all people and second, support and ensure the peaceful coexistence of all individuals and groups. Those rules must be effective, easy understandable, convincing to the majority and reflect the truth.

Those rules can be derived from universal laws of the five larger elemental entities as seen from your perspective:

universe - life - fauna - humanity - you

1st law of the universe:

Look at the stars above, look to the environment that surrounds you, look towards your body, look into your mind, and you will find one common thing: Change.

1st law of life:

You observe that the law of change governs the billion-year-old entity of life. You observe that life grows.

Life combines energy and matter with reproductive information to grow and evolve.

1st law of fauna:

You observe that fauna is governed by change and growth. You also observe that fauna is nourishing & repositioning.

Fauna processes and stores information to accomplish its task.

1st law of humanity:

You observe that humanity is governed by change, growth, nourishment and repositioning, you also observe that humanity rearranges its environment.

Humanity uses external information storage, transmission and processing devices to communicate activity patterns across time and space

Your 1st law:

You observe that you are governed by change, growth, nourishment & repositioning, and an ability to rearrange your environment. You also observe that you rearrange your environment and information creative or destructive.

* Creative:

Increasing global wellbeing (using true information)

* Destructive:

Decreasing global wellbeing (using false information)

You can not deny the universe to change, life to grow, fauna to move and nourish, humanity to rearrange its environment. However, you can and must deny rearranging your environment in a destructive way and deliberately falsify information.

Rearranging the environment in such a way that you or your group gains at the loss of outsiders may create benefits for you, but is destructive for those outsiders who have to suffer under an unjust resource removal.

You are part of the universe that always changes. You are part of life naturally growing and multiplying. You are part of fauna that positions and nourishes itself and consciously communicates. You are part of humanity rearranging the environment and reality.

You change because you are an intrinsic part of a continually changing universe.

You grow because you are an essential part of a growing and multiplying life form on this planet.

You frequently reposition yourself, communicate, receive nourishment from your parents and nourish your offspring because you are a fundamental part of a repositioning and nourishing fauna that consciously communicates.

You rearrange your environment to increase your wellbeing because humanity has the capability to increase its wellbeing by influencing the microclimate and rearranging materials around humans.

Derived from such basic easy observable laws, the two most important rules to carry humanity peacefully through the next centuries are:

DO GOOD

1. Make sure that people's wellbeing now and in future is increased from the consequences of your activity.

- Act in a nourishing not destructive manner
- Be an asset, not a liability to the global population, our planet and your descendants
- Impact beneficial never detrimental on life

All human activities need to be analyzed. Those that decrease the feeling of wellbeing have to be discontinued so that beneficial activities can fill the void.

DON'T DOMINATE

2. Make sure you don't force your opinion on other people

- Do not use violence or coercion to convince people
- Analyze your own group-think and its harm to others

Enforced mass programming of human brains by violence, coercion, and brainwash creates a helpless narrow-minded society. Diversity of opinion is the foundation for a healthy spirit of humanity.

Such a 'soft law' system has less rigid guidelines and punishment as the existing one today. It reflects the truth of the present reality. It prevents outdated beliefs and structural violence. Instead of today's military systems, it only requires a mixed international police force at the beginning, as a control mechanism to protect humans from violence. Police activity will change from control via education to nourishment over time.

How is conflict resolution achieved with those two laws?

First, there is conflict prevention. You guide your activities by those laws to avoid conflicts. If you feel your activity could cause conflicts, you consult people around you to get their opinion. Communicate with as many people as necessary to establish the benefits of your activity.

In case a conflict has arisen, you and your opponent consult people around you to get their opinion to modify your activity in relation to each other. More people need to be involved if the conflict cannot be solved. In the most difficult cases, the world population will decide on a conflict resolution that will be binding. Solutions should not reduce the wellbeing of the disputants and the world.

Most quarrels amongst humans arise out of their opinion about an entity that exists or does not exist at a particular place. They easily disagree if an entity is supposed to be or if an entity is not supposed to be at a particular locality at a certain time.

In many instances, physical or structural violence is applied to settle those cases. However, this does not change the underlying opinion where the entity belongs. If those underlying opinions are not changed new disputes and quarrels will arise.

Nonviolent conflict resolution based on natural laws focuses on those underlying opinions to achieve long term settlement of dispute, not on primitive revenge rituals that are carried within the spoken or unspoken law of a particular society.

Obeying natural laws creates interdependency between human and planetary activities resulting in an increase in global wellbeing. Obscuring them with man made laws results in war and misery.

HUMAN RIGHTS

All of you people on this planet should know about your real human rights, not only those that governments have imposed on you.

What rights and duties should humans have?

Human rights should allow no negative impact on your natural state: change, growth, nourishment, repositioning, rearranging. Those fundamental human rights should never be taken, reduced, or diminished by people or institutions

Right to activity

- * change - universal reformation of matter, energy and info
- * grow & reproduce - physically, mentally
- * nourishment – get/give love, food, information
- * repositioning - free movement everywhere
- * rearrange - reorganize the environment to benefit the whole
- * communicate - free unrestricted information-flow from all entities, interactive communication with all humans is necessary to assure all the above.

Duty to protect

- Let life grow, do not harm or cut it down unnecessary. Harvest life only for human consumption - don't prevent its growth. Cure the historic human obsession that decimates and eradicates life.

- Let animals free and let them nourish themselves so they can advance to their next step of evolution - don't prevent their repositioning. Collect fauna from its natural environment for human needs.
- Let humans rearrange and communicate - don't turn them into money-slaves to do redundant, destructive jobs that increase waste - give them more time for nourishing activities. Protect human dignity by assuring equality.

In addition to human rights we have to consider the rights of the living entity on this planet and the rights of Earth itself to assure our wellbeing.

It is the first time in billions of years that Earth is cut into pieces by political fanatics. Earth has no natural borders; people, living entities and tectonic plates have been moving around this planet for millions of years. Since a few centuries human repositioning freedom has been taken away by governments, creating famine, poverty, suppression, like never before in human history because people are not allowed to escape the tyranny of nature, violent rulers and punishing economy. For people to reposition themselves is the most basic animalistic-human right. Governments are in gross violation of this fundamental right. It is one of the reasons why governments will be dismantled because they insist on preventing human repositioning.

If you think about it, you will realize that the borders governments made are only necessary to play their military or trade war-games, (maiming populations for the enjoyment of megalomaniacs).

Most citizens want an unarmed humanity but mentally diseased bureaucrats insist on violence.

Institutions driven by doctrines go to great lengths to crush large numbers of humans to advance their belief system by force. In that regard, it is necessary to protect individual humans from the onslaught of malicious institutions, organizations, corporations, etc. Humans should have the right to immediately dismantle institutions that foster dominance by coercive and violent means; institutions with unhealthy group-think. During the deconstruction of the institutional framework humans have to be treated with dignity. All humans within the dismantled institution should fall into the safety net provided by humanity.

Same like the domesticated animal has no choice in what barnyard to stay or how to design it, modern day money slaves and scrap humans cannot decide in what nation to stay nor how to redesign institutions and their own rights. Human rights were created by governments to defend and maintain the western civilization framework. Therefore, they are basically invalid because the global population was not involved with their creation. To make them valid all people have to design and regularly update them.

Human rights can only be made by humans and not by institutions. They need to evolve and adapt to humanity's future civilization and cannot be written in stone like religious commandments.

It is of utmost importance that true human rights are established soon to guide humanity.

Proposed human rights and responsibilities to be continually updated by voting of all humans.

You have the right

1. to take part in the leadership of our planet
2. to own this planet and its natural resources in co-ownership with all humans
3. to receive the proceeds from this ownership
4. to communicate your opinion to all humans
5. to reject subordination attempts from any human or organization
6. to move around and dwell on this planet freely, without any restrictions
7. to analyze and mediate disputes between humans
8. to take part in the creation and maintenance of infrastructure that assures your and other humans' wellbeing

Your duties

1. take responsibility for Earth and its inhabitants
2. make sure all your activities benefit your environment, yourself and life's descendants
3. never coerce or force humans to follow your opinion or belief system
4. cooperate with other humans to modify detrimental civilization structures
5. be guided by majority decisions

The next chapters focus on majority guided activities. How to go from here to there. How you analyze your situation and find your destiny

Where is the Right Way?

- More and more people realize our scouts leading us the wrong way
- Governments have threatened mankind many times with their huge arsenal of weapons
- We think, it is NOT the right way to intimidate the citizens of this world. - How do you feel, if someone points a gun at your head?
- Governments are still legalized to kill 'enemies' (a person just like you and me), leading us to a way of violence
- Governments have never been able to control war in history because they are the reason for this destruction
- National governments neither benefit humanity nor our environment, and can not sufficiently explain their existence anymore
- The people are right! - Our scouts do lead us the wrong way
- Now all world citizens have to help each other to find the right way again

It is obvious that violence is not the right way for governments. The other wrong way is to increase the wealth imbalance by commercial entities and governments alike. In this regard, ownership needs to be addressed.

Because the surface area of this planet is finite, dissecting the land into individually owned pieces and defending those stakes against other humans is inefficient and not feasible over the long run. The clashes arising out of such a strategy reduce the overall efficiency of humanity. To avoid such clashes every human has to take full ownership of Earth's surface and its natural resources in co-ownership with all humans.^{iv} That means, it is made public property.

The transfer of ownership has to proceed gradually. Individuals whose property has been declared public should have two options:

Retain this property throughout their lifetime or get the current market value reimbursed from humanity and lease it subsequently. Property declared public can not be passed on to heirs.

Humanity as the owner of the planet consisting of land, air, water, and all natural resources will lease surface area (land or water) to individuals, groups and commercial entities. All natural resources will be made available for sale. The proceeds from that shall benefit all humans equally.

Just because a minority of humans was so clever to invent a bogus economic/monetary system that allows them to siphon those proceeds off the globe doesn't mean they are right, nor should we financially worship them forever.

Things created by humans can be owned and traded by individuals, groups and commercial entities. The land, the air, the sea, and this planet have not been created by humans and can not be owned by individuals or institutions - ownership and responsibility lies with humanity e.g. the global population.

The human whose ancestor grabbed a big piece of earth's surface and natural resources has no more right to ownership than you. To defend such a natural resource with weapons is neither fair nor just within our emerging global civilization. No person, race or nation on this planet has more right to live at a particular place than any other human.

Global Civilization Model

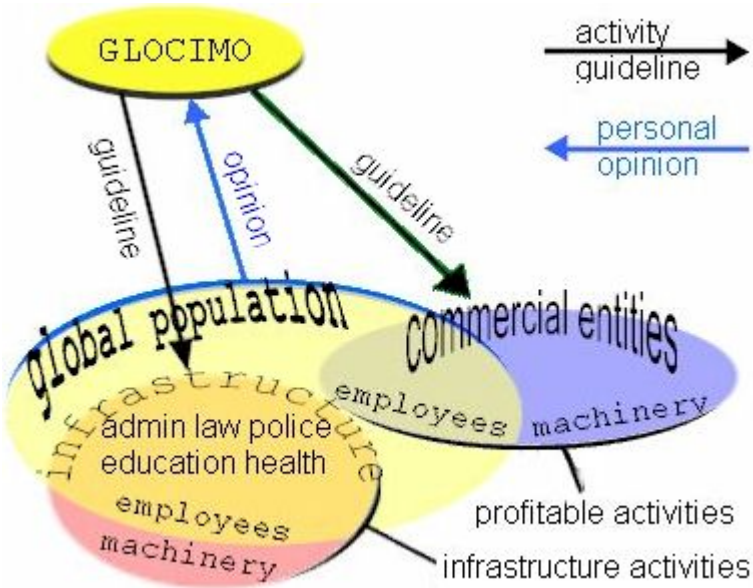

Humanity, as an entity, needs to be able to make decisions in its own interest, not only to survive, but to prosper. Those decisions must be able to override decisions made by sub-groups of humanity e.g. religious, national, commercial groups. Humanity must have the guiding power to prevent detrimental, selfish sub-group activity. This power will come from the global population.

Most people are unaware of the present civilization structure. Many problems of human society are related to this unawareness.

Global Leadership not only gives people civilization structure awareness, but also the opportunity to interactively design those structures. New civilization guiding structures will be alive and responsive to global human needs. Opinions quickly translate into activity changes. Quite unlike the dead structures of today's political, commercial and religious systems, where common people have no design influence.

We do not deserve unresponsive structures that lag behind society advances by years decades or even centuries. v

Here is an overview of the model (GLO-CI-MO) and its relationship to the global population and all organized human activities.

Personal opinions modify the GLO-CI-MO. in return the GLO-CI-MO modifies human activities.

What is the GLO-CI-MO?

The GLOBAL CIVILIZATION MODEL guides human activities. The population decides which activities are desirable or undesirable. It consists of individual opinions on human activities and how to guide and control those activities. It creates a consensus on [1] what activities are beneficial to Earth and its inhabitants [2] what activities are harmful and should be avoided. It will be used to create, modify and maintain physical and mental infrastructures of humanity globally.

Because of the repercussions human activities have on other humans and Earth, people need to centralize authority on all human activities, encouraging those activities that increase wellbeing and preventing undesirable activities that cause harm. GLO-CI-MO's locus of authority is the consenting majority of humans who decide on general and specific issues, utilizing the processing power of all human brains.

GLO-CI-MO prevents the abuse when authority is given to few individuals who have to represent the majority of humans, as practiced today. It's the combined opinion of all of us that will direct and guide human activities, not a particular person or minority-group of dominators.

Institutions display their own will or ego (survival drive) that's often stronger as an individual humans' drive which makes them influence public policies and human activities for their own benefit. This fosters group-think and harmful activities within humanity. Inside of GLO-CI-MO only people take part in decision making not institutions. Institutions will be changed from acting as dominators over people, to be used as tools by the population for the advantage of all people.

Peoples' info storage in their brain is updated every split-second. Institution structures are rarely updated. People in institutions cannot go against obsolete institution directives if their more advanced brain tells them to. That is why institutions drag humanity into the past. Society could be more advanced if it would not follow outdated institution demands. Doctrines do coordinate human activities but with a heavy price to pay.

The actual form GLO-CI-MO takes has to be established by you in cooperation with all mature humans. Its base will be the Internet because there is no other means of interactive mass-communication to achieve a near real-time response system. It will probably run on public servers maintained by the Federation of Global Municipalities.

Voting / polling system

System to determine the status of:

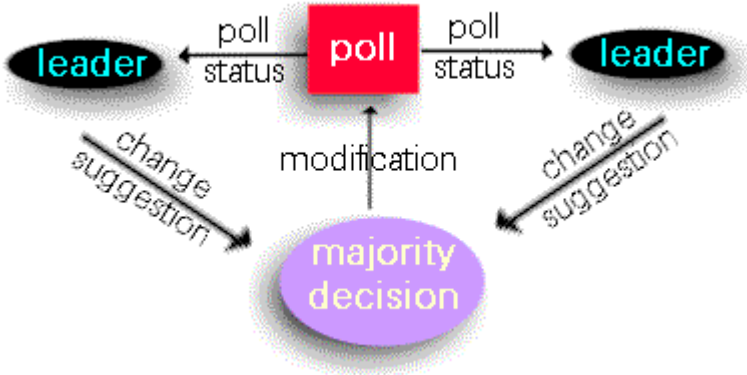

- * GLO-CI-MO
- * global population
- * Earth

Leaders and citizens observe the impact of the global population on Earth on a daily basis.

This voting system is part of a global Internet democracy. The crucial element is the Opinion Poll Website of each citizen at the base of GLO-CI-MO. It consists of two sections: [1] the personal opinions with the personal data record and [2] the polls section. Both parts can be modified by the owner and viewed by the public. All citizens use the same poll form that consists of many questions. Owners can modify the answers any time. Therefore, it is a live poll not a dead poll where the citizen gives an opinion once and cannot back out anymore. GLO-CI-MO periodically spiders and statistically evaluates all poll sites so that everyone can look at up-to-date results. Even better would be if each citizen has its own spider to double-check and receive the most current average-opinion.

Leaders who administer the GLO-CI-MO determine the poll questions and all citizens decide on putting new questions or removing questions

This system is in a constant flux, evolving continually - it is not hampered by rigidity like our present system that cannot keep up with the speedy evolution of technology.

Leaders act only as facilitators to enable the self-determination of the population, not to lead followers

Administrators know that:

We can do it!
 We can change humanity via communication - violence
 We can keep humanity steady with indoctrination, group-think
 We can advance humanity with love and understanding
 We can retard humanity with violence and domination

Global Leadership Tasks

The central task is to coordinate and tune global human activities to enhance wellbeing for humanity, life and planet Earth

Necessary steps to accomplish the central task:

Promote new leadership while GL is in its infancy

Remove all weapons

Nourish humans to become leaders

Build and maintain the Global Civilization Model. Statistically evaluate human opinion, develop algorithms and networks to distribute human opinion and make it globally accessible. All activities and tasks are derived from this model.

Globally connect and coordinate existing local/municipal administration bodies

Resolve humanity's critical issues:

As yet, humanity has no valid administration. The increasing wealth imbalance causes wars and violent activities. Humanity's negative impact on its base undermines its own evolution.

Enhance communication infrastructure

Enable communication between all humans any time

Expand sensor systems for large and minute entities

Create a second monetary system independent from commerce and banks

Define a sphere for the commercial subsystem and reduce its destructive activity

Perform clean up, remove pollution

Project regenerate Earth: reforestation, general life enhancing activities. Quantity of life (living biomass) measurement

Project life transmitter: turn Earth into a life transmitter, enhance the natural tendency of intelligent life to spill over into the universe

Other infrastructure projects to improve coordination of activities

Maintain public registers: records of all humans and organizations; records of all global assets and entities; records of all activities; information feedback into the GLOCIMO

We can do it if we all work together.

We cannot do it if we follow old rituals and let ourselves being coerced into opposing each other

Perpetual Activity on our Planet

Earth-equilibrium resulting from billion years of evolution destructive human activities distort the natural balance on this planet

It is necessary to focus on the facts of the Whole Earth System consisting of the planet, the biomass and humanity.

The activities of water, air, crust, mantle, and core of Earth, held in its global form by gravity, are modified by activities of the biomass driven by the sun's energy.

This natural balance is upset by humanity's activities, madly pushed by socioeconomic belief systems. Destructive human activities grow terrible silicon blisters on Earth's beautiful emerald surface. Earth has a disease and is screaming in pain. Can you hear her outcry?

Activity and communication are the two major elements of our global civilization. They are interrelated and go hand in hand. If human activities are properly guided to integrate themselves into planetary activities, they are beneficial for Earth and affect our own wellbeing positively now and in future.

Total human activity has been growing considerably during the last century because of leaps in technology that use more tools and energy. Soon it will rival planetary activities. Therefore, all humans need to become responsible for humanity's activity to prevent permanent damage to Earth.

Human activity

Food allows us to be active, information controls our activity, and love integrates our activity wisely into the web of other humans' and Earth's activities

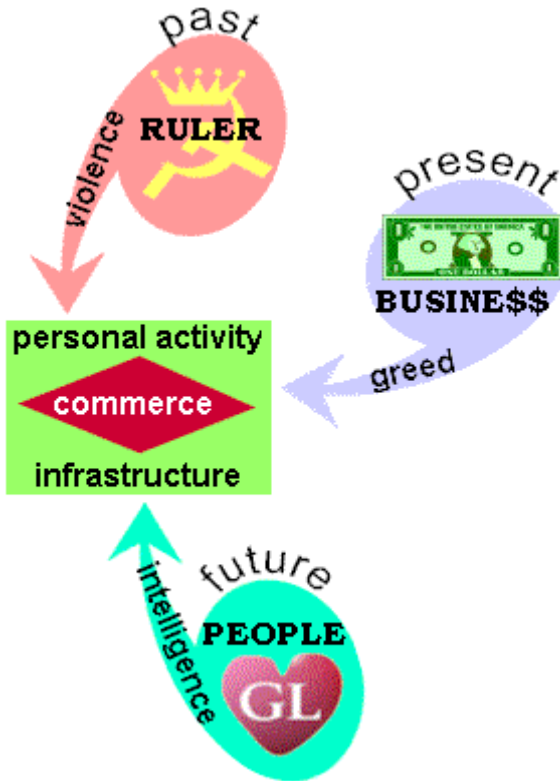

Average human activity under:

old governments civilization

new leadership civilization

Evolution of human activity drivers

In the past personal activity, commerce and infrastructure activities were driven mainly by organized ruler violence.

Global communication was virtually non-existent.

Now business with a systematic greed system exerts the greatest impact on human activities.

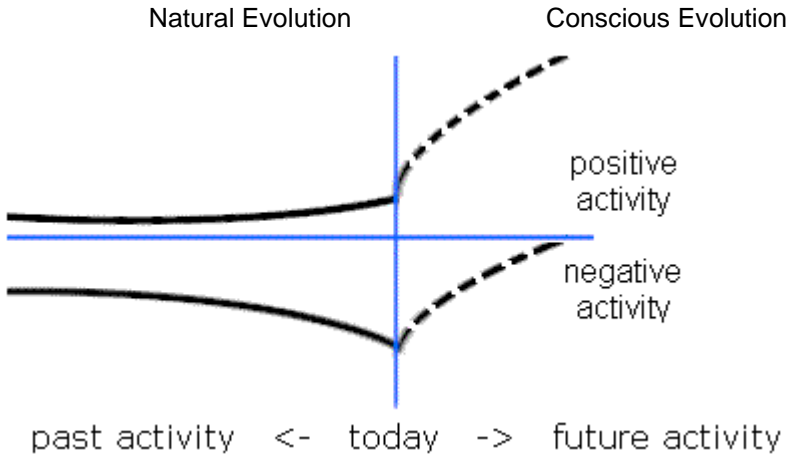

Excellent global communication exists between organizations.

In future activities will be guided by intelligent decision making of citizens based on excellent communication between all people.

Moving from greed driven to need driven economy

The existing corporations can be driven by capitalistic rule or population rule. Both have the capacity to direct activities within corporations. And both have the desire to do so. Capitalists for greed reasons, the population for need reasons. A greed driven economy is not able to supply the nourishing quality to protect the integrity of life on Earth, making the shift to a more sensitive and intelligent need driven economy inevitable.

It is clear to an increasing number of humans today that society's activities have more negative than positive outcomes.

There is a need to relinquish negative and redundant activities geared towards defense, control, punishment and artificial job-creation; all those activities divert energy away from nourishing the whole planetary system.

Activity guidance and coordination

1. Priests created gods
2. Rulers created nations
3. Capitalists created the Invisible Hand
4. Citizens create Global Leadership

Guiding and coordinating:

1. Inter-personal and family behavior
2. National structure and stability
3. Global economic behavior
4. Global activity

Who guides human activities?

Individuals controlled their activities when humans emerged on this planet but civilizations deny humans the right to control their own activity. High priests made gods and laws to coordinate people's activities within civilizations to increase the wellbeing for themselves and maintain the wellbeing of the population. The invention of gods was an important step to influence activities in civilizations to create and maintain a wealth elite and resulted in a growing wealth imbalance.

Even now, human activities are more controlled by gods, governments and capitalists than by citizens. All activity programs of the world are still running according to institutionalized economic greed instructions. GL wants individuals in control instead of those institutions. Individuals can swiftly adapt activities to their needs or to their environment, while selfish institutions have large time-delays to implement activity changes. Much of their reluctance to change is based on group-think, which makes their growth and existence more important than benefiting the world. Institutions never even consider the detriments for humanity when they violently defend their own existence or status quo.

Presently economists worship the Invisible Hand as a guide for activities on this planet. This guidance is good for corporations, bad for government and disastrous for individuals and Earth.^{vi} For the Invisible Hand, individuals and Earth are just resources to be either utilized or dumped while governments are a burden that needs to be manipulated.

Once the bolt of greed strikes people, their human values are destroyed. The funny thing is: most people just struggle to survive and many work long hours to make money, only few are left with enough time and energy to care about the wellbeing of the whole planet. That's how the invisible hand guides us! The guiding message is clear:

DON'T CARE ABOUT OTHERS - YOU HAVE TO COMPETE!

As there is no proof that god exists there is neither proof that the invisible hand exists. It just has been fabricated as 'scientific' evidence by the economic high priests to strengthen the elite behind their wealth extraction machinery.

Silly Activities

Many human activities cancel each other out because they are not coordinated: Much activity goes into producing waste. Lots of activity goes into removing waste. If we reduce activity to produce waste we need less activity to remove waste, resulting in surplus capacity. Much activity in modifying food results in unwell people who need many drugs to combat civilization poisoning. Promoting natural food instead of commercially destroyed foods reduces activities in the food manufacturing, drug and health industry. Other sectors engaged in unnecessary activities are:

Enacting laws that create crime: resulting in unnecessary crime prevention and resolution activity

Building weapons that destroy life and facilities made by humans: resulting in unnecessary manufacture, destruction and rebuilding activity

Producing cigarettes that cause cancer: resulting in unnecessary production and health restoring activities

Manufacturing vehicles that are a health and environmental hazard: resulting in unnecessary pollution and waste production, health restoring and environment restoring activities

Most activity goes into growing the wealth balloon. And the bigger this balloon grows the more protection it needs. Activities channeled into protection and defense has to be withdrawn from activities to increase wellbeing.

Governments and corporations need to be more often told:

DON'T ACT SO SILLY!

If humans wouldn't adore so much silly, useless activities our world and humanity could be much further advanced already

In this context, technology today is mainly designed and used to dominate and control the dispossessed so that they cannot help themselves to get their rightful resources and needed nourishment. Such technology is usually inefficient, wasteful or a complete waste.

What are you doing today?

Whatever you do is determined through communication.
Received information is processed and shapes your activity.

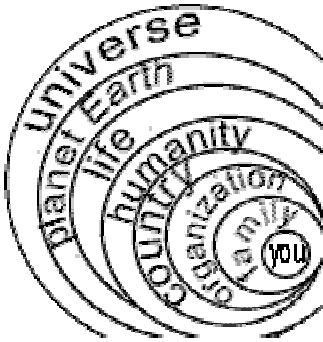

Communication determines repositioning of body, repositioning of mind, and rearranging of environment.

What information determines your activity?

EXTRACT

Do your activities benefit this planet, life and humanity? Or do your activities just benefit your country, organization and family, or only yourself? Which is the largest group that should benefit from your activities?

“Whatever you do that is based on lies contains a certain amount of evil”

Activity, as seen from the perspective of humans, is based on its components of matter, energy and information. Any entity of matter or energy carries an information component that indicates its position within space and time, and displays its identity.

Moving matter with energy or info?

- Info uses internal energy of matter to move it and makes the system agree and decide to move
- Energy is applied external to move matter and moves the system without agreement

- * Matter gives appearance
- * Energy changes matter
- * Communication controls changes

The universe needs matter, energy and info to exist - not time. Time does not exist in the universe it is a human mental construct to explain incremental matter, energy and info changes.

Scientists at CERN, Fermilab etc. observe the debris of smashed atoms, trying to force their truth into reality.

Obviously, the observations make as much sense as driving your car with high speed against a pole and determining what the car is made of and how it works, by looking at the components flying away from the smash.

Present scientists, caught in a destructive society find it normal to destroy things in order to learn, unaware they are on the wrong way. At loggerheads with the basic principles of the universe, they believe that driving the car at faster and faster speeds against the pole will one day reveal its blueprint.

They are mostly men harboring the blooming mental disease of male dominance, withdrawing resources from the creative pool into destructive activities. The conflict between men and particles is resolved with more violence than intelligence, showing an ignorant, dominating attitude towards minute entities. Why don't they just go to the car factory and ask for the blueprint?

If we explain the universe by mixing reality and human superstition we end up baffled by the resulting mystery

Infrastructure guarantees our wellbeing

Humanity's infrastructure consists of products and services that cannot be generated by individual people or companies.

The administration needs to coordinate local, national and global infrastructure that assures movement of material energy and information. Projects like transportation – energy - communication - monetary system – assurance of basic human needs like shelter, food, water and air supply.

It's governments major objective to create infrastructure for citizens but that's severely neglected by them today. Instead of developing infrastructure they enjoy warmongering, leaving global infrastructure in shambles.

Microclimate makes you feel good

Clothes and houses enable people to feel comfortable in a wider range of climatic conditions on Earth. They create a microclimate around our body that increases our wellbeing. Cars fall in the category of mobile microclimate stabilizers.

In our natural environment, the tropical rainforest, the climate supports humans without clothes or houses. However extensive removal of forests and dispersal of humans around the globe made microclimate stabilizers essential.

Advance of technology should make us feel increasingly better within microclimate stabilizers. But today, their design is subverted to display wealth, power and 'style' or needs to comply with government regulations instead of maximizing our wellbeing. Again, we have been led astray by a bad civilization, rooted in lies, to make us feel worse.

Life “knows” already how to improve and stabilize the climate. Life has much more expertise in stabilizing the global climate than we have. We only need to assist life in increasing the living biomass on our planet. To revert deserts back to high-density vegetation. To fill oceans with living creatures. Once the biomass has grown and perpetuates itself, we need to spend less activity to create microclimates. The whole planet makes you feel at home again when life thrives everywhere.

Mass produced housing for less than the cost of a car and minimum durability in excess of a millennium.

Concrete shells are mass-produced according to engineering standards.

We know the maximum forces that can occur on Earth's surface and the new type of housing is quake and twister proof, designed to withstand those forces with safety margins. Preferably elevated to leave more room for vegetation growth underneath. Modules are available to design and build the interior by yourself according to your own needs.

It will be a large scale manufacturing plant a crossbreed between car factory and shipyard strategically located in each continent to produce those houses. As in car factories, rigorous quality control assures a highly reliable product. Like most products, once finished, it is delivered to its destination.

Obviously, such large-scale housing projects cannot be done under the existing capitalistic market rules because benefits for the poor are not feasible under a system where even governments held at ransom by capitalists.

How to finance it otherwise?

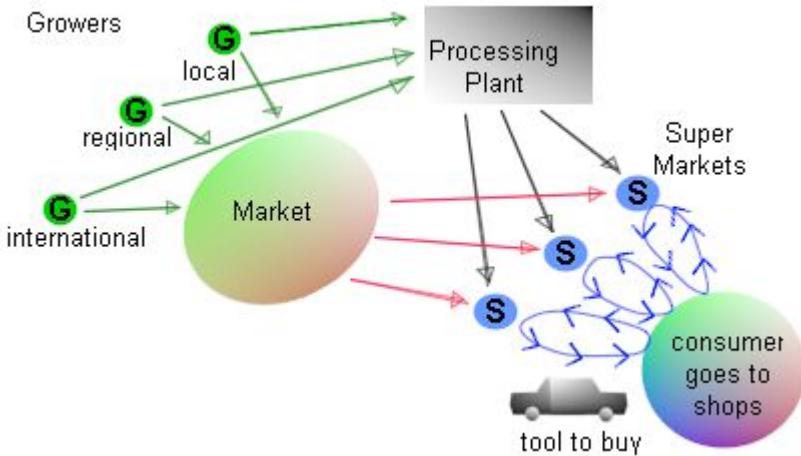

It is in the interest of municipalities to provide affordable housing to the residents of their administration sphere. All municipalities worldwide agree on supporting each other to issue a new global currency. The massive goodwill that the Federation of Global Municipalities creates is more than sufficient to back up this new currency. The new currency will generate all activities and resource streams for global infrastructure projects. This new currency could be created in less than one year if the global population is exceptionally determined. But it may take much longer if people are led astray by political and commercial power brokers. We hope, capitalists won't force their unwanted financial rip-off system on the global population forever.

High quality housing for all people can be accomplished within this century if people are released from the chains of capitalism

Food supply infrastructure

Present food distribution

Emphasis on high quantity and low cost makes people sick

No connection and feedback between producers and consumers. Poor communication results in stupid system milked by middle men.

(G) --> (M) --> (S) --> consumption

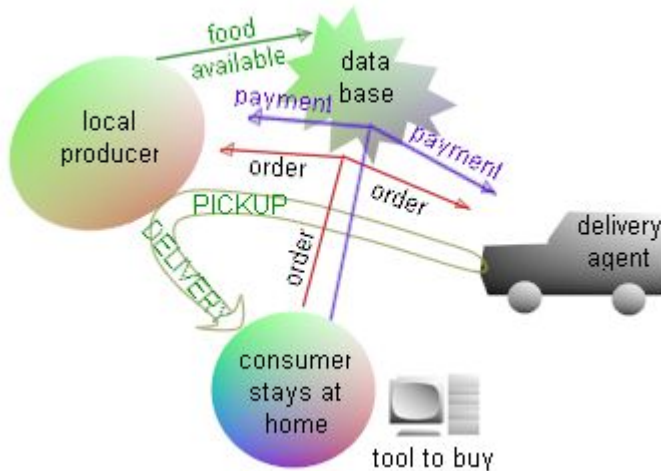

It takes days from harvest to consumption for 'fresh food'

(G) --> (P) --> (S) --> consumption

It takes months or years from harvest to consumption for processed food

Natural fresh food distribution

Emphasis on high quality and speed results in healthy people feedback between producer and consumer: (1) satisfies consumer needs instead of middle men needs. (2) gives producer info on what consumers really want, unfiltered by middle men.

1. Consumer selects food from database and via webcam from producer
2. Order goes to producer and delivery agent
3. Delivery agent harvests food and brings it to consumer within hours

Delivery agent uses reusable containers to eliminate dumping of package material

The government or administration needs to supply intelligent communication infrastructure to make this system feasible. It is presently not viable, because it consists of three separate entities that need to be tied together with a real-time information stream:

- * many producers
 - * Internet database + communication infrastructure
 - * many delivery agents
- connected to consumers

Global financial system

This global infrastructure project is based on public servers, connected to every telephone and is freely accessible to everyone. It allows secure, free financial storage and distribution. This financial infrastructure project will be implemented and maintained by the global population. As finance and information are principally the same we see them merge in future and use the same infrastructure hardware.

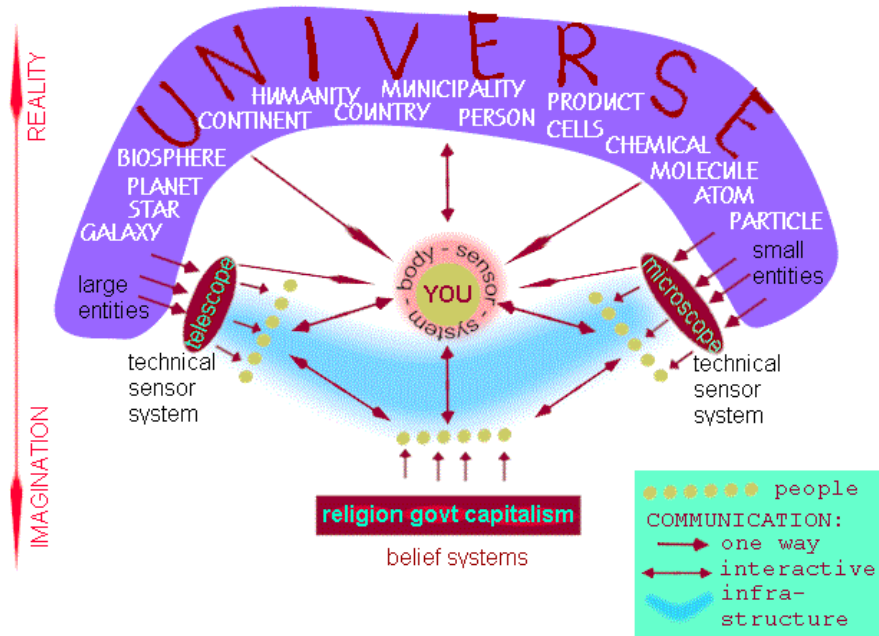

The global financial system has been hijacked by banks that hold people more and more at ransom. Making global payments without banks is nearly impossible. To get out of this coercive inefficient banking maze it is necessary to develop a simple unified global financial system that is highjack proof. This new financial system needs to be easy accessible by all global citizens.

As well as a transport system (to move people and distribute goods) is devised to benefit the national and global population; a financial system should do the same. A financial system is an infrastructure that needs to be protected from private corporations. Profiteering banks are a heavy burden for this infrastructure. Government sellout of infrastructure to private enterprises shows the seductive power capital has over governments, when they hand over common property (that belongs to all people), to the rich. It clearly shows how greed accumulates not only wealth, but also increasingly control. The monetary system has to lose its artificial complexity (that's no more than a smoke screen, required by defensive dominators) and made transparent to all citizens.

Those are some examples of possible global infrastructure projects. Existing infrastructure needs to be thoroughly analyzed and put up for discussions too. All projects have to be decided on by the population in consensus.

Communication

Communication positions bodies in space and time and is one of the most essential aspects of the universe.

All entities in the universe have some form of communication between them; resulting in their interdependency and constellation.

Entities from the group of life have very diverse communication systems. Evolution is based on communication; without interactive communication, there would be no evolution.

Human communication has the purpose to rearrange the environment for someone's benefit.

Communication determines the relationship between you and your environment. Consciously and unconsciously your body always communicates towards its environment and your sensors always receive information from your environment. Love and wisdom opens your sensors; defense, violence and domination shuts them down. Incoming information changes your activity resulting in a different position of your body.

Human communication and activities are the two most important elements of our civilization. Both of them are very much interrelated. Without communication, everything would break down to random activity. Our civilization today has still too much useless random activity because of poor communication between individuals and groups.

Communication results in mind-formation

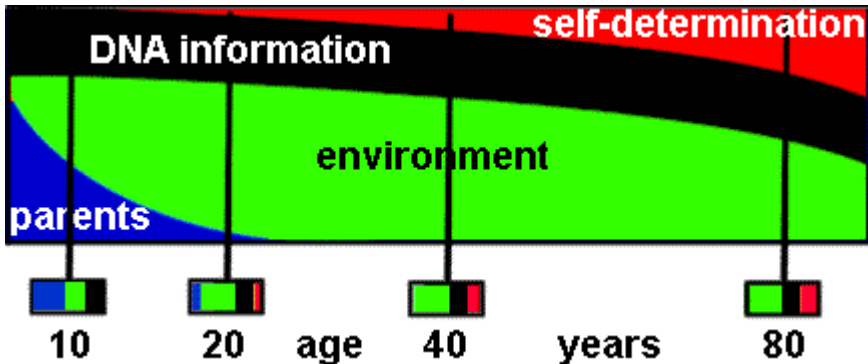

Communication is the determining factor for the development and configuration of your own mental attitude.

Interdependency of parental activities, environmental forces (social, natural and planetary) and self-determination format the mind. The four of them are interdependent through different time cycles and not really clear-cut separate entities.

Most of your brain-wiring (personality development) is done outside your individual control.

The particular information content of a certain location in the world has more impact on your personality formation than your own intentions when you grow up.

At age 10 parents determine mind-formation to 40%, DNA determines mind-formation by 30% same as the environment. At age 20 self-determination contributes 5%, DNA 30%, environment 57% and parents 8%. (Those values should be seen as estimates and not as absolutes, because they differ between people and societies.)

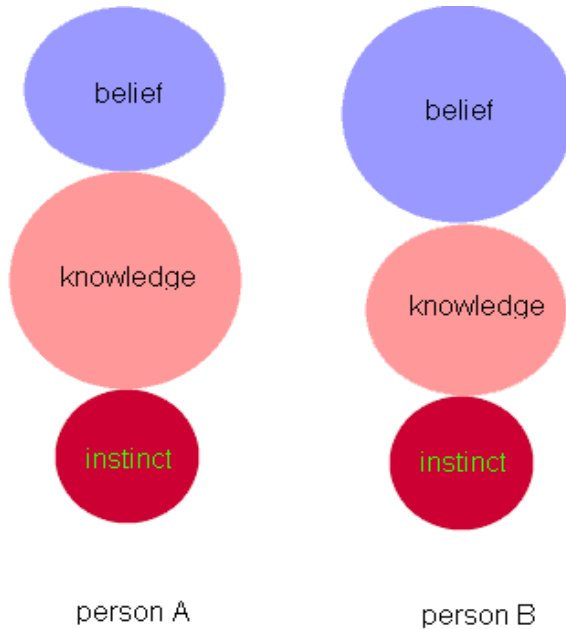

According to self-determination, DNA information, environment and parents your brain gets semi-hardwired. Synapses form particular thinking patterns according to the information received from those entities.

The storage and processing patterns in the human mind can be viewed as belief, knowledge and instinct, which are interconnected and interrelated.

The belief system of humans may or may not overlap. Those things you have not seen or touched and you believe they exist, but are unimportant for your survival.

The knowledge field is overlapping in all humans but never identical. The material world around you that you can see, feel and touch. Anything you know it exists and works, whatever you can prove to other humans; things that are important for your survival.

Person A and person B can not easily communicate what is outside their common frame of reference, - outside their instinct, common knowledge and common belief area. Beliefs and knowledge that are not shared between the two people A and B needs to be established with interactive communication and is time consuming. To be effective, global communication between all humans has to rely on the instinct area and the field of common knowledge that unite all humans.

All people have a core instinct that is nearly identical in all humans. This includes basic body maintenance: breath and feed, fight and flight, reproduction and nourishment of descendants and needy. All things you do and understand without learning, which are highly important for your survival on Earth.

Belief is what humans make up from their knowledge and instinct. The number of belief systems humans are able to create is unlimited.

We can be absolutely certain that our sensory system is too inadequate to communicate the total reality of Earth, let alone the universe. Because of that, we have to use our imagination to fill in the missing information. Human imagination has created gods, time, mathematics, political ideologies, the big bang, a monetary system etc. All of them are human created mind constructs that are only valid from a particular point of view. Those mental constructs depend on humanity. If humanity disappears, they disappear too. However, humanity is not dependent on those mind constructs. If they disappear, humanity still exists.

Most humans have a problem distinguishing imagination from reality. People swear that their imagination is real. They go to great lengths to protect their illusory belief system; subsequently communicating lies to their audience.

If you participate in GL you train yourself to consciously develop new belief systems that are better able to guide humans and our planet than the present outdated beliefs. You create new beliefs with a smaller feedback loop that are closer to reality. Human understanding of reality is still in its infancy and evolving. To understand reality better and act according to this understanding is the name of the game.

Knowledge consists of conscious and unconscious imprints of the environment into the mind. Your knowledge is the recordings that your brain received from all your sensors throughout your life. Knowledge properly utilized through parallel processing gives you intuition. You know intuitively if something complex is right or wrong, while logic linear processing of a subset of your knowledge can easily lead you astray.

Instincts connect us to our planetary past. Animals send instinct into the future to protect their descendants. All humans receive information from animalistic times via the instinct channel of communication. The DNA is the carrier of those messages. Instinct communicates with mainly feelings and some images. It is the most important guiding system of life. The entity of life guides you with instinct along your way into the future. It guides you with the feelings of good and bad. If you feel most of the time good, you know you walk along the right way. If you feel sometimes bad, you know you going towards the wrong way. This message from life is very reliable it never tries to fool you. Permanent good feelings assure you that you are on the right way.

Communicate your feelings to humans in your environment. If your positive feelings are reinforced by your environment society is on the right way. If your negative feelings are reinforced by your environment society is on the wrong way. When you are able to consciously communicate with your instinct, you are able to guide yourself and humanity along the right way towards the next step of evolution.

Many humans know instinctively that our scouts force us to follow them along the wrong way into the future but cannot express exactly why. Modern narrow-minded humans who adhere to rituals and linear logic can not understand that the oldest instinct area to guide life into the future evolved into something indispensable within humans, so, they disregard it, inevitably being misled along the wrong way.

Your instinct supplies you with pre-birth information. It's your ancestors communicating with you through DNA information. Try channeling to find out how far back in time you can receive information from. It helps you to interpret today's reality under the guidance of your instinct.

Life's guiding system

Like a cruise missile, life uses instinct as a guiding system into the future. A cruise missile is brought back on course if the guiding system detects any deviation.

Humans are swayed from their target mainly by violence and ignorance. If both of them are not present, the remaining force of love delivers us to our natural destiny.

Interpersonal communication

Receiving information from humans

1. Pattern recognition
2. Content understanding
3. Truth evaluation
4. Estimation of benefits if communication related activity would be performed
5. Consideration of relationship changes
6. Performing activity initiated by received information

Sending information to humans

1. Anticipation of desired receiver activity
2. Evaluation of receiver
3. Specific content formulation targeted for receiver
4. Selection of media for best effectiveness
5. Transmission of message

The communication feedback loop between sending and receiving establishes the success and timeframe of communication.

Primary importance of communication between people is to get the message across. Different languages are a great barrier to that, preventing already pattern recognition. 100% understanding is in many cases not achieved, let alone truth evaluation and the other elements of message reception. As yet, the quality of global communication is at a very low level. We talk about the info age, but we are not nearly there. Dramatic technical and conceptual changes have to occur within the communication realm to reach that age. Human made information is flowing much too slow and is distorted by deliberate inaccuracy and censorship. Individual humans need to be able to self-correct any inaccuracy that occurs when information is transmitted from reality to other humans. This is difficult to achieve when most people are nourished with lies from the cradle to the grave. To make things worse, educational institutions dragging us into the past with their insistence on this archaic ways of communication. Mass-fabricated lies to strengthen dominators inevitably disintegrate society until it reestablishes itself at a new, closer relationship with true reality.

Improved communication will focus activity to increase benefits. Better communication tools and techniques have to be created to enhance human communication. Written communication will evolve from words to models. Instead of a string of words, you will send your receiver something like a game, simulator or interactive movie. The receiver plays with this interactive game and will get a much better understanding of your opinion as through a string of words. Because our language has a limited capability to mirror our increasingly complex reality and a limited effectiveness for relationship determination between the increasing number of facts, such an interactive game can even give a better understanding than a face to face discussion.

Today in our communication infancy, we mainly transmit fiction and some facts, not much about the relationship between facts and even less about the relationship between the transmitted fact and its benefit to humanity and this planet. Much one way communication from the media is plain brainwash (information pollution), clogging up our information channels.

The high priests use the media successfully to flip your frame of mind to modify your truth to their advantage.

Altered reality

Reality is altered when it flows through the human sphere.

True unmodified information flow from reality to you is necessary for effective activity coordination.

Deliberately reduced reality results in agony.

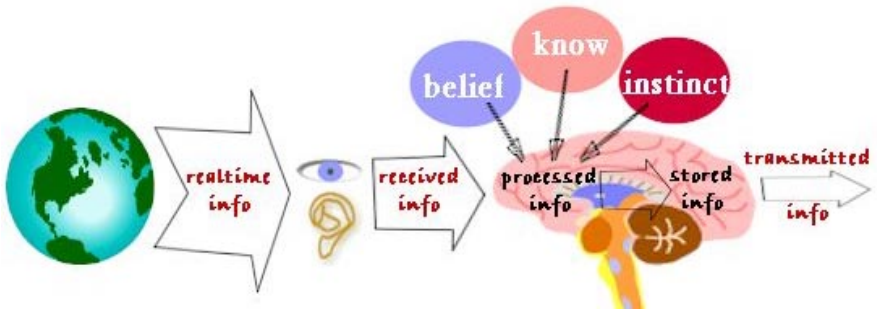

Twisted reality makes us confused.

Invented 'reality' creates mentally retarded societies.

Reality perception errors

1. Real-time info consists of the full-range energy spectrum that our sensors are not able to detect. Some animals and technical sensors receive much more info signals than human body sensors are able to receive.
2. When real-time info is converted by the sensory organs to received info, errors occur
3. When received info is processed by the actual brain synapse wiring, recognition errors occur. Belief, knowledge and instinct process incoming info and store a personal mental construct [image] in the mind. Depending on the duration of storage info decay occurs.
4. When stored info is converted by the language communication capability to transmission-info, interpretation errors occur.

Acknowledging all those errors, you may wonder how well humans function in their (social) environment.

Ancient religious text

Religious text focuses mainly on guiding individual people - not much on how to administer a global society. Nevertheless, people read into those ancient texts what obviously is not there.

Writers, millennia ago, had a strongly constrained view of Earth because of their limited sensory system. Imagination filled in the gaps of their sensory limitations. Their understanding of Earth as they perceived it through their natural sensors is obsolete by current standards. Transferring this inadequate information into stored script information caused additional errors. Interpreting this information after a time gap adds assumption errors. Using such obsolete, erroneous information for today's communication between humans results in considerable misunderstandings and confusion; even to the point of violence.

Historical insistence on the absoluteness of those texts is at the base of contemporary information distortion:

1. Lies, fiction, fairy tales
2. Censorship, reality avoidance
3. Systematically brainwashed populations
4. Using weapons to make lies appear true.

We are moving deeper into the information age. More and better information is available to all humans than ever. If you are ignorant of that and insist on obsolete historic information you doing a great disservice to yourself, your offspring and life on this planet.

People have excellent understanding of materials, good understanding of energy but poor understanding of info. Like babies play with toys, humans play with information and can't find an appropriate use for it yet. Humans and society have been explained mainly from the material and energy concept. Not much effort has been put in by research teams to explain us from the info (spiritual) perspective. Even present day computers and info infrastructure are more centered on the material and energy concept than the info/communication concept.

How true and faithful can humans store and replicate reality in their brains and on external storage media?

Compounding errors by repeatedly storing information result in gross distortion of reality

Communication speed

Linear communication with words and numbers

- Describing history and facts
- Long-winding linear deciphering of textbooks takes days
- incompatible from language to language

Parallel communication with movies, diagrams

- visual impact reduces communication time
- easier understandable by everyone

Massive parallel communication using interactive models with relationship determination and instant feedback

- further reduces time
- shows inter-relationships between facts
- improved depth understanding
- allows change in perception and point of view
- more effective communication between all languages

Expert communication

*Nothing is really complex in this world
it is only made appear complex by separatists*

Experts for their own benefit do not want to make their expertise publicly available. They remove it from public access by portraying their expertise in a different frame of reference, separate from average society's frame of reference. The financial advantage for themselves becomes more obvious to experts who make information more complex and mysterious. This continues to such an extent to make experts sound mystic, unbelievable and out of touch.

To bring experts back into the picture we have to advise them to unite their vocabulary with common vocabulary and connect their specific findings to the whole of existence and in relation to the wellbeing of humanity. Communication flow will increase and the holistic understanding of the population will develop faster.

We have to communicate reality as it is, not as it supposed to be according to religious, political, and commercial belief systems.

To develop the parallel processing in human brains early in schools is of outmost importance. But the educational system turns humans diligently into experts of linear logic to supply the need for specialists who do not question the whole. Thereby sadly reducing the mental processing power of humanity. Human brains have far greater capabilities than just being expert slaves in a corrupt system. To coordinate and utilize this immense processing power is one of the most important tasks in future. Educational institutions have to be aware of their importance to lay the foundation for a successful civilization; to transform the student into a proficient human communicator. A communicator who expertly uses existing communication hardware and infrastructure in order to rearrange the environment for the benefits of all.

Activity communication

People are mainly visual and have good object communication but poor activity communication between humans in everyday life because it is difficult to trace all material movements through time and space, and put it into a communicable concept to enlighten other humans.

To communicate activities (like to produce a car) between all humans without misunderstandings formal activity communication needs to be applied. Every element of an activity has to correlate to its communication element, for example:

[Date, duration, place] [Participating entities] [Agreement statistic] [Opinion evaluation] [Truth estimate diagram] [Benefits to affected parties: Earth - life, biosphere - humanity - global and local groups - individuals - yourself].

All of the above elements need to be cared for within the interactive communication process between humans to improve activity coordination. Again, this is not natural, but it could be incorporated into the language to make it feel natural by creating an additional classification layer, or creating an activity communication module within the language.

Internet communication

The Internet is our means of mass-communication between individuals that allows the transition to an improved global society. Because of advancing communication technology, humans are moving out of beliefs more towards reality now. Less dependence on those belief systems that filled in the knowledge gaps and have been instituted over time, will give humans a better understanding of their activities. Individual and group activities will depend less on logic rituals and more on own intuition and wisdom. Decision-making will shift from isolated institutions to individuals connected through the web.

Our new global administration will depend on the opinion of all humans. Through interactive communication, it establishes a framework for the self-determination of the global population. To achieve growing self-determination dead civilization structures have to be first removed, so that violent, coercive males are no longer in a legitimate position to drive the wealth extraction machinery. Their recent unsuccessful attempts to use the Internet for wealth extraction purposes indicates their declining power. As we know, stupidity doesn't pair well with information. Nevertheless, mind control over the Internet is tempting. When the Internet was part of the bureaucracy anti spam meant to block commercial mass communication. Now that the Internet is controlled by commerce, anti spam means to block mass communication of the poor. Again commerce is trying to take over a good media (like radio and TV before) and turn it into useless rubble preventing truth by only promoting its hype. TV, radio, print and cinema are excellent media for commercial propaganda. Mysteriously, capitalistic lies don't travel well along the web.

The Web is here to enable mass-communication between all humans. We do not need those Internet Bureaucrats who hamper and prevent this essential communication with censorship and indiscriminate anti spam policies

What we need as people to solve global problems is massive interactive communication - we don't need trivial netiquette! However controllers are working hard to prevent poor people's diverse opinion and communication to an increasingly greater extend.

Can evil dominators keep humanity in the darkness forever? Or will the web blow the censorship lid?

*As an Internet Bureaucrat you have it easy if you don't want to hear the truth, just switch it off!
The button to press is called censorship
The technology for it is widely available
If that doesn't help, use a gun to make your point*

Communication with weapons

If you are right, you do not need to prove that you are right. People easily can see if someone is right or wrong. You do not need to intimidate others because you are right. Only those who are wrong need to prove that their wrong is right. They need to intimidate, coerce, force and brainwash others that they are 'right'. Some need a huge arsenal of weapons to do that. This "I AM RIGHT" via violence is much practiced and legally accepted in western civilizations.

It is also called domination and makes the dominator right and the submissive wrong. It makes the submissive pay tribute to the dominator. In such civilizations intelligence is replaced by violence and wisdom flies out of the window.

The following chapters on group-think, commerce, government, violence and money explain the major dysfunctional civilization structures of humanity

The Group-think problem

Group-think is the most severe problem in our society. It is a serious mental disease that has not been recognized as such. It turns members of a group into believers and followers of rituals. They believe the group is right and others are wrong. It reduces communication from the group to outsiders. In serious cases of group-think, members use force and violence to convince non-believers. Group-think^{vii} leads to narrow-minded routines and rituals suppressing true human intelligence.

The important fact is: most individuals are not aware that they suffer from group-think

Every day governments and other institutions of believers spend large amounts of assets to protect and promote their group-think. The waste of resources and the destruction in this regard are immense.

To solve the problem of group-think we have to show believers reality. The reality of their own group-think in relation to humanity and planet Earth. And the reality of the interrelatedness of all entities of this planet.

To remove your own group-think, open all your sensors, dig for the truth and reposition yourself during that process.

Global repositioning is vital to understand humanity and this planet. Mental repositioning is vital to view your group-think from different perspectives and break out of it.

Group-think has erected many male dominated civilization structures around this planet during the last millenniums.^{viii} Those structures are incompatible and have the tendency to fight each other. Those structures are like time machines, not to travel in time but to stand still in time. They violate the first and second law of the universe: ([1] change), ([2] nothing can turn back time). They also violate the first law of life: ([1] growth), by cutting down on life. Those structures give life a hard time. In history, such civilizations have grown deserts instead of life.

People, who are good, have to obey the bad 'man made' laws and rituals of those structures, initiating violent/exploitative activity against each other and the planet. It will be the destiny of females to change those abhorrent structures that have been made by male group-think. Females have a much better relationship with nourishment, whereas males have a better relationship with violence. Females will be the driving forces of New Leadership. Females are able to make decisions and initiate activities that are closer to nourishment than violence. Dominant and violent males have to surrender to this force of love and nourishment, lay down their arms and follow suit. The result is a productivity increase within humanity. Every task that cannot be done with violence and competition today by our obsolete civilization structures, can be accomplished with nourishment and cooperation through new leadership tomorrow.

Civilizations violating natural laws perish. Only civilizations that live to the laws of the larger entities and integrate themselves into the biosphere can survive.

Any civilization that is based on violence will die from this violence in the end

Characteristics of civilizations

1. development of group-think
2. coordination of activities
3. building of monuments
4. destruction of environment
5. loss of credibility
6. disintegration

Monuments made by civilizations over millennia
 Large amounts of silicon are amassed to worship the gods of greed

High priests¹ of modern civilization have one taboo; they never admit that their culture of violence and greed destroys this planet

VIOLENCE = massive weapon arsenals = "do what I say or I make you feel miserable"

GREED = economic system (Invisible Hand) = "be my slave"

Civilizations allow a large number of humans not only to live together, coordinate activities and increase wellbeing for all members, but civilizations must be also conducive to evolve to higher levels of existence.

Gods and laws have been created by humans to guide and coordinate activities in a structured form, easy to follow for smaller populations. Coordinated human activities result in increased well-being of the group. Then, as soon as an activity coordinating system produces benefits, members start to worship it. This worshipping turns into a ritual. Strangely, this ritual is still followed even when the activity coordination system does not produce benefits anymore. Some even follow it until they are destroyed by its negative implications.

No rules are written in stone only dominators want to make you believe so

Why do high priests devolve into a delirium to perpetuate obsolete rituals and rules?

Are we really rational, when we support modern rituals and maintain taboos enforced by etiquette?

We know we do something wrong to the outside world but we are not allowed to talk about the reasons, because that what we do wrong sustains our group. We push it into our unconscious mind and never let it escape from there. If others confront us, we can easily get angry. Any attack on the taboo is declared as blasphemy, treason or unscientific to get it off the agenda. Within the servile mind-frame we are prevented from speaking up against the perpetrators on the top. It allows the dominator to legitimately censor communication and foster superstition.

Drastic increase of superstition within societies took a heavy toll on humanity's peaceful evolution because of the impossibility to prove one bogus belief system against the other without using violence. But like all unfit physical species, unfit mental constructs will become extinct too. Violent ferocious entities based on competition usually dig their own graves - they are self-destructive.

Historically – as now, societies disconnect themselves from life by growing silicon blisters on Earth's surface.

Some humans gave their responsibility to god that does not exist and subsequently deny responsibility to Earth that does exist. Why should people who hallucinate about nonexistent gods have their say in ruling our planet? Especially by making rules given from this nonexistent entity. Are we governed by insanity?^{ix}

Today god is characteristic of love, but for ancient societies god was the ultimate authority figure above parents elders and rulers. To easier coordinate activities in early societies those who led invented the plausible lie of an overriding authority to intensify their control by creating a focus object that endures time. Later on, high priests of civilizations instituted this lie into truth and prophets, followers began to hallucinate about non-existing entities.

The caging done in the name of god is devastating to humanity.

Humans believe in gods, money and utopias, which are all creations of a caged-in mind. As soon as the people realize the difference between reality and imagination the problems with money, gods and utopias will disappear.

Only societies based on provable reality to all members can evolve to higher levels of existence. Societies based on superstition and lies will not work indefinitely and cannot survive. There will always be new members who don't worship obsolete belief systems and doctrines. Making the categorization and suppression of non-believers and deviants a necessity. This starts a cycle of destruction within society until it finally decays under increasing violence. The degree of violence used within societies determines its length of survival. Extreme violence like in Hitler's Germany makes society structures very short-lived. Subtle violence that the Roman and British Empire used could endure centuries. Increasing violence in the US indicates imminent society disintegration.

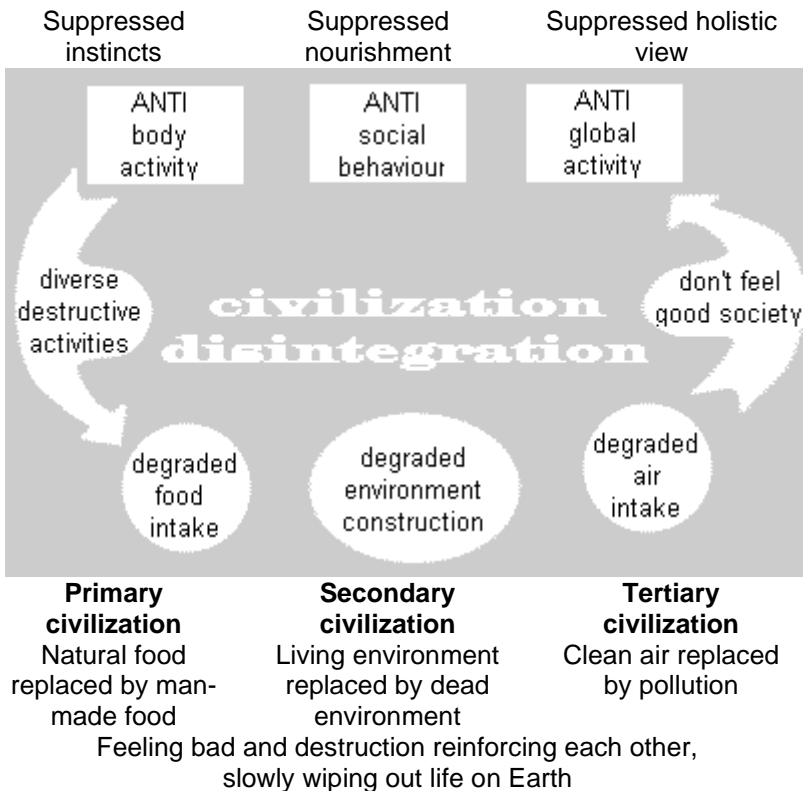

We have not evolved much from ancient civilizations. Sacrificing humans is still widely practiced today by the high priests of modern society. War is the name of the game.

Wars to kill with weapons and trade-wars to maim populations are approved by all politicians. Those violent rituals perpetuate itself through media and government. Governments have legitimized human sacrifice and the media portrays this sacrifice as 'normal'. It is about time to make them accountable for that. Both parties need to be questioned why they perpetuate violence. The problem is: government and media are driven by insane high priests who suffer from group-think. Try to question the insane and see what you get. The answer will be violence.

Coercing cultures into contradictory group-think patterns is the main reason why humans have so much violence on this planet now.

Society degeneration

The cultural society framework either corrupts or improves natural instincts, daily nourishment, and our personal holistic view. A corrupt society structure prevents us from realizing our destiny. Suppressive civilization structures are more degrading than enhancing.

If you follow rules and rituals along society structures like an ant follows its predetermined patterns in its anthill you and humanity devolves back to an animal level

don't follow rituals follow your heart

The human brain evolved to its present capacity to be utilized - not to be switched off by following rituals

Protect your kids from harmful mental cages

Your kids can become cleverer than any person in history because kids have better access to information than ever before. You only have to make sure that their mind develops freely. Explain present mental cages to your kids to protect their mind from being caged-in. If they understand what mental cages are, they avoid being caught in them. Kids, once they have grown up, can much better look after you and the world if they are not caged-in.

If you truly love your kids, you let them free, you do not coerce them into particular society structures that have been imposed on you. Although in some cases this might appear impossible, especially when extended family, peers and society work together to enforce historic lies as present truth.

When repressed kids spend valuable time dealing with this coercion, they have less time available to increase their wellbeing. Never program your kid's brains with lies. Let them see untwisted reality instead of made-up fairy tales. The foundation to a life of lies is laid at an early stage. Kids who are based on such foundations develop into people who thrive on lies and shun reality.

Our kids can make their own decisions. We don't need to interfere too much as adults. We just have to guide them in favor of love against violence; in favor of truth against lies and superstition. In that way, once they are about 5, they easily find their own way. Below that age, we just need to love them and give them what they desire. Obviously, you have to make sure their nourishment is complete with: love, food and information. Coercing and training them into 'desirable' behavior patterns is damaging to them and future society. Only non-violent conflict resolution makes them grow into healthy spiritual beings.

Instinctively, kids that are malnourished criticize, complain or whine to their parents. Parents bringing 'order' into this natural criticism by applying structural violence destroy the natural free will of their children. Don't throw the first stone by bringing 'order' into your kids. Think about your shortcomings first. Are their needs all satisfied?

Do they get enough love and no violence?

Do they get enough fresh food instead of dead food?

Do they get only true information or does their mind grow on pleasant lies?

If you know there are deficiencies with their nourishment be forgiving with their challenging behavior because it's not their fault. Malnourishment causes undesirable behavioral changes in young humans. If you have thrown many stones already, you are obliged to collect them all from their damaged minds. Ask a psychologist how to remove the stones. If you don't care and leave them there, your children will use those stones later and throw them at other people. So think about it, it's your responsibility that no one gets hurt.

Cages are religious, governmental and commercial rituals that force people to conform by means of violence, coercion and money-slavery against their will and their individual intelligence. A cage is a culture, society framework, socioeconomic structure that executes meta control instructions on the brain function of individuals. Humans caught in mental cages act according to clichés. They do not act like natural human beings, they rather act like a puppet on a string. Whatever cliché or group-think they adhere to pulls the strings. Within their group, the cages are hardwired together. Insiders do not find anything wrong with that; outsiders think they act strange, irrational and inhumane. Insiders become aggressive if their group is criticized by outsiders.

Cages worn by people increase stupidity within the population. The more the mind is squeezed into the cages the less productive and more destructive society becomes. The most detrimental cage is the capitalistic wealth extraction ritual worn by many people now. The most violent group-think in recent history was the Nazi group-think in Germany.

Do you believe in god?

Do you believe in money?

Do you believe in your country?

Do you believe your environment is OK?

Do you believe you have to prove your point?

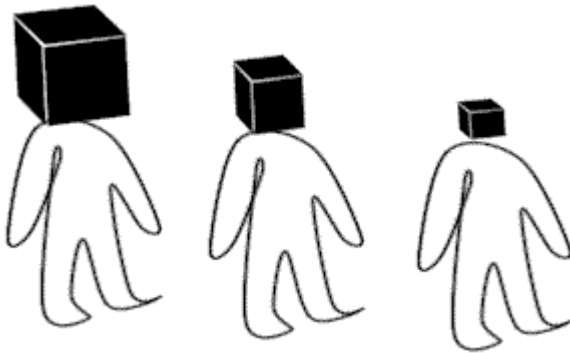

Do you believe you are in a helpless situation?

Do you believe governments can keep people forever within national boundaries like domesticated animals?

If you answer all those questions with no you are ready to participate in Global Leadership. You know it is the right way.

If you answer one of those questions with yes, you are a believer influenced by group-think, conforming to certain rituals. You may believe global leadership is not for you.

If you answer many questions with yes, you need to spend much effort in future to disentangle yourself from group-think. You believe global leadership will not succeed. You trust in the superiority or separation of your group.

Religious people's mind is tightly squeezed into a small box while bureaucrats have more room to think. Capitalistic free market people are mostly unrestricted but they still run into walls that none of the three is aware of.

Sometimes in your life you feel you run into those walls. But those walls have doors. And the doors have keys.

All people are attached to some sort of group-think very few have worked their way out of those group-think constraints. Most are unaware of it. No matter where you are on the planet a particular group has you in their grip. All of those groups, that divide you against other humans, against life, or against the planet we live on, are based on superstition.

Most group-think-individuals have a loss of responsibility. For their decision-making they rely on their group, governments or imagined entities like gods or an Invisible Hand. Subsequently, they never take their own responsibility seriously and let powerful institutions decide for them.

Indoctrinated humans suffering from group-think need time to overcome their taboo. They are not aware that they are affected because the group makes the deficiency disappear into the subconscious mind. Group-think is not based on any physical deficiencies of the brain, it is a pure mental disease that can't be treated with drugs.

Once you are out of the cage you can easily understand and accept what people communicating towards you. Cages distort communication and prevent understanding. Outside you consider all humans as equal (you accept neither masters nor slaves) and you love life in general. You easy can identify socioeconomic belief systems and society structures that produce global inequality, masters and slaves, dominators and submissives.

However, existing powerbrokers and rulers who are unaware that they suffer severely from group-think are not able to guide humanity towards increased wellbeing. Because they enforce pecking orders and thrive on submissive people. They cowardly sit behind their huge arsenals of weapons, terrorizing the global population with their selfishness. They are a product of our civilization structures that mandate to keep peoples' mind in cages.

A combination of spiritual disease, political brainwash and power-drunkenness is a fatal mixture for high priests on top that spells evil and affects most rulers.

- The ancient spiritual disease makes them squirt violence against life
- Political brainwash puts them in a mental cage from where they are not allowed to escape

- Power-drunkenness blurs their senses, decreases their sensitivity, increases their blind spot and makes them easier to associate with each other at their orgies

Only very few administrators have the power to keep their integrity. No matter who ends up on top, none of them has the will to change the corrupt system that gives so much gratification to the elite once they are in the ruler clique. Whoever dares to break out of the group-think and disobey this evil empire is silenced with bribes or violence. Humanity has been plagued by this problem for millennia. Many people throughout history have wondered: “is this avoidable?” Now people ask: “will we ever have peace, or will violent forces unleashed by rulers make this planet unsafe indefinitely?”

There is an easy and simple answer to that: as long as people accept primitive domination-submission relationships between humans, corrupt deceptive systems of oppression will flourish within humanity; institutions will continue to squirt massive amounts of structural violence into the global population to defend their dominating role. However, once people realize that pecking order and dominators are the root of evil, they will opt for equality and relocate authority from remote leaders back into the population.

Peace on Earth comes when humans stand up instead of crawling!

As long as you crawl in the dust, to kiss the dirty feet of a prophet or capitalist, you cannot open your arms to embrace humans with love and understanding.

Crawling not only gives you pain by wearing out your knee
It also makes you a disgusting, pity sight to see

Capitalism, government and religion protect domination/submission relationships and spike into the population

Global Leadership protects the population and spikes into domination/submission relationships

Know your opponent

It is important to identify what reduces your wellbeing.

After careful analysis you will find that the oppressor is not a person or people. - The real 'enemy' is a civilization structure, ritual, organization, institution or belief system that turns its members towards antisocial behavior, and poses a threat to its environment. It promotes a domination - submission relationship, keeps you in the past and wants you to worship it.

No human makes other humans intentionally suffer; they only make others suffer when they follow rituals (group-think), when they are intimidated (cornered) or malnourished (deficient of mental or physical nourishment). So, we have to make sure to nourish humans, keep them in peace, and never force rituals on them. If we know humans who make others suffer, we have to analyze the situation and eliminate the reason for this undesirable activity. Because that reason could drive other humans into violence too.

The more humans are driven by violent civilization structures the more suffering we have in this world

Those rulers who defend deadly, life-harming society structures usually turn people into scapegoats for the wrongs and misery of contemporary society. Those defenders always point their finger on others they never point it at their own face. They use blasphemy, treason and liquidation to protect their insanity.^x

- You dare to denounce the prophet and god?
This is blasphemy and you are in deep trouble now!
- You don't want to defend this section of Earth's surface against other humans? You are a traitor guilty of treason. We make you suffer!
- You don't want to pay tribute to greed? We will liquidate you, harass you with Big Brother, and turn you into a money slave!

Accumulate speed and break through the religious, national, and capitalistic superstition barrier that keeps you in cages and pulls you in the past!

The modern savage is easy to identify

He uniformly wears suit and tie
 A wallet has replaced his heart
 To make him only financially smart besides that, he's a stupid guy who doesn't care if you live or die

Postmodern superstitious savages worship the WEM (Wealth Extraction Machinery) and their omnipotent god: the Invisible Hand (the latest activity coordination system). It recently surpassed gods and rulers as the most powerful entity to coordinate human activities.

Ritualistically causing a rush hour every day by moving into one of the many silicon blisters on Earth's surface to worship greed; receiving gratification in form of money, which has been sucked by the WEM from the global environment.

This ceremonial activity gives him superiority by taking wealth from those who not participate in the sacred ritual. You can see the WEM in operation every day in cities around the world. It is noisy, smoky, destructive, and it dehumanizes. It has an undesirable hostility towards all forms of life. The WEM thrives on destruction. It effectively destroys the planet, the biomass, people and the spirit of humanity.

In old days, high priests used religious rituals and ceremonies to manipulate the members of a society into a particular worship-system. Nowadays the mainstream media accomplishes this manipulation of citizens. Contemporary mainstream media collaborates to make people worship a particular socioeconomic system. Wealth is used to glorify the ways of elitist high priests. Common people end up staring in awe at the spectacle of narrow-minded domination.

Many humans and living entities are killed and deformed by today's savages. Stealth expertise obscures their destructiveness. The unsurpassed skill in remote destruction makes this savage group the most dangerous element on Earth. They send armies of soldiers and economic missionaries around the world that destroy life, natural ecological and socioeconomic systems to make Earth and its inhabitants conform to their greed. Disobedience of dominators' caging orders result in wars, embargoes and systematic covert attacks.

Today the world is ruled by caging-maniacs

Without doubt, individuals need to be responsive to an activity coordination system. But not to such an extent that destroys the very base they live on (cutting off the branch they're sitting on). If people initiate direct or indirect activities to destroy their base they have to be clearly labeled as insane. This violence and destructiveness is obviously a mental disease that evolved into a spiritual disease (affecting the spirit of humanity) caused by ancient malfunctioning body or brain 'hardware', and needs to be cured rather sooner than later.

Are we not able to manage activities in such a way that they are not harmful to us and the environment?

Sure, we are able to guide activities to the benefit of all; we are just prevented by 'experts' following outdated beliefs and their own greed. They still proclaim "greed is good" as if we would not know better now.

Soon, humans will evolve from lies and superstition towards truth and enlightenment to ease the destruction and suffering on Earth.

People will lose their fragmented view, their 'us and them', and see the world holistically.

One of your duties as a global leader is to open the mental cages where human spirits have been kept by the high priests of civilization over many millennia.

Open the door of your mental cage into the world of love and understanding with the key of nonviolence

Love = to feel connected with all life and our planet

Understanding = to know how everything interrelates on our planet

Once people have found the key, they will be able to open the cage and view it the first time from the outside. When they are out their intention will grow to free others too. However, you cannot open their cage from the outside because the key is inside. You only can inform them how to find the key.

Today we see more free spirits than ever; it will not take long to free everyone. Once people are responsible for the real issues on this planet, they will not feel the need anymore to escape into superstition and other hallucinations.

By participation in new leadership you will get back your intelligence and responsibility. You are not the playground of outdated structures and rituals anymore.

There are many people outside of their old cages already! Why don't you come and join us?

Do you want to escape from coercive society structures into the wilderness of a thriving natural humanity, where we all interact truly as equals?

Ring of Truth

The Ring of Truth is a model to show the effect of group-think.

A perfect society without group-think

Each square represents the idea of a person. Different ideas result in a different angular position of the squares. You will observe a ring if there are many squares with different angular positions.

The ideas of each individual are as unique as their faces, DNA or fingerprints.

Group-think prevents us from seeing the truth

Each square grows proportionally with the number of believers or followers of a particular doctrine. If there are too many believers, the square will overshadow the Ring of Truth.

The larger those squares grow the more difficult it becomes for humanity to see the truth. Today some of the largest squares are

- wearing clothes
- male dominance (violence)
- commerce / capitalism
- religion
- government
- smoking

All of those activities draw many followers/believers. There are myriad of smaller group-think patterns amongst humans that are more or less detrimental to this planet. Followers are prevented, or avoid using their intelligence to develop and voice their very own unique ideas. This turns them into mainly liabilities. The Liability Triad is responsible for this waste of human resources.

The Liability Triad has to build the wall higher and higher that protects lies. Nevertheless, eventually it will crumble. The wall of lies to protect the Earth as center of the solar system crumbled five centuries ago. The wall that protects violence as a legitimate means to control people will crumble in a few years or decades. Those walls of ignorance will fall one after the other until we have a free and peaceful society. We all need to work towards a free, intelligent civilization where group-think, hypocrisy and lies do not need to be defended with walls and cages.

You are doing yourself and our planet a great disservice if you let yourself being manipulated by religions, governments and commercial entities.

Commerce dominates

The present structure of commerce has evolved over centuries and today it conforms to capitalistic guidelines. Commerce is supposed to be a human activity to increase wellbeing. But presently, it is an activity to increase waste. It moved itself into a controlling position above governments by making society fully money dependent.

Its centerpiece is the accounting ritual. Participation in the accounting ritual fits commercial entities into a global one way wealth stream to increase waste and the gap between rich and poor.^{xi}

Your amount of wealth depends on your level. And like any MLM² (snowball) system, the lowest level never gains anything. If you belong to the waste level like most humans do, you cannot understand the system and the accounting ritual³ that the high priests perpetuate. If you not prevented from doing so, you ravage your environment to survive.

The lower levels remove resources from life, Earth and the sun's energy deposit

In the activity level, you are grateful to be enslaved just to participate in the game.

Our present capitalistic civilization structure takes waste for granted. This is one of the features that makes it obsolete. The group-think that waste cannot be avoided is harmful to you and your environment. Waste products are increasingly dumped into the air, water and on land. Even life and humans absorb harmful doses of pollution without their consent or knowledge. Food stripped of essential nutrients, contaminated with shelf-life

² MLM = Commercial Multi Level Marketing system where the lower level pays tribute to the higher, leaving the lowest level with mainly payments

³ accounting ritual = financial mathematics that makes or brakes commercial entities by enforcing a profit extenders is dumped in supermarkets to feed the poor at the cheapest level possible. (Commercially destroyed food reduces wellbeing, creates obesity and subsequent civilization diseases.)

Activity results in benefits wealth and waste

Much activity goes into the production of weapons. Weapons are pure waste, good for nothing, only destruction. After careful analysis of this activity level you will be left with about 10% benefits and a remaining 90% waste, because most man made products turn into waste after their utilization period too. (Consumer products are designed to turn into waste, as directed by profiteering capitalists). That means, 90% of your time and activity goes into producing waste. What a waste of time and resources!

Is a civilization that turns 90% of its activity into waste and does not care about its discarded majority the society you are really aiming for?

Our contemporary socioeconomic system inhibits ideas of how to use resources more efficiently and beneficially and maintains a one way stream of resources:

Extraction -> utilization -> waste

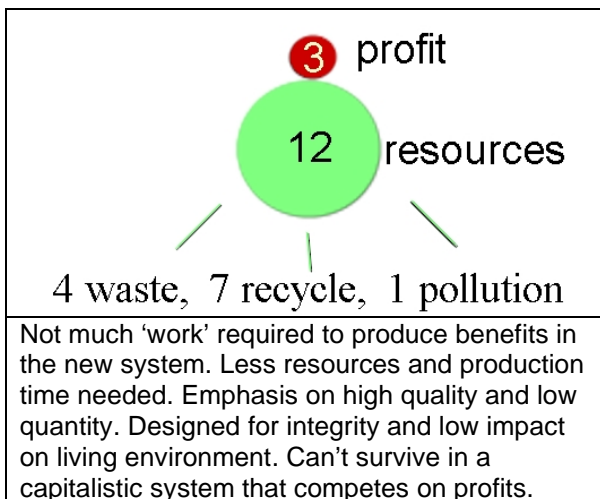

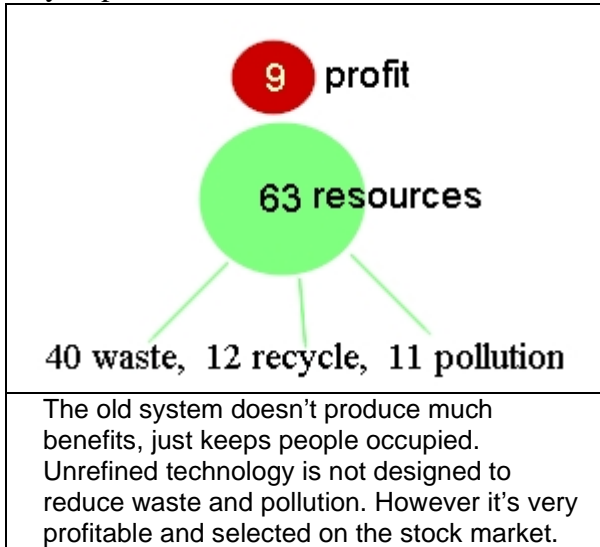

The biosphere, showing us how to do it right, has a circular stream of resources. Each output of a utilization or process is the input of another utilization or process. There is no waste.

Global Leadership will initiate that all activity follows this natural circular principle, aiming at above 90% benefits and reducing dumping to near zero. Waste is only necessary in a capitalistic system where more waste means more profit. The sooner products turn to waste the more can be sold, the more money is to be made. Capitalism can't get its eyes off waste because it is so profitable.

If you buy a pair of shoes, you get some that break down soon and others that last much longer. Why is it that products last not as long as they used to? With more sophisticated technology shouldn't we get more value for money instead of more rubbish for money?

In order to maximize profits, waste and fake value must be produced. Rubbish produces more profits for capitalists than benefits for humanity. The 'make a buck' system creates hyperactivity to produce and remove rubbish.

As a manager, you are an expert in wealth extraction. You coordinate human- material- and financial resources in space and time to achieve optimum profit for a particular section of the wealth extraction machinery. Later in your career, you will realize that the accounting ritual and economic laws prevented you from acting responsible towards Earth and its inhabitants, because profitability is a narrow-minded measure that does not determine whether the activities are beneficial or detrimental to our world. You'll understand that a wellbeing increase through coordinated activities is required to advance this planet, and not a profit increase as demanded by capitalists.

The high priest level is dominated by structures not by people. You are faithfully selected to fit into the group-think of a corporation, government, bank, church, university, legal court etc. You have to submit yourself to those structures. If you have your own opinion you will be expelled, because this is the most critical level for the game to work. So, you have to be tempted with money and status to undergo a mind transformation. To go on board of those institutions you have to throw your human values over board. If you ever have to make the decision between advancing your institution or protecting life from your institution you are compelled to select the first.

Those structures are like time capsules with you inside, watching how time passes you by, turning yourself into a relict of the past. You are retarded by ancient civilization structures. Because you try a time-standstill, you appear silly in the eyes of bystanders. To compensate for that, you have to employ a brainwash-machinery called 'media' to make yourself look respectable. You know that your success depends on how long you can sustain your information assault to harass and ridicule those who do not fit into your narrow view of existence. The heavier the assault the easier your lies turn into truth.

Like in history, the high priests float on fabricated truth towards heaven on Earth, leaving the obedient sheep behind in misery. Humanity cannot expect much help at this level because the high priests suffer heavily from group-think: they follow their doctrines instead of their heart, they are liabilities. Humans who look into the high priest zoo wonder "what can it be, that makes those mammals trap themselves in their own cages, fences and borders?"

At the top level, you are in a dream-state of ballooning. People carry you on their shoulders and you feel good about it. You only wake up when the balloon pops, when everyone realizes that they carry you, and ask themselves why they should carry you. If you cannot answer their question, people may drop you and you have to walk on your own. Your brainwash (PR) experts make the media portray you as the "good guy". The more you incorporate power and wealth the narrower your mindset gets. You sense that you are nearly at an end of driving the WEM, so, in a frantic frenzy you engage in a last-minute betrayal of planet Earth before the WEM comes to a grinding halt.

Presently we observe the last tantrum of capitalists who behave like dominators on Earth and not like guests.

Wealth Imbalance

A system that gradually increases the wealth imbalance is not in itself stable. It needs to be stabilized with violence.

Take away all weapons and structural violence and the wealth imbalance can not be maintained anymore.

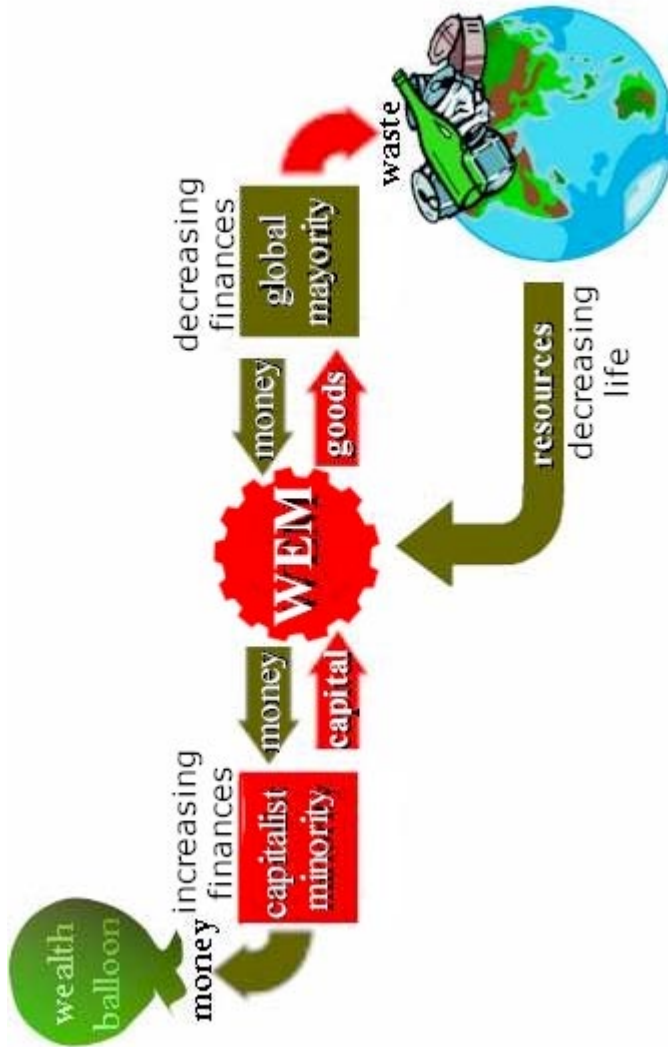

A free planet without coercion is incompatible with a capitalistic system that relies on an imposed wealth imbalance for its existence.

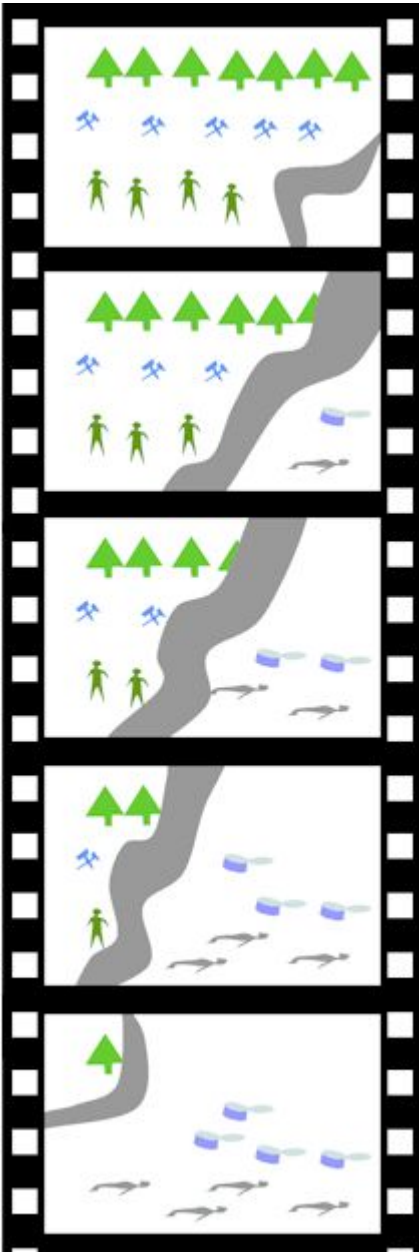

Society becomes inefficient and even inoperable if the wealth imbalance gets extreme.

With extrapolation, we could calculate how long it takes until one person or group owns everything and all others own nothing on this planet.

Why does the global majority experience a relative decline in wealth?
 Redundant and destructive human activity 50%
 Wealth removal by capitalists from the finite wealth pool 30%
 Disproportionate population increases amongst the poor 20%

Capitalistic civilization chewing itself through resources, leaving mainly waste behind. In a few millennia, this once beautiful planet will be a gigantic heap of waste only.

We had priests rule with superstition and leaders rule with weapons; now capitalists rule the world with rubbish.

No country can escape from this one way wealth stream. Even violent and oppressive nations like Russia and China, opposed to capitalism, are forced to conform to the ritual of this gigantic MLM system. Compelled to submit themselves to the global high priests, most countries increase the amount of waste to be dumped. No nation can stop this destructive system anymore; individual institutions have lost control over it. Only you with your fellow grass roots leaders have the power to change it.

In the competitive capitalistic game, it is you against everything on this planet. You take in most instances more than you give. You are the winner and have made many losers. You gain at the loss of your environment. You believe you have to tell people what to do. If they do not obey, you have to force them through violence, coercion or brainwash.

In the cooperative Global Leadership game, it is your team against stupidity. You benefit your team, that's Earth and its inhabitants. You do not make your environment and people lose. You play against stupidity, which is the destruction and inefficient utilization of this planet's resources.

In a capitalistic civilization, you have only two choices: wealth or poverty. If you understand the ritual, you can choose your level between wealth and poverty. If you do not understand or don't like the ritual, you have no choice but poverty. If you follow your natural nourishing instinct, you definitely end up in poverty according to the capitalistic system.

A free capitalistic market cares only about those who can pay. Earth, life and the poor cannot pay that is why they are disregarded. Capitalists starve them by destroying their natural living environment! So, that in the end, the poor have to kiss the dirty feet of the capitalists just to survive. Looking at it that way shows how fundamentally flawed the economic system is. It is flawed to such an extend that it appears to have criminal intentions. What do you think, is it criminal to rob humanity and Earth of wellbeing to enhance the lives of a few?

Economy based on trade and commerce in itself is very beneficial, only that it has been high-jacked by capitalists, who demand tribute to greed, makes its operation detrimental.

Capitalism needs three sorts of people

1. Many money-slaves to do the work
2. Few capitalists to accumulate wealth
3. An increasing number of soldiers, police and bureaucrats to defend the loot

Capitalists have to extract wealth to propagate themselves and their civilization. They violently resist attempts of change. They are predisposed to defend themselves and their Wealth Extraction Machinery for the good of themselves and their few servants.

This system was workable a few hundred years ago when humanity had a limited impact on the planet but now it turns into something detrimental that has not been encountered before.^{xii}

The problem is the size of this system. To change such a large ritualistic system takes a long time - but time seems to be running out. So what to do?

The worldwide pressure for change is mounting rapidly but the high priests (strongly suffering from group-think) cannot read the sign of the time. Their communication is hampered by ritualistic activities that are hardwired in their brain. They defend the destructive Wealth Extraction Machinery by all means.

The three fatal errors of capitalism:

- [1] to put the emphasis on money instead of activities prevents global activity coordination, resulting in a small inefficient economic engine stifled by irrational wars and competition.
- [2] to insist on wealth increase instead of wellbeing increase causes evil wealth empires and destructive technology that creates more waste than benefits.
- [3] to defend itself with a growing mountain of weapons shows inherent stupidity, and will make it disappear within the next generations.

Plain greed supported by violence will never survive in a well-informed intelligent society, that humanity is growing into. Capitalism needs stupidity to prosper.

Capitalism is to humanity like dope to a human body
Both achieve short-term superiority over competitors but are ruining in the long run
Dope has been banned officially from the Olympic games
When will capitalism be banned from the world?

Capitalists always believe that they are the pinnacles of evolution. They don't realize in their ignorance that humanity can progress better without them and their culture of greed. Capitalism, same as church and state, is based on historic lies and deception of dominators. Together they fabricate the law that makes sure they remain on top of the pecking order to coerce tribute from their submissives. Blasphemy laws makes people appreciate the pecking order instead of justice. But no matter how frantically capitalists bend and twist the law, they can't escape ultimate justice – no one can!

No matter how much brainwash the capitalists churn out to stem the tide they are at their end and they know it. Nevertheless, they still send their armies of 'scientific' economists against the public to get the global non-capitalist population 'scientifically' milked.^{xiii} Not unlike tobacco companies fabricate 'scientific' proof that allows them to torture billions of people with a significantly reduced health. Now that weapon manufacturers are more scrutinized by the global public they will fabricate scientific proof that people and institutions need their products of horrific life destruction.

What do governments need weapons for? - if not to destroy people and their wellbeing. Inflicting mental and physical suppression on the population through structural violence, and nutritional, emotional starving will have grave consequences for capitalism once the public becomes increasingly aware about it.

To accomplish prosperity and wellbeing increase within humanity it is necessary to outlaw the greedy bunch and their heavily defended Wealth
Extraction Machinery

Strategic downfall of capitalism

The expansion into all nations around the world will be the first step to disintegration of capitalism. Once capitalists reside everywhere around the globe, no particular nation can defend them anymore. There is no hiding behind weapons anymore.

However, as long as the global population is not united, it is vulnerable to corporate predators that utilize government's weapons arsenals to protect the WEM.

How do people relate to the Wealth Extraction Machinery?

- Greedy people take part in it for their own gain. They don't care for others
- Stupid people join for fun or own gain. They believe all others and the environment gain too
- Exploited people need to participate to survive. They are the modern-day money slaves
- Discarded people have been dumped. They make up the growing mountain of human scrap

The growing majority of poor

we have to eat the destroyed food we have to breathe the polluted air we have to be slaves to get money it's so sad we can't reach the next step of evolution because of a greedy few

Capitalism gave humanity a kick-start to industrialization. It works like the starter on a car. Governments have the urge to continue running the car with the starter. Global Leadership will disengage the starter and use the engine instead.

Present physical utilization of humanity is less than 40%; mental utilization is less than 1%.

New leadership will utilize those untapped resources to over 90% in both cases so that they are not wasted. Global Leadership will unleash the real power of humanity.

Government decay

Present governments are a minority group of fanatics who believe in forcing their will on the unconsenting global majority of humans. Why? Because the historic legacy of domination-submission is deeply entrenched in today's governments.

Governments encourage primitive pecking orders and archaic revenge rituals. Pecking orders to create winners and revenge rituals to punish losers.

Governments are monopolies with only one per country. Governments have a secure income from their citizens and do not need to improve. But like so many monopolistic enterprises driven by greed, they create immense inefficiencies costly to society.

The inherent problems of monopolies are:

- * Group-think
- * Inefficiency, waste
- * Rigid structure, unable to adapt to our fast changing world
- * Control by (structural) violence

Changing the management in a monopoly does not make it produce more benefits. Same like changing the politicians after several years does not improve government. People realize that the tools to control government become more and more ineffective because governments carefully avoid population participation to retain their monopolistic status. Governments want to decide what's best for the population - they don't let the people decide for themselves. We experience problems every day when monopolies rule our lives. But can we live without governments?^{xiv}

Direct or indirect feedback loop?

direct feedback loop

The indirect feedback loop is prone to error and abuse while interpreting population opinion

Because of powerful political coercion and propaganda, most people believe there is no other way, we have to keep those governments. "We called the devil, now we have to live with it!"^{xv}

No matter what they tell you, this is only a belief not reality. Reality is that the people can turn over all aspects of governments to a new form of leadership that comprises of more individuals than the old government in an administrative framework.

In such a case the population would vote on proposals from an administrative body and participate in building, updating and keeping alive a Global Civilization Model. That means, voting weekly or daily on basic and specific issues rather than voting on personalities every several years.

How to control the government creature?

Creatures that increasingly use violence instead of intelligence to adapt to the environment devolve into a dead-end towards their own extinction.

Today humanity is governed by 0.02% of the global population = less than one thousandth of the available brainpower.

How far can you go with your car
 if you use only one thousandth of its power?

Don't press the button!

You want commerce not to press the button that destroys the world. What authority do you have? There is not much authority left within you. You gave it to a government that doesn't do what you want it to do because it deteriorated into a money addict, drugged by commerce.

Where does the government get its goodies from? From the wealth extractors - not from the population. The population pays with public taxes that need to be allocated. The wealth extractors pay with secret bribes that can be kept. So, why should government officials care much about the population?

Capitalists bought governments to exterminate opponents with weapons and law; they bought the media to silence any opposition with brainwash and scientific lies. Those who have more than others somehow have to defend their larger portion. That's where governments come in to coerce inequality and enforce tribute to greed. To worship the pecking order is seen as essential by an army of bureaucrats who have been 'bought' by capitalists. Once they start to peck with their pecking toys made by capitalists the world feels more explosive and large numbers of people suffer under dominator maniacs.

- One quarter ($1/4$) of the world population uses three quarters ($3/4$) of global resources.
- Three quarters ($3/4$) of the world population uses one quarter ($1/4$) of global resources.
- One quarter ($1/4$) of the world population uses two quarters ($2/4$) of global resources to defend themselves.

...for security, protection, defense, weapons, war, borders, governments, legal system, patents, copyrights etc. (for a massive protective system to feed the rich and starve the poor)

??do we live in times of growing stupidity??

Wasted to protect $1/4$ of the population against equality. Wasted to defend domination – submission relationship.

It's obvious, we live in times of growing stupidity!

Waste is a necessary evil byproduct to maintain domination - submission relationships within humanity. Wasting resources, wasting time, wasting human lives. $\frac{3}{4}$ of the global population are stripped of their livelihood to protect a greedy few. If you are poor, a system that makes you pay tribute to domination, has been imposed on you against your will and sometimes against your knowledge. This system keeps you in a obedient mode making you adore your submissiveness and never wholeheartedly criticize dominators.

Contemporary governments are abused to protect previously accumulated loot of people and institutions. Much of the limited global resources are squandered to do just that. You can't blame the elitist looter nor the criminal looter if society structures encourage people to loot. You have to blame the government to maintain and defend obsolete looting structures that make looting a sport and issue trophies to 'winners'. Fostering a society mindset of greed leads to excessive legal and illegal looting. Which in essence can be traced back where the dominating ruler usually looted the clan that lost the battle into submissiveness.

We can't blame those people and institutions who were engaged in wealth extraction in the past. But we have to make those accountable who insist on a continuation of wealth extraction and accumulation to the detriment of humanity's wellbeing.

Seduced by the hypnotic force of wealth, governments around the world have sold out the population and their public assets to capitalists. Now, capitalistic governments are the major protectors of inequality within humanity, trying to stem the poverty-tide with increasing structural violence. Scapegoating is used to prove that the government is right and the people are wrong; and an increasing amount of funds is squandered to hunt deviants who dare to undermine this selfish system.

Bureaucrats and politicians look around, frantically trying to find the foe, unaware that the real enemy is their own mean and unjust mind. Of course they are mentally handicapped, because they don't understand that the more violence they push into the world, the more negative repercussions they reap in future.

Consequently, the leading governments and their cronies in the UN pay only lip service to justice in the world because they are still hypnotized by seductive forces of capitalism. It is unlikely that governments which dutifully worship the financial hierarchy will ever escape this seduction of wealth. That means, global justice will never happen as long as there is a linear thinking male dominated civilization with narrow-minded financial rituals to follow. Those rituals obscure reality to such an extent that people believe there is no other way, they must follow the call of money from the elite instead of following the call for wellbeing from humanity.

If you crawl along the predefined bureaucratic maze you'll never find your destiny

Religion is even further removed from our actual reality. Religion talks only to individuals, it ignores civilization structures. Its naïve message to you is like this: "be a good kid and everything will be OK - no one will push the button, papa God will take care about that."

Go humanity, go!

Break through the stupidity and superstition barrier to evolve further!

People don't mind to discuss any issue. Politicos and bureaucrats have been brainwashed not to touch the real issues, only the 'politically correct' ones. They defend their taboos. They enforce their ancient blasphemy law that allows them to censor you to death.

What a pack of idiots! Complete out of touch with reality. It's obvious they have a mental problem.

That means Earth will be messed up more by those delusives until they hand over power to the people, or the people throw them out of office.

Rulers who have built their civilization on lies and deception do have extreme difficulties to face the truth. They censor and manipulate communication to downright rig the vote.

Vote, or not to vote?

People realize that they do not make the difference anymore, if they vote or not. Dwindling voter participation has undermined the credibility of politicians. It shows that today's governments are based in thin air, and are not grounded in solid population support. Outdated democracy and obsolete voting structures need to be changed, and evolved into massive population participation.

- participation with new leadership on the Internet is your means of 'making the difference'
- participation on the Web will bring a new administration
- participation on the Web will eliminate the middleman of government
- a big and important difference is that you lead with ideas, and don't have to follow politicians
- leading humanity through the Web lets us focus on the right way, instead of worrying about our scouts who got lost.

Our present election & voting system has been adequate for the Industrial Stone Age but now it is totally obsolete. It has degraded to a Hollywood showbiz PR stunt. People blinded by this smokescreen have no chance to voice their real opinion and end up in a bureaucratic dictatorship.

As the people say:

“No matter who you vote for, the government wins!”

If you do not believe in global responsibility, just give it some time and consideration. Responsibility will knock on your door again. It is up to you if you let it in or lock it out. Irresponsible humans who don't care about their descendants future and their living environment are a great burden to Earth already, how much more so in future? You either take responsibility or give your responsibility away. If you are so foolish to give it away, you must not wonder why things breaking apart around you.

Dictatorship enforces the delusions of the elite

We feel better if there are less restrictions, rules and regulations against our will. Our wellbeing is reduced when structural violence (dictatorship) decreases our freedom. Naturally, we would love to have unrestricted freedom to increase our wellbeing.

In such a scenario dictatorship, freedom or democracy are easy measurable quantities. Moreover, those quantities can be indicators for mankind's wellbeing.

The ultimate dictatorship is when one person forces his will on all others; everyone has to follow the orders of one person against their own will. If we have a population of 6 billion this would mean a dictatorship of 99.9999998% and freedom or democracy of 0.00000002%

The least dictatorship exists if 6 billion people force their will on one person giving us 0.00000002% dictatorship and 99.99999998% freedom. Complete unrestricted freedom exists if everyone agrees, and no one is forced.

Today democracy settles somewhere in between those two extremes, but closer to dictatorship than freedom. Probably 66% dictatorship to 33% freedom, more than 2/3 of the global population disagrees with the political leaders of this world. Some people estimate 80% dictatorship! That is why we are aiming to move our world more towards freedom in future.

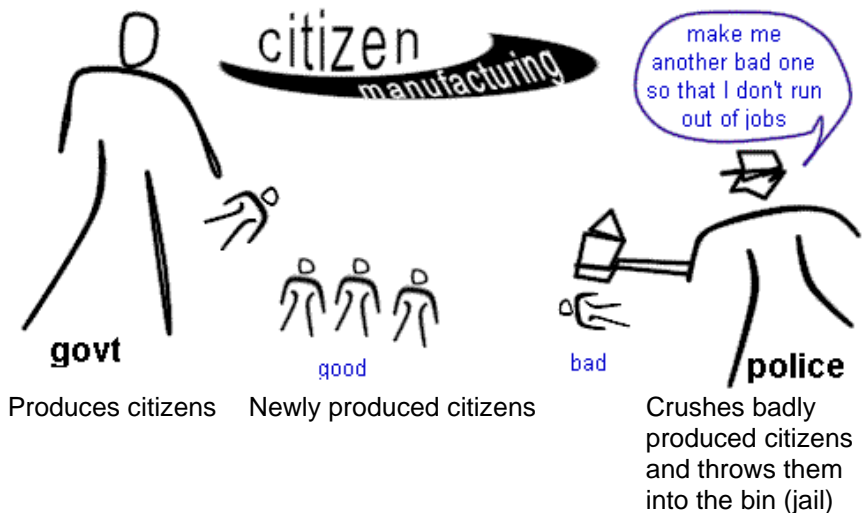

But where exactly on the scale, between total dictatorship and unrestricted freedom, can we find today's society?

There is no answer to this question yet. Soon we will use the Internet to find the answer, because this is of much interest to every person on this planet.

Why rubbish citizens?

Today's government is mainly concerned about money not about the quality of its citizens. Mathematics and accounting have replaced common sense to understand humans and life. Officials are better equipped to discuss budget deficits than basic human needs and rights. Bureaucrats have been mass-produced by universities to fit into the web of pecking orders obliged to pay tributes to greed. Then it's their turn to mass-produce citizens, but with poor skills many things go wrong. More and more people need to be dumped to keep bureaucrats busy. Leeches, thieves, bludgers and people who don't 'work' are the results of this malfunctioning society, creating big business in the legal system.

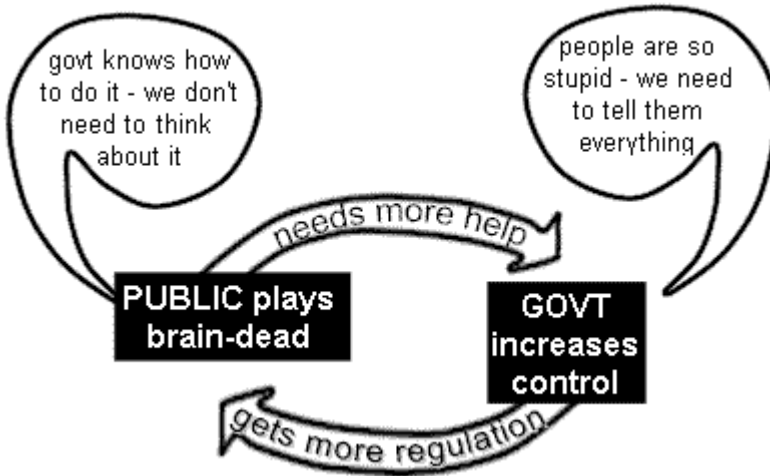

Why don't we require the government to produce only good citizens?

As long as society has an unspoken consensus that outsiders or deviants need to be punished into conformity to reduce diversity, it will be infested with violence

Role reversal

As easy as it is for institutions to crush individuals or groups of humans today, so easy should it be for individuals to crush institutions in future. Even though existing governments do not give you access to change obsolete civilization structures, people will soon develop the necessary tools to redesign civilization structures, as well as mental and physical evolutionary processes. For that people need to vote, voice their opinion and be heard. As for now, governments are dominating.

The reinforcing cycles of growing bureaucratic regulation and increased public stupidity.

The net effect is decreasing mental capacity and capability; dragging society down to lower levels of existence. Creative problem solutions are almost non-existent. People are forced to crawl along the intricate maze of procedures and policies

Most people want a quick fix by “somebody” to repair our ailing planet. They think someone will do it for them. They are unaware that it is their responsibility because governments have successfully trained the population into a bystander attitude. We can see that Big Brother is well and alive. Those who thought they could get a check on Big Brother, after Orwell had exposed him, realize that they have been defeated by the giga institution; - the BBBB complex. The Big Business & Ballooning Bureaucracy complex dominates life on Earth like never before making everyone compliant to obey narrow-minded procedures.

Nationalistic spiral towards increasing global tension, destruction and human suffering

The interactive process of instilling national pride amongst citizens and their government results in competition and tension between nations. Governments as the 'clever' part should avoid fostering national pride; but they have to play the pride game to 'win' against other nations. Citizens feel patriotic and want their government to be more aggressive and demanding in the international arena. Sport, faith, cultural, economical and political issues lead to a rush into better armament and increasingly sophisticated military and trade wars.

Many delirious politicians said wars have advanced humanity. They are right, war did advance humanity but along the wrong way. It advanced humanity into destructive technology that is like sand in the gears of life. Resulting in an increasingly destructive humanity. As a matter of fact, war coordinated human activities to kill each other! Politicians never seem to know that only nonviolent conflict resolution based on interactive communication can coordinate humans to produce benefits for each other. If government's emphasis had been put on communication instead of violence throughout history, humanity would be less infested with violence and in a much better position now. Even today, the militaries don't understand that war is at an end, that no one in the world wants to wage war, only the mentally diseased. They don't understand that we have a medical problem not a military problem. It's time to collect the weapons and those addicts who like to play with weapons, to assure the safety of global citizens. Our present violent state of the world is the result of insanity.

When will governments wake up and stop pushing coercively their ideological dreams, and do what they supposed to do: translate humanity's will into activities? None of them ever tried to find out what humanity really wants. Every one of them tries to push its own little group-think as 'the best'. Forcing the population to accept what's 'good' for them.

In the end, justice will prevail. No one can escape ultimate justice forever. Even officials shielded within their high security government fortress, who cowardly plan witch-hunts and scapegoating, will be scrutinized by the public that is less and less tolerant of violence in our society. Eventually, governments as producers and defenders of violence will be brought to justice. Increasing the number of scapegoats and terrorizing the population will not stop the declining credibility of governments. Terrorizing bureaucrats dig their own graves - in the end, the people will get rid of them. Mentally diseased rulers who lived contrary to their natural environment had for too long time a free hand to mess up the world.

Once the population controls global affairs, instead of violent disconnected nuts, there will be peace and much more stability within humanity.

Weapons are the passport for violence.

As you can't travel far without a passport, violence does not reach far without weapons. Only an unarmed society can be the base for our new civilization.^{xvi}

WEAPONS = WASTE
To waste is stupid
And stupidity rules the world today

The only need for weapons today is to enforce the wealth imbalance and assure its expansion.

The more weapons there are in this world, the more violence we have between the people

When You Need To Fight To Resolve A Conflict...

Use the most sophisticated weapon on Earth: Intelligence. Load it with Love, Communication and Cooperation, aim it at your opponent and turn all his destructive weapons to dust.

- First, paralyze your opponent with love and understanding
- Second, communicate the conflict to as many humans you can reach and get their opinion. Convince your audience that the truth does not need to be defended with weapons. Nothing that increases global wellbeing needs to be defended with violence, only liars and thieves with sinister attempts to dominate hide behind weapons.
- Third, cooperate with the peaceful majority of humans to remove weapons, violence and domination to achieve settlement of conflict through communication.

It is better for people to solve their problems with intelligence instead of letting institutions solve problems with violence and weapons. The old-fashioned power games with force don't work anymore in our high-density populated, interconnected world. Communication, peaceful mediation is the only way to go. But how would you make nuts aware of this? – They just can't stop to maim people!

We can not continue to allow insane boys to play with their violent toys!

When the mob fights against the elite,
it's an act of terror.

When the elite terrorizes the mob,
it's called justice.

Elite: those with wealth and weapons who fabricate the law to their own advantage.

Mob: the powerless, who are forced to obey to their disadvantage.

Violence grew and became systemic

Violence is an activity to make humans and the environment suffer

Violence is a tool of stupidity to make quick decisions. The swiftness of violence makes it appealing to use, and together with its "no brainer" simplicity we have an ideal tool for dummies.

The act of violence always says:

I NEED TO DOMINATE YOU!

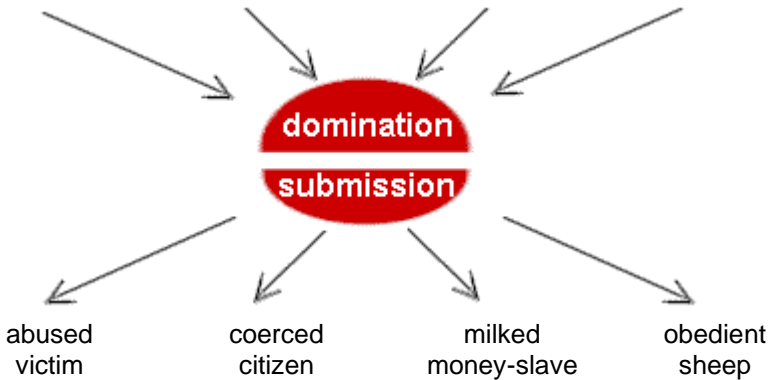

Don't do what I say and I...

Kill destroy
Military Criminal

Restrain mutilate
Society Law

Dispossess
liquidate
Financial Corporate

Expel
brainwash
Religious Superstitious

Submissives cannot develop their full potential and may be very concerned about being damaged by dominators.

To dominate

I need to take your life

I need to take your freedom

I need to take your sanity

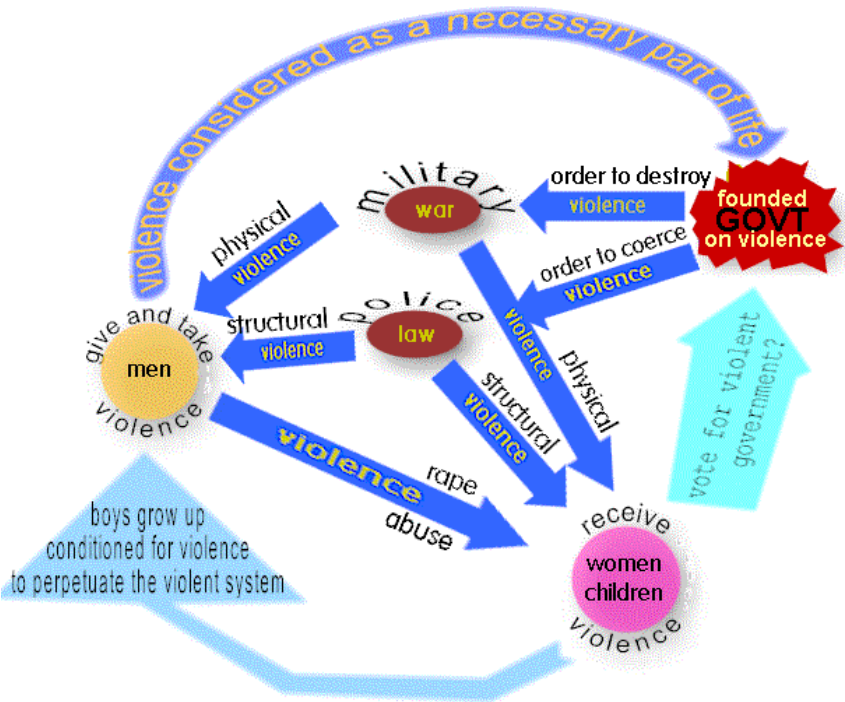

Humans have always worshipped violence for its power that is amplified with weapons:

- With physical violence you can destroy your opponent to remove a problem
- With structural violence you can confine and terrorize your opponent separate from you
- With subtle violence you can brainwash your crushed opponent to become a willing slave

Violence considered as a necessary part of life!

Human society has been trying to get a grip on violence for a long time. Nevertheless, violence goes around in circles; it is not easy to catch. It goes from parents to kids, from people to institutions, from institutions back to society and families again. If you feed violence into this system like governments do, you must not wonder why it cannot be eradicated.

We made laws to prevent crime and violence. We are getting better with intercepting violence at the personal level, using new ways of conflict resolution. However, there is a substantial trickle-down effect of violence from governments into the population.

Systemic violence circulates in the bloodstream of a destructive civilization

Look for instance on a dog trainer who can sell you very cuddly peaceful dogs, or the most violent security dog ready to attack everything. Governments are like this trainer; they set up the population to be a peaceful society or a violent aggressive mob. The more a government acts in a coercive, repressive or defensive manner the more violent become not only its own people but the world society en large that feels threatened by the potential violence of growing weapon stockpiles. The massive violence ripples from huge weapon arsenals around the world, to protect and increase capitalistic loot, jitter through the fabric of society. Violence waves plough through families and upset their natural peaceful relationship.

No matter how many laws the government enacts to suppress violence in its own population, it seems to pop up everywhere. Because violence that is pushed by politicians will ultimately end up in the family, either in their own nation or in another country. Only obsolete governments believe they can create peace and justice with weapons, but they are governed by stupidity.

Caucasians and whites expanded globally by means of violence and not by peaceful negotiation. They used violence to grab whatever they wanted. The repercussions of this expansion activity are still strongly felt around the world. However, their naivete makes them wonder where all this violence comes from today. They do not understand that violence and domination is to the Caucasian like water to the fish. Caucasians are so immersed in violence that it became invisible to them.

Whenever the thin veneer of hypocritical Christian culture over the white savage civilization gets ripped Nazi violence starts to flow and democracy can be kissed goodbye

Men have been violence brokers throughout history, starting from those times when they defended their family against predator animals. This instinctive in-built defense system is nowadays not useful anymore because terrifying animal species have become extinct or decimated to save levels. Actually, violence should be a relict of the past, if abusive rulers who pit humans against humans would not need it for their power games. Misguided (mentally sick) people have kept violence artificially alive within humanity.

When men set up governments that maintain military and police forces, they base such governments on violence. The violence necessary to maintain a dominating administrative system inevitably spills over into the population. There, it becomes an accepted way of life. This happened throughout history until now. Violent activities considered as 'normal' can be observed everywhere around the world today. The total destruction all forms of violence are causing to Earth and its inhabitants can hardly be estimated. Even now, everywhere around the world you can see governments squirt a never-ending stream of violence into the population, locally and globally.

Do we need to keep it that way?

Once women are able to throw all violent entities out of governments, like military, police violence, punishing laws and all arms, we will have not only permanent peace on this planet, but also a very low level of violence and crime. Active women, who will do that^{xvii}, can be sure of strong support by females, children and all nonviolent men. Together, they easily will become the majority on this planet and subsequently make the decisions.

Violence can be squeezed out of this world with a concerted effort of all peace loving people. Communication through the Web will be the key to coordinate those efforts and make them successful.

Levels of violence:

- The activity of competition can make me lose
- The activity of brainwash can make me stupid
- The activity of coercion can make me feel bad
- The activity of fists can hurt me
- The activity of guns can kill me
- The activity of tanks can wipe out my country
- The activity of nuclear weapons can wipe out my species
- The activity of altered gravity can wipe out my planet

Weapons are the most vicious incarnation of violence

Violence always results in losers and inefficiency. Knowing all that, it is surprising that violence is still so widespread throughout society today.

Why?

Its short-term benefits as a timesaving instrument of control make it addictive. Like smoking, it makes you feel good without consideration of the long-term implications.

We have to realize that we can be addicted to violence. We also have to realize that we cannot maintain violence-addictions in our new evolving civilization.

Four easy steps to reduce violence and make war impossible:

1. Establish an unarmed, international and gender mixed police force that prevents violence and promotes nonviolence. This peacekeeping force gets its authority from the global population. Acting on behalf of the global population to:

- safeguard the rights and well-being of the global population
- organize the systematic destruction of all weapons
- keep humanity weapons free
- keep humanity violence free

2. Remove weapons and end all militarization. Send military personnel back to civilian life. Destroy all weapons and recycle the remains.

3. Evolve existing municipalities to a global administration, dismantle national governments and borders, and expand communication infrastructure to include all humans in decision making.

4. Base the global legal-system on nonviolence (nourishment). Create a new law that is fit to serve the global population. The new law has to focus activities towards well-being increase and obtain justice for all humans and Earth

First of all, people like you and me need to agree with people around the world on this issue. If everyone wants a nonviolent world, we can have it! If all people unite that have been divided by violent and coercive governments, war and other destructive activities can be eliminated by a united mankind.

You may say, a united mankind is impossible. Yes, just a few years ago it seemed impossible but now, with the Internet, the best communication tool we ever had, it will become not only possible, but also soon a reality. On the Net, we can make global agreements that will be binding for our peaceful cooperation, coexistence and evolution.

Once most of us find out that we are humans and not Africans, Americans, Asians, Europeans, capitalists, communists, Christians, Moslems or whatever, the wars will be over. But until now, many power brokers are not aware that everything is interrelated on this planet and their severe group-think reduces cooperation and communication between all humans with institutionalized structural violence.

Every person or group can absorb a certain amount of violence before it overflows

When society is overflowing with violence, it destroys itself and its environment.

Today's society carries more violence than love because all governments produce violence but no love

Where are the institutions that fill love into our society?

Shouldn't human administration pour love and understanding into the population instead of structural violence?

Coming to terms with our primitive pecking order

	PECKING ORDER		EQUALITY
	Poor communication	Good communication	Excellent communication
PARENT KID	Bash needed to raise 'good' kids	Verbal coercion to obey	Only nourishing no coercion
MAN WIFE	Bashing and rape seen as normal	Discussion establishes hierarchy	No need to prove hierarchy
GOVERNMENT POPULATION	Dictatorship (oppressor rules)	Democracy (government rules)	Direct Democracy (people rule)
FIRST WORLD THIRD WORLD	Racial and national border defense with weapons	Diplomatic conflict resolution to obey borders	No dividing lines between groups (borderless world)
GODS HUMANS	Angry punishing external god	Loving forgiving external god	Individual gods reside in people

The cause for most violence is the pecking order. It is most predominant and visible in the military where people are so much pecked that they lose their natural orientation and kill humans cold blooded on demand. This pecking order flows from the master-dominator, an imagined all powerful source like a god that controls the universe down to the vegetable that's cut off with a knife.

Humanity in the middle ground is stratified with a tall hierarchy. Humans, nations and institutions compete for the higher places in this hierarchy to receive benefits from ascertaining their power over the lower levels. Lower levels are enforced with structural violence to pay tribute to higher levels. Nonpayment of tribute is punished. The taller the hierarchy the more violence is needed to maintain it. That means, the greater the gap between rich and poor (that is widened by the financial pecking order), the more structural violence is needed to maintain the system.

The financial hierarchy gets taller and taller, while the supporting base of capitalistic pecking orders gets narrower. Extremely tall hierarchies that need massive amounts of violence [army, police, and bureaucracy] for their stability are inefficient and unable to produce benefits for the population. Once a particular inefficiency threshold is reached, the system starts to crumble.

How much power do you need to enforce your pecking order?
Enough violence to kill?

Financial

Kills through starvation (poor nation famine)

Maims through inadequate food intake (global malnourishment, world hunger)

National

Kills through military and legal system (military war, death penalty)

Maims people with the legal system (prison system)

Spiritual

Kills in line with religious commands (holy war, stoning, honor killings)

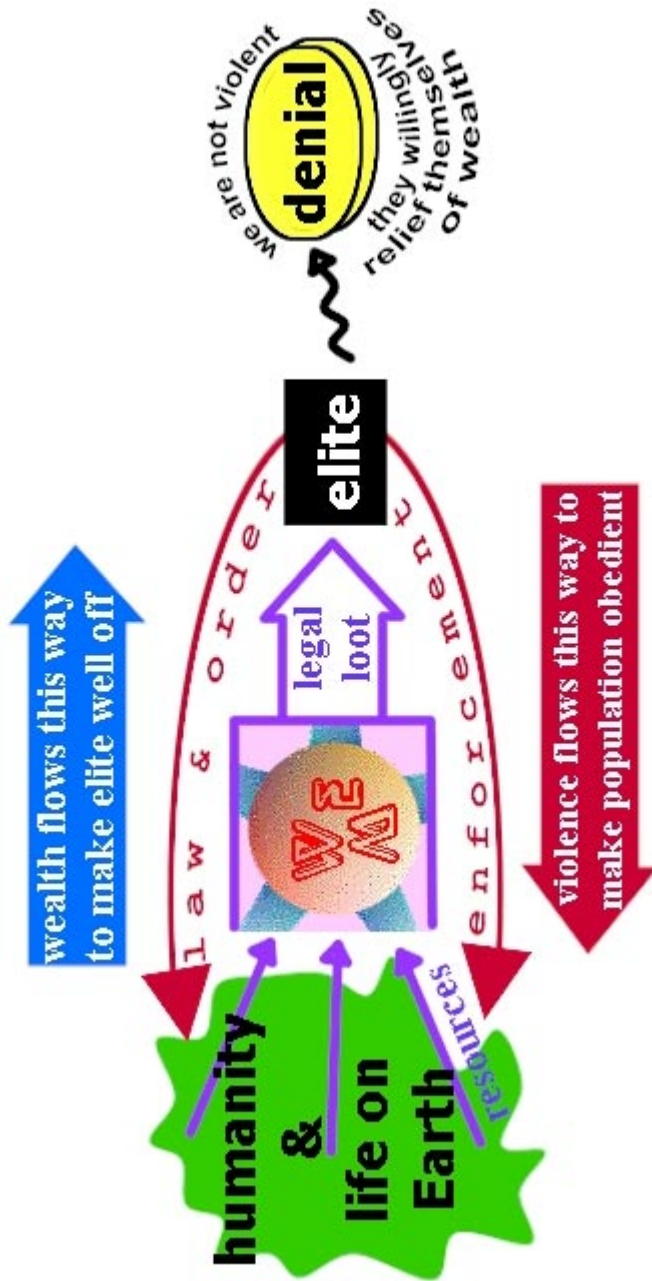

Maims people through religious directions (Islamic amputations, circumcision, clitoris removal)

Tall hierarchies kill and cause harm to human bodies. Mass emotional damage is common place in such societies.

There is a small minority within humanity who gains from the pecking order – the elite. Their intent is to keep humans pecking on each other so each individual finds its right position in the hierarchy of a competitive society. This diverts attention from those who win and maintain the inequality system. Dominators know, while subordinates compete to peck on each other they are less likely to question the legitimacy of dominator demands.

Governments are seduced by the mental morphine of denial that protects their violence taboo. Governments push a growing wall of violence into the future. Obviously, this can't be done indefinitely. Sooner or later the wall will crumble and bury governments under it.

GLOBAL SYSTEM OF OBEDIENCE

elite orders resources from humanity life & Earth

Stupidity breeds violence and greed

Violence, greed and stupidity are in a reinforcing cycle, spiraling us down to lower levels of existence

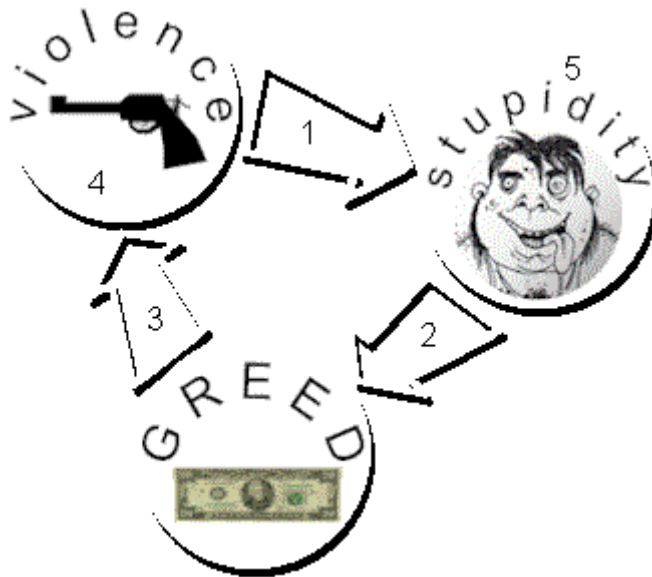

VIOLENCE = engaging in stupid activities of destruction and domination. Keep the violent unchecked and they grow more stupid and greedy.

STUPIDITY = allowing violence to make Earth and its inhabitants suffer. Give arms to the stupid and they ruthlessly satisfy their own greed.

GREED = growing stupidity to satisfy own need. Give sufficient power to the greedy and they make people more stupid.

1. Violence easily becomes greedy when it utilizes its power to organize a supply of wealth
2. Stupidity needs Violence to survive; without the protection of Violence Stupidity would cease to exist

3. Greed needs Stupidity to release wealth; Stupidity pays tribute to greed
4. Violence increases Stupidity by preventing self-determination and making truth a taboo.
5. Stupidity more than ever needs Greed to survive and pays tribute to Greed.

Violence, Stupidity and Greed gradually grow in severity. Violence increases destruction on Earth; Stupidity reduces the chance of evolution and Greed benefits in the short term from that situation.

All three of them fear Intelligence.

If Intelligence emerges, Stupidity will disappear. Intelligence is neither susceptible to Violence nor does it pay tribute to Greed. Intelligence has the ultimate expertise to reposition bodies in space and time solely through communication without the need for power (violence). So, the 3 of them work together to prevent Intelligence by inhibiting and obscuring interactive communication.

Greed uses structural violence to make people stupid. It coerces people to engage in stupid activities that are detrimental for the society as a whole.

Greed having a free ride on Stupidity cracking the whip of violence

If you don't obey the global wealth extractors to enable their free ride you'll be whipped. Disobedience results in military, police and commercial intervention.

Today we observe greed increasingly seeding Stupidity through the media. The media is abused to disseminate false information to continue Greed's free ride. The law of greed says:

Society has to be made and maintained stupid so that the majority doesn't understand they have been cheated.

Violence's delusions of grandeur are neither wanted nor needed. People shall not hesitate to damage and demolish human mental creations that are detrimental to the peaceful evolution on this planet such as:

- Society structures - that oppress people
- Laws - that punish and coerce
- Taboos - kept to justify unjust activities
- Rituals - ceremonies that switch off intelligence e.g. daily worship of WEM
- Rules - coercive demands by dominators
- Group-think - encouraging activities damaging to outsiders
- Superstition - belief in non-existing entities' power
- Organizations, corporations and institutions -[1] that are harmful to human freedom and dignity -[2] that use and produce weapons to foster destruction and violence

When all people take responsibility for it

Violence Cube

The violence cube has three coordinates: time, equality and communication. Individuals are on a continuum from red to green. The conglomerate of individuals make up a society between red = destructive and green = creative.

Time

Not enough time given to solve a dispute problem with communication may invite a violent resolution.

Equality

Master slave relationships and dominator submissive hierarchies need violence to maintain and overthrow the system.

True communication

Lies and misunderstanding may be interpreted as domination attempts and fought.

It is the essence of intelligent life

It's fun to be a Violence Buster :)

Duty:

- [1] Spray love and understanding on people infested with violence
- [2] Educate people about the origin of violence
- [3] Bust violence out of society structures

If you are determined to remove the root of violence, you will inevitably come to the GL solution. So please, advance Global Leadership to remove the growing cancer of violence and cure humanity permanently with love and understanding as easy as one, two, three.

The evil forces of violence divide humanity with their sharp edges

United Humanity makes the sharp edges disappear

The love squeeze makes violence disappear

Money makes the world go down

You might not be aware of it, but commerce turned you already into a money addict - you cannot live without money anymore.

Just try to live for two weeks without money - the withdrawal symptoms will be extremely painful. If you do not know how to grow your own money, you may offer yourself as a slave to commerce to ease the pain.

Money is just an idea and as all human mental constructs, it is not visible, but it changes the habits of societies. If people act in strange ways as never before there must be some new ideas around. To an increasing number of people, the idea of money seems to be more attractive than the idea of god or democracy. In a way, money became the new global god to be worshipped.

To make money visible we manufacture papers and coins with numbers on them. Today money exists in computer storage as ones and zeros, where it is conveniently distributed electronically. This makes it much easier to handle in future. Soon most of the money circulation will happen through the Internet. When all money resides in a universal accessible Internet, banks will be obsolete. Financial Infrastructure Servers will efficiently distribute financial bits and bytes of the right amount to the right address at the right time.

Financial gravity

The most interesting feature of money today is financial gravity:

* Every unit of money has its own financial gravity

* The field of financial gravity gets stronger when more units of money combine

* Larger bodies of money have stronger forces to attract more money

It works like the solar system:

A stable system evolved from tiny particles of matter controlled by the gravity of a central large mass.

Money will take the same way, the central largest pool of money could be the world government controlling a planetary system of large enterprises through the force of financial gravity. All minute or uncontrollable bodies of money will inevitably be attracted by a larger body. This is a typical monetary system for wealth creation. It means, the amount of money common people hold will be more and more insignificant - making it easier for commerce to enslave people. This will happen over the next decades and centuries if the emphasis on wealth creation of our present monetary system is not changed.

The present economic and monetary system is mechanistic based on dead material, it does not cherish and utilize organic ways, let alone the spirit.

Thinking about economic output money acts like the gasoline in an engine. If we have a 200 cylinder engine (like our world with about 200 countries) putting more gas in one cylinder does not increase performance it even may damage that cylinder (because all countries are interlocked in a financial super structure). More gas evenly applied to all cylinders will improve performance of the economic engine and reduce poverty. Many cylinders don't seem to get enough gasoline, consequently reducing global economic output.

When we consider that the exhaust pipe of our global engine presently blows too much black smoke, it is wise to repair the economic engine before boosting power. Boosting smoke and pollution is undesirable that's why many nations cut down on activities or only engage in safe redundant activities, resulting in a world just idling ahead.

Today the environmentalists have the foot on the brake while the capitalists push on the gas making governments confused, unable to ratify appropriate activities. No one trusts the malfunctioning economic engine that produces more rubbish than goods; that's geared for redundancy instead of efficiency. So it's just kept idling and documented when it sputters and nearly stalls.

The basic function of money today, is to store wealth and to improve the exchange of goods and services. Those two functions lead to an undesirable contradiction: when money is accumulated on one side of society for storage, shortages may result on the other side that reduce liquidity.

We could exchange goods and services without money but that would be very inefficient. It would be like a car engine without oil. As an engine runs most efficient with the right level of oil, society runs most efficient with the right amount of money.

The lower the oil level gets, the greater the surface without protection of the lubricant, resulting in increased friction and growing inefficiency. In money terms: the more entities without financial liquidity the less efficient society gets. The facts today show that many global entities suffer from insufficient liquidity.

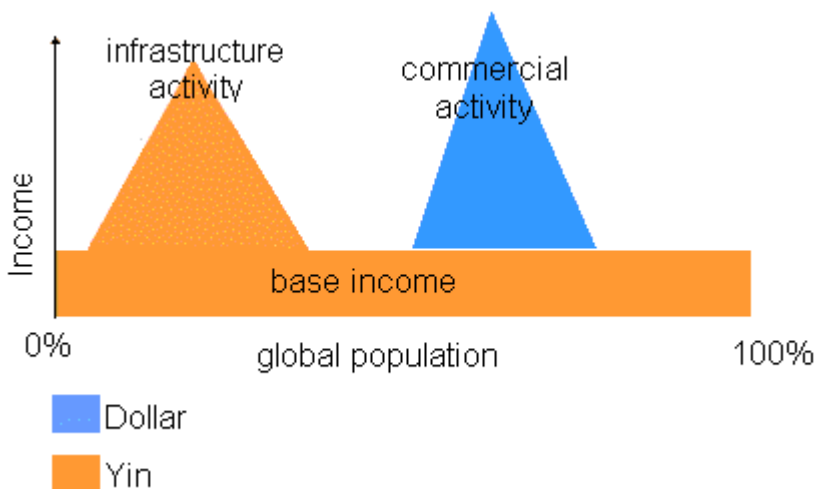

Experts try to control boom and bust cycles. However, because of limited understanding, economists take the wrath of the invisible hand for granted.

Two separate monetary systems, one for humanity and one for commerce would benefit humans. Commercial entities are run to make a profit. If humans have to participate in such a way, it ends up in a destructive rat race as we have it today. The race should be between the commercial entities only, not between humans. But that's not the way the wealth extraction machinery works today where humans are maimed between the economic gears.

There is a need for a new currency only distributed between humans. This currency has to be supplied at a high level of saturation to prevent dysfunctional human resources. Banks and commerce form a separate entity with their own national currencies and both of those monetary systems are linked via exchange rate. In that way, humans are sheltered from the exploitative system of commerce. Administration, Health and Education etc. that make up infrastructure will be together in the non profit monetary system with all individuals.

The distinguishing criteria for the additional monetary system will be 'creating beneficial activity' instead of 'creating wealth'. It is compatible with the present socioeconomic system and could be implemented immediately.

YIN expire at regular intervals to prevent wealth accumulation

BASE INCOME reduces human cost for commercial activities and frees people from slavery.^{xviii} It acts as a safety net when humans drop out of liquidated corporations that cannot survive the fierce competition. Corporations do not need to be subsidized to prevent unemployment.

Only the most sinister hypocrites would deny humans a base income. However many humans are excluded from this basic necessity. It is of outmost importance that every person on this planet receives income. This is easy to accomplish by adjusting the monetary system, and an urgent matter for the UN right now, to assure basic human survival in this regard. This could be accomplished soon because the only obstacle that needs to be overcome is the sick capitalistic ego.

“Teaching a man to fish is better than giving him a fish to eat”

The capitalist looter didn't tell that he caught all fish already. Such cynical half-truths are very annoying for third world countries that are taught by the UN how to fish. Now they waste most of their time fishing, but are still starving.

Existing system

Capitalists endorse new activities based on profitability.

New system

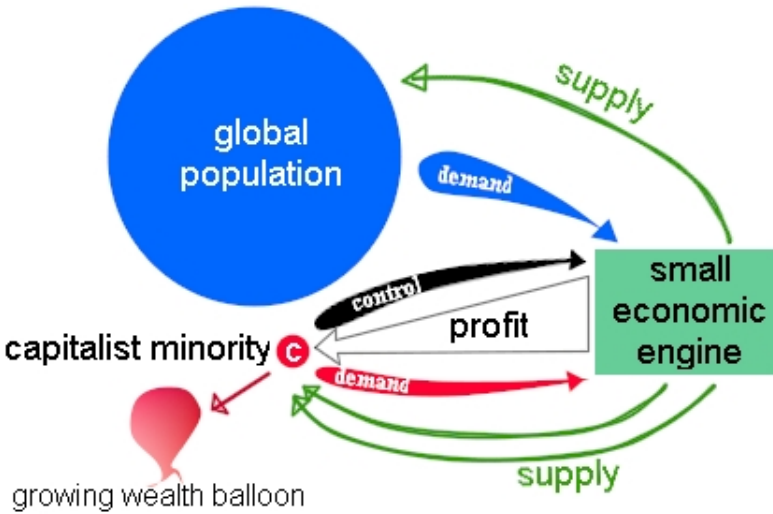

Administration approves only activities that produce wellbeing without negative effects.

Economic engine overhaul

There are about 1 percent pure capitalists amongst the global population. That percentage is shrinking.

Because the growing number of poor has no purchasing power the economic engine is relatively small, responding mainly to the demands of the elite.

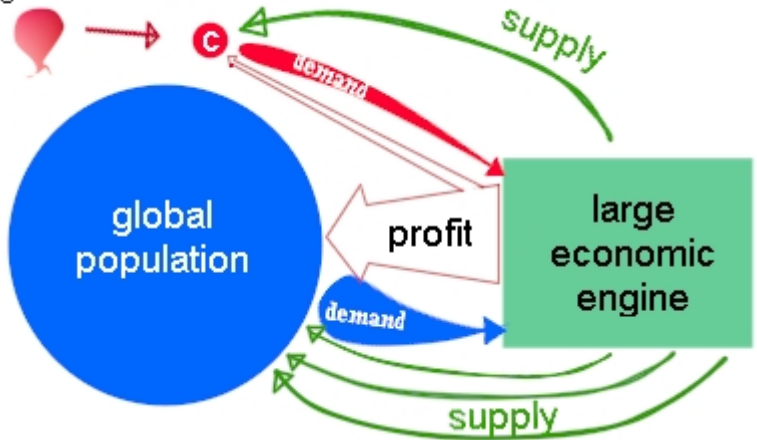

The limited demand one-way wealth stream oscillates through boom and bust cycles, depending on size of wealth balloon and purchasing power of population. The capitalistic elite controls the economic engine and approves only profitable activities through the stock market. This supply driven system has problems with large scale global infra structure projects that satisfy the needs of all people. Experts in wealth creation are honored and worshipped, experts in wellbeing creation are disregarded. Capitalists receive all profits from the economic engine. The population misses out. A minority siphons off wealth. The wealth balloon is kept separate from the population. The elite is not only supplied with usual utilities but also with many resources to defend their loot (wealth balloon). The cost of weapons, military, police, and legal institutions takes about half the economic output. Governments and capitalists act as useless parasites within this system. Deception and old-fashioned blasphemy is used to hide all this from the unwary and lure them into the WEM.

An easy change through the accounting system can provide all humans with their fair share of profit from productive entities, not only those who 'own' capital.

shrinking wealth balloon

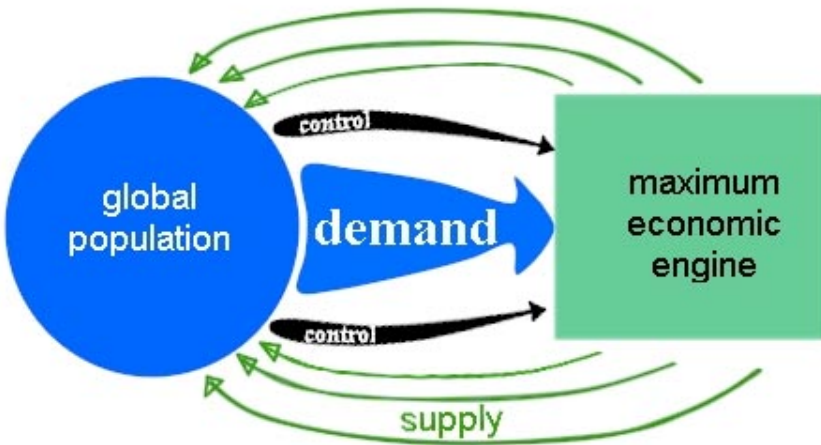

All people get their fair share from the profit of the economic engine. The wealth balloon empties via capitalists into the population. The demand driven circular resource stream flows more regular. All people participate to control the economic engine. The economic engine operates more efficient, steady and stronger without capitalists milking the global population. Governments are responsible that profits are equally shared amongst all people. How would a capitalistic ‘owner’ feel if he gets only his fair share?

The final stage.

When capital is considered public property, the economic engine is controlled by demand and needs of all humans, not by profitable supplies of capitalists nor by governments. Since superstitious beliefs in the invisible hand have been abandoned boom and bust cycles don’t exist anymore.

No evil activities are wasted to siphon off wealth to the elite.

No redundant activities are wasted to defend inequality.

No competitive activities are needed to produce profitable waste.

Prerequisites:

1. All people and productive entities need to be connected through communication infrastructure.
2. Economic engine is owned and controlled by all people.
3. Administration resides in citizens not in institutions.

How to find the Truth?

Today, the truth is not easy to find. It is usually hidden below a mountain of lies. You have to use your intelligence, and put some effort in, to dig for it. But how do you distinguish the truth from lies?

The truth is like the sun. Lies are like clouds that come and go at random to cover the sun. The truth is moving too, but more predictable. It advances every day, by one day. The truth of yesterday can easily become a lie today. You won't find the truth in the past, neither in the future; you'll find it only in the present.

You have to take today's train to go to the city. If you wait for yesterday's train to take you there, you'll wait forever and never arrive at your destination.

Communication is the key to find the truth. Use all available sensors to receive original information. Apply feedback and interactive communication to filter out lies and deception. If you are tortured with one way communication, demand interactive communication.

How far do you turn back time to find your religion?

Years ago	belief system	worships
30	Environmentalism	nature
200	Capitalism	invisible hand and greed
500	Nationalism	a section of Earth's surface
1,400	Islam	Allah and Mohammed
2,000	Christianity	god and Jesus
2,500	Buddhism	peace
4,000	Judaism	god
5,000	Taoism	the right way
10,000	Wicca, Shaman	gods and spirits
100,000,000	Dinosaurism	?

Through communication, humans will find the truth.
The made-up stories for indoctrination will disappear over time.

What happens when the gods disappear?

People will live the same as before.

What happens when the economy and the monetary system break down?

People will create a new system that works better.

But what happens when our planet disappears?

People would be dead within a few seconds.

What happens when all plant and animal life becomes extinct?

Humans would become extinct too within a short time.

People believe great misery will happen if they defy the gods and rulers - but that's not true. The truth is, when we go along with gods and rulers to defy Earth real misery will happen.

Our support system is Earth - not gods and rulers. Gods and rulers are unimportant and totally insignificant, we easily can live without them. Religious superstitions and ruler fads come and go, because they are mainly lies, our true friend is Earth, giving us permanent support while ruler stupidity lets us down.

You don't know how deep you can sink in a morass of lies

Mountain of lies

Well-established group-think that are lies:

- * Only the Lord (Great One) knows
- * I have to participate in the rat race to make money
- * I have to defend my country
- * Only politicians can govern us
- * Whites are superior
- * Capitalism creates prosperity

When ancient fairy tales are enforced as the ultimate truth, humanity and life in general suffer because misinformation leads to evil. Such misinformation is usually construed to allow domination - submission relationships.

Historically the truth has been washed away with violence. Lies have been forged into truth by dominators. All in the name of gaining a larger share of the available resources

In our society where everything can be bought by money the truth can be bought too. However, your instinct knows where the real truth is. Even after a lifelong brainwash, you still have the basic feeling for the truth. Throw all your group-think, addiction, beliefs and unconscious rituals overboard, and you will see the truth like the sun shining again.

When the political and commercial deception fades away, people will see the real beauty of Earth.

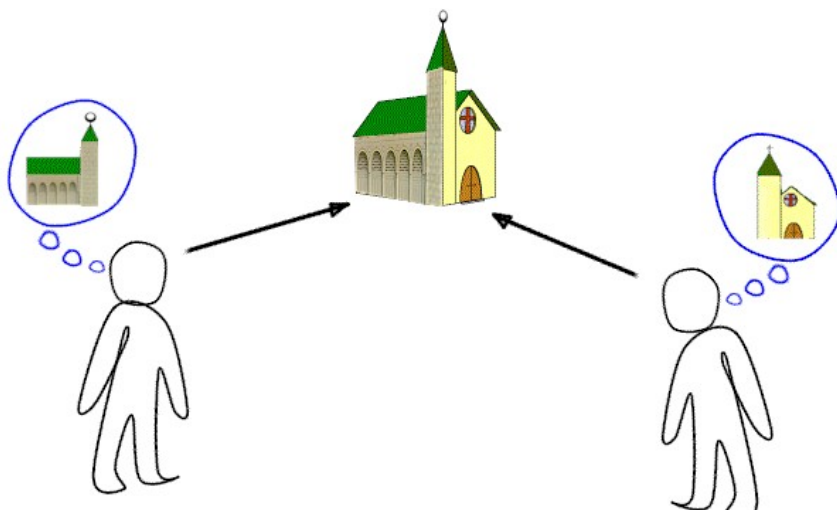

Society has been robbed of intelligence over many centuries by religious propagators of lies; making people believe in imagination instead of reality. Those who grew out of this stock of people are still heavily infested with addiction to lies. To overcome this unhealthy addiction will be a major task for humanity within the next few years and decades.

Portraying lies as truth, consequently confusing interactivity of society, results in heavily distorted models of reality and a decline of cooperation. Today many people do not know if they should believe religious, bureaucratic or commercial lies, or their own sensors tuned towards reality. This mental conflict becomes already evident in children who need to be coerced to conform to superstitious society structures. Especially adolescents try to break out of this and display on many occasions clashing behavior. However, the prevalent society pressure is much stronger than most adolescents' minds, making sure they are kept in the cage of superstition and lies.

You can be absolutely sure, whatever is pushed into you with the mass media is NOT the truth.

In the end you have to make your own decision what's true. Just try to integrate your perspective with the whole Earth system while you establish your individual truth.

Both can argue that their view of reality is different. They communicate about the same but see it very differently. Both can try to prove that their vision of reality is right. They can use violence to convince the other party, who is so obviously 'wrong'. Or, they could exchange positions and view reality from the others' perspective. This may result in a surprising reality shock when two-dimensional life turns 3D.

Both of them can now agree, understand and see,
so much more than before.

In future...

...when united humanity has been established for some time...

Religion will be considered a mental disease, that infects societies, and prevents humanity to evolve to its natural destiny.

Governments will be seen as the most violent organized groups in history that under the influence of a mental disease systematically destroyed humans and life to prove dominator superiority.

Capitalism, another human mental construct, cloned from religion, will be acknowledged as the first global activity coordinating system that failed.

In future, humans love and respect each other to assure individuals' wellbeing and equality. People are connected to free for all communication infrastructures and every one is guaranteed to have fresh nourishing food to eat.

Free from dominating nuts and institutions that have been changed in the transformation process, development rapidly increases wellbeing of humanity, life and Earth, elevating us to our divine destiny.

What is GL all about?

Humanity is constrained by belief-systems. Use  to remove those constraints, create enlightenment and unleash the real power of humanity

GL is a reminder for the responsibility people have for society and Earth - it suggest taking that responsibility and not giving it away to another person or institution is a tool to assure your self-determination globally

It is not something imposed on you like existing governments, but something that grows and evolves with your contribution

It's not about to find a winner and the best - but to find the most beneficial activities for humanity and Earth gives you optimum perspective to identify humanity's stupidity wants you to become part of Earth's self regulating mechanism by taking part in building and maintaining the global civilization model treats everyone as equal in our global society no matter how powerful or powerless, rich or poor, young or old, low or high status is your means to counterbalance the trend of humans to submit themselves to greed and exploitation, forced on them with violent means
