Once upon a time, a beautiful princess dreamed of finding her Prince Charming. After many years of bravely battling the ups and downs of life, she looked to her best friend and found the man of her dreams.

Troy Frye and Amy Brown have been a couple for almost 10 years. When the two of them met through mutual friends, they clicked immediately. Amy's mother, Wilton Brown, remembers her teenage daughter coming home after meeting Troy and announcing that she had met "the one" she would marry.

Their relationship began as a close friendship and blossomed into a love that's going to last a lifetime.

Amy says their friends and families didn't expect them to date for very long. To them, their relationship seemed like a futile mixing of oil and water. She's high-spirited and had never dated anyone for more than a couple of months, and he is reserved and had never taken a girlfriend home to meet his family.

In a poem Wilton wrote for the back of the couple's wedding brochure, she describes the unexpected longevity of their relationship like this.

"As time went by, there were others, all cute and charming, too. But, they could only hold Amy's attention for a month or two."
